Cuban Force In Uganda?

NAIROBI (UPI) — News reports in Kenya today said up to 1,000 Cuban troops have been stationed in Uganda, where President Idi Amin has barred some 200 Americans from leaving the country until they attend a forced meeting with him next week.

Reports from the Ugandan capital, citing "reliable sources," also said a high-level Cuban military delegation had arrived in Kampala to discuss with Amin the possibility of providing ~~more~~ military personnel and hardware, presumably to deal with reported coup plots that have led to a recent series of bizarre events in Uganda.

The Kenyan reports said Cuba and Uganda earlier this month signed a military agreement.

The unpredictable Ugandan leader has ordered all Americans to remain in the country and to meet with him Monday. He denied today that the Americans, mostly missionaries, were being held as "hostages."

In Washington Friday night President Carter said that the situation in Uganda "looks good now" and "I think it's going to be all right." He gave no further details.

A four-ship U.S. Navy task force led by the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise cruised off East Africa today as the U.S. citizens awaited further word on why they are being detained for the meeting.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. George Brown, said in Los Angeles he believes "reason will prevail after a few hours or a few days."

U.S. officials were playing down the possibility of a military mission to rescue the Americans if they appear to be in danger. But military analysts in Washington said that military staff officers are considering possible options in case of an emergency.

PWA Profit Totals $2M For 1976

CALGARY (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines, Alberta's publicly-owned airline, reported Friday a profit of over $2 million for 1976.

R. T. Eyton, president of PWA said net earnings for 1976 were $2.3 million compared with $1.3 in 1975. The 1976 results are made up of an operating profit of $113,000 and a gain on disposal of property and equipment of $2.178 million.

Operating revenues in 1976 were $102,562,622 compared to $101,571,506 in the previous year.

Meanwhile, the B.C. government has petitioned the federal cabinet to delay the move of PWA's head office to Calgary from Vancouver pending a public inquiry.

SECRET PAPERS BARED

Feds Urging End Of Curbs Oct. 14

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage and price controls will start to be lifted Oct. 14 this year, according to the Toronto Star.

The newspaper says confidential documents, now being circulated by Ottawa to provincial finance ministers, set out a point-by-point argument for ending controls on Oct. 14, exactly two years after they were imposed.

Under current law, controls are not scheduled to come off until December, 1978.

The Star says Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the anti-inflation board, told provincial labor ministers this week that the October date is most likely.

It says the documents refer to "the equity among different groups of workers which would be obtained if the starting date (for closing out the program) were Oct. 14, 1977."

This date "implies that most workers would have been subject to control for two years," the newspaper quotes the documents as saying.

"In general, those groups which were first in would be first out," the documents continue.

The Star says under the plan outlined in the documents, wage controls would be ended in various industries as their collective agreements expire.

Any expiry date of Oct. 14 would be set for controls and any contract which runs out after that date would be free of them. For those contracts which end before, controls would continue to apply for one more year, the newspaper says.

It also says profit controls would be eliminated by a similar staggered approach, using the company's fiscal year end as the determining date.

The Star quotes the documents as saying nearly half of the four million workers now under controls will be rid of them by the end of the year, if the Oct. 14 date is selected.

A further one fifth would be free by April 1, 1978, another fifth by July 1, 1978, and the final one-tenth by Oct. 14, 1978.

The newspaper says federal officials also will discuss with provincial authorities such measures as establishing a smaller anti-inflation board which would use its current information-gathering methods to watch inflation after controls are lifted.

Another possibility is to expand the mandate of the Economic Council of Canada to keep a day-to-day watch on wage and price increases or a new 60-member council composed of representatives from government, business and labor to perform a price-monitoring function, The Star says.

ANOTHER 4c HIKE FOR GAS IN JULY

TORONTO (CP) — The price of gasoline in Canada should be raised by at least four cents a gallon by July 1 to narrow the gap between international and domestic prices, federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Friday.

The current domestic crude oil price, negotiated by the federal and provincial governments and used as a formula for setting gasoline prices, is $9.75 a barrel.

Gillespie told the Canadian Club that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has increased oil prices "by an average of better than $1" since the last Canadian increase Jan 1.

"If we are to narrow the gap between Canadian prices and the international price, then we must be prepared to contemplate a price increase come July 1 of more than $1.25 barrel — at least four cents a gallon," he said.

"Price to the consumer and return to the producer must be consistent with our conservation objectives and our objectives to substitute Canadian energy sources for foreign oil."

Gillespie said Canada must make concerted efforts to utilize its available sources of energy.

Wheat Cartel Plan Agreed

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canada and the United States agreed in "principle" Friday to set up a wheat cartel in an effort to break the boom-or-bust cycle of world grain prices.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, announced that "broad agreement on the principles involved" has been reached between Ottawa and Washington.

Lang, who met Friday afternoon with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland, said the two governments would seek to set a minimum wheat price in an attempt to maintain a stable world market value.

Speaking at a Canadian Embassy news conference, the minister said Canada and the U.S. would try to interest other exporting countries in such an arrangement but would be willing to proceed "by ourselves."

Lang, who is also Canada's Transport minister, said Ottawa and Washington would "like to avoid the very significant swings" in international wheat prices.

He said a price-fixing agreement would be in the "interest" of both exporting and importing nations because it would lead to steady production levels and assure grain supplies.

The minister said "cartel is a word I would not use" to describe the arrangement, although it was the term employed by Bergland at a briefing earlier in the day for American reporters.

Heated Response

TASCO, Mexico (Reuter) — A street fire-eater, exasperated by three schoolboy tormentors, breathed a stream of flame over them and put them in hospital with second-degree burns, police said Friday. The boys, aged between 10 and 12, taunted the entertainer on their way home from school in this tourist resort south of Mexico City.

Shark Bait Hero

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Paul Howard, a 24-year-old surfer, suffered wounds requring 80 stitches today when he intentionally attracted a shark to himself to save a young girl, police reported.

Dissident Charged

MOSCOW (UPI) — Authorities have charged dissident poet Alexander Ginzburg with anti-Soviet activities under a law providing as much as 10 years in a labor camp.

Major Hotel Fire

MOSCOW (CP). — An army of firefighters brought under control early today a fire that ravaged a wing of the Rossiya, the world's largest hotel. At least 18 persons were believed killed and at least 12 seriously in jured. All three Canadians registered at the hotel have been accounted for.

Garage Burns

CRANBROOK (CP) — Fire Thursday night caused an estimated $750,000 damage to the garage and shops of the Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. mill near here. Two trucks and a log unloader were also lost but there was no damage to the log yard or sawmill operation.

Eaton's Sells Clients To Junk Mail Senders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eaton's is renting the names and addresses of its catalogue sales customers to the junk mail industry for $35 a thousand.

The catalogue-sales department, which went out of business last year, had names of 2.75 million Canadians which now are being rented without the knowledge of those customers.

A spokesman for Eaton's said Friday that the national department store chain didn't ask permission of its customers to rent their names because "your name and address are really public information, anyway."

"People don't legally have property rights to their names so we don't see any problem," said Vern Reynolds in a telephone interview from Toronto.

"I think it's an acceptable practice. We look at it as a business venture."

Reynolds said rental is done through a broker, Postal Promotions Ltd. of Toronto.

Only one set of labels to be glued to envelopes is sent to a customer so that names can't be use repeatedly. It is illegal for anyone to copy the list, said Reynolds.

He added that all advertisements are screened before the list is released.

So far, the list has been rented to Reader's Digest, Time-Life Books, the Canadian Bible Society and Grolier Enterprises, which sells books.

A person wishing to have his or her name removed from a junk mail list may do so by contacting the Canadian Direct Mail Association in Toronto.

Asked if some Eaton's customers might feel used by the company, Reynolds replied: "I think that would be the minority. We've only had one complaint."

CYANIDE CENTRES IN BOOBY CANDY

TOKYO (UPI) — Forty chocolate bars discovered in a cardboard box on a street in a Tokyo shopping centre have been found to contain fatal doses of cyanide, Tokyo police said today.

The discovery of the poisoned chocolates with a note promising "the punishment of heaven" for "the haughty Japanese people" revived a manhunt for a killer who leaves poisoned delicacies in public places.

Two persons died last month after consuming the contents of soft drink bottles left in public telephone booths in Tokyo's downtown Shinagawa District. The capped bottles were spiked with cyanide.

Police said the poisoned chocolate bars were found Feb. 14 in a pedestrian walkway in the Yaesu underground shopping centre below Tokyo Station.

A 43-year-old bank clerk who found the box turned it in to a nearby police station. When nobody claimed the box, the police turned it over Ezaki Glico Co., a well known maker of candy and dairy products.

Employees of the firm discovered that the foil wrappings on all the almond chocolate bars had been tampered with and returned them to police for examination.

WASHINGTON DIMS LIGHTS ~~ON~~ ROADS

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — More than 25 per cent of Washington State's highway lights will be doused in order to conserve electricity, highways director William Bulley said Friday.

He said 7,700 of the state's 28,000 highway lights will be turned off, saving 15 million kilowatts a year and trimming the state's electricity bill by $240,000. The electricity saved will equal that needed by 1,000 homes.

Bulley said his agency also will curtail some lighting in ferry terminals, highway rest areas and in departmental offices.

Most of the affected lights will be on the interstate freeways, the director said.

Convicted Killer Possessed By the Devil, Says Priest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The convicted slayer of a homosexual was possessed by the devil, says a Catholic priest who tried to exorcise the man.

Patrick Jerome McMurray, 19, of Richmond, is to be sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court March 7 for the strangulation death of Donald Smith, 42, on July 7, 1976. He was earlier found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter.

Rev. Ronald Joncas said Friday in a seven-page affidavit to the supreme court that McMurray, who has a record of suicide attempts, should be declared legally insane at the time he killed.

Father Joncas said that in January, 1976, a cousin of McMurray's came to him with a story of a crucifix bursting into flames in McMurray's bedroom, and of the man receiving mysterious burns to the arms.

The priest said that the incident followed an argument with his landlady.

When McMurray attempted to go to bed after the argument, the lights were off and "as he approached his bed, something grabbed him from behind on his arms and his arms burned several times hotter than touching a stove."

"At the same time, lights went on and off in the room, the crucifix on the wall across the bed burst into flames like a blowtorch behind it and a small statue of the Blessed Virgin on the dresser was intact one moment and the next moment the head was knocked off.

When he tried to get out of the room, the affidavit said, the door seemed locked, even though there was no lock on the door.

McMurray was taken to hospital where he was treated for second-degree burns.

The priest said that about a week later, he and several others went to see McMurray but the man was displaying

Shooting Suspect Arrested After Clerk Plays It Cool

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Kenneth Barnett, a mild-mannered desk clerk at a downtown hostel, stalled a man with a rifle Friday night while anxiously waiting for police to arrive.

At about the same time an elite police tactical squad, armed to the teeth, was bursting into a Saanich apartment looking for the same man.

They were after a suspect in the shooting of a man in a ground floor suite at the Quintro Manor, 3800 Quadra, an hour before. But it was Victoria city police who made the arrest, thanks to Barnett's tip.

Roger McDonald, 209-3800 Quadra, was charged in provincial court this morning with attempted murder.

McDonald, 24, was remanded in custody to early next week for plea.

He is charged in connection with the shooting of Al Kauknins, 33, of 103-3800 Quadra.

BARNETT
. . . not scared

Kauknins is reported in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital. Police said he was shot once in the lower abdomen with a .303 rifle.

Barnett said a man carrying a briefcase and with a rifle slung over his arm came into the Salvation Army Hostel on Johnson at 8:40 p.m. The man said he had no money, nowhere to go and wanted a bed for the night.

The man suddenly left, and Barnett called police. As he was talking to the officer the man returned. Police raced to the hostel and took the suspect into custody.

A Saanich police spokesman said the shooting occurred at about 7:24 p.m.

A tenant in the apartment block, who asked not to be identified, told the Times she was in the Kauknins' suite when there was a knock at the door.

Mrs. Kauknins, the victim's wife, answered and was greeted by a man carrying a briefcase and rifle.

The tenant said Mrs. Kauknins knew the man and said jokingly: "What are you going to do with that, . . . shoot us?"

The tenant left shortly after and was walking down the corridor when she heard a loud bang. She kept on going to her suite but returned minutes later.

She said she was just approaching Kauknins' door when she heard someone inside the suite say: "Why did they do that to me?" and Kauknins replying: "I don't know."

She said she sensed something was wrong and went to the manager's apartment next door. The manager reached out and pulled her inside.

The tenant said Mrs. Kauknins and her young daughter Laura were there. Mrs. Kauknins was in a state of shock.

She told the tenant she was cutting bread preparing dinner when the man fired. She said she grabbed Laura and

Line from Elk, Beaver Lakes To Ease Drought on Peninsula

A temporary water line will be built beside Beaver and Elk Lakes this spring to bring relief to the drought-plagued Saanich Peninsula.

Meanwhile, the new Saanich Peninsula Water Commission launched studies Friday which will see a major water line built from Saanich to North Saanich over the next couple of years to provide a permanent solution to peninsula water problems.

Commission chairman Jim Cumming said today the temporary line will connect the peninsula with the Greater Victoria Water District system which has now reached the south end of Beaver Lake Park.

The line will run from there to a pumping station on Elk Lake where Central Saanich has traditionally drawn water from the lake for use north on the peninsula.

That connection will allow pumping from Elk Lake to stop and will increase the supply by about 400,000 gallons a day, from 1.3 to 1.7 million gallons daily.

Elk and Beaver Lakes, like other peninsula water sources, are at a low ebb after an unusually dry winter.

The peninsula has traditionally relied on municipal and private wells and Elk Lake for its water but growth and limited underground water has forced it to look elsewhere.

Water is supplied to the core municipalities from the Sooke watershed by the Greater Victoria Water District and it is this system which will ultimately supply the peninsula, too.

Cumming repeated his belief that careful sharing of water sources can avoid a critical shortage on the peninsula this summer. The temporary line, new wells in the Dean Park housing development and elsewhere, and some booster pumping will do the job if residents also practise conserving water, he said.

The temporary line beside Beaver and Elk Lakes will cost about $150,000, most of which can be later recovered for use elsewhere, he said.

While studies have yet to determine details and routes, it will probably be a 12-inch plastic line buried only about a foot deep. It may run up the west side of the lakes or possibly the east side of Beaver Lake to be carried on the surface across the narrows joining the two lakes. It will be a little over a mile long.

Kitimat Blockade Grows

Times News Services

Two citizens' groups in northwestern B.C. said Friday they will form a second blockade against oil tankers in support of the blockade previously announced by a union.

"We are forming a second blockade but instead of blockading Dixon Entrance we will be waiting for the Americans at Douglas Channel," said Jim Carr, spokesman for the Hartley Bay Stop Supertankers Committee, in Vancouver.

The other citizens' group is the Terrace Alliance Against Supertankers to Kitimat.

Both groups are members of the Kitimat Oil Coalition, a federation of 11 groups opposed to the Kitimat oil port.

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, supported by the Greenpeace foundation, has pledged to blockade tankers going to Kitimat.

"We will do everything in our power to block any barges carrying construction material for the port," said Carr.

"We would even consider assembling a huge log boom to place in the mouth of Douglas Channel." The channel is the only water toute to Kitimat.

In Olympia, Wash., a hearing on a bill to ban an oil terminal at Port Angeles turned into a general denunciation of any oil shipment facility on Puget Sound.

Representatives of No Oil Port, Inc., Clallam County and the Coalition Against Oil Pollution showed up to support the bill, but no supporters of the oil terminal testified.

The state energy site evaluation council is considering a proposal from Northern Tier Pipeline Co. to build a 1,500-mile pipeline to the U.S. midwest, beginning from the proposed terminal at Port Angeles. Clallam County residents voted 2-1 against the port last year.

The Atlantic Richfield Co. (Arco), meanwhile, plans to ask the state of Washington to allow expansion of its tank farm at the Cherry Point refinery near Bellingham.

The request could be the prelude to a plan to bring Alaska oil to Cherry Point and ship it by pipeline to the midwest, the Seattle Times reported.

Fielding Formway, manager of the Cherry Point refinery, said Friday he did not know exactly when the request will be filed with the state energy facility site evaluation council, indicated it would be at least a month.

ADVISER MOVE SET ON WILLIAM HEAD

After four months of study a proposal for forming a citizen advisory committee at William Head penitentiary will be put to the public Tuesday.

A six-member steering committee formed last November will present the proposal at the meeting which begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Law Centre, 45 Bastion Square.

Eight to 10 persons are expected to be nominated to sit on the advisory committee which will act as a liaison between the community and the prison.

All nominations are subject to the approval of the director of William Head.

Advisory committees were first authorized by the Canadian Penitentiary Service in 1973 as a means of lessening feelings of isolation for inmates, developing a wider variety of resources for rehabilitation, better informing the public about prisons, and getting more people involved in helping inmates return to the community.

Committees have already been formed at the B.C. Penitentiary and Matsqui on the Lower Mainland.

The idea of citizen committees is nothing new to Canadian penal reform. The Archambault Commission in 1938 recommended the establishment of a Board of Visitors similar to boards which have been operating in England and Wales for more than a 100 years.

In April 1972, the Swackhammer Report on the Kingston penitentiary riots of 1971 once again recommended establishing visitors' committees. It was seen as having a potential ". . . in defusing areas of legitimate grievance."

B.C. Seeks Export Gas Price Hike

British Columbia will seek an increase in the export price of natural gas to the United States, Energy and Transport Minister Jack Davis said Friday.

The minister said natural gas is worth $2.50 a thousand cubic feet and the Social Credit government will apply to the National Energy Board to get that price. The U.S. now pays $1.94 a thousand cubic feet.

Davis said part of the increase, if approved, would be used to stimulate exploration for new gas supplies in northern B.C.

He said that, under the former New Democratic Party government, exploration dropped off in the province and B.C. has to rely on electrical energy which is expensive to produce.

"If we had adequate supplies of natural gas, then we'd be able to keep down the energy bill to all consumers in the province," said the minister.

The National Energy Board annually invites submissions from producers concerning the next year's export prices.

Shooting Suspect Arrested After Clerk Plays It Cool

fled outside, still holding the bread knife.

Within 20 minutes police had cordoned off the street. They feared the suspect was hiding in a second floor apartment and called the Greater Victoria police emergency response team. Passers-by were warned to stay clear in case shots were fired.

It was the first time the tactical team, formed last fall, had been called out.

The unit arrived at about 8:15 p.m. and four of the members donned their dark-blue commando-style fatigues, toques, and strapped on bullet-proof vests. They each carried an arsenal of weapons, shotguns, teargas gun, and revolvers.

Fifteen minutes later they were ready.

They moved into the building and stormed into the suspect's apartment.

It was empty.

Barnett, the desk clerk, said he thought the man was a destitute hunter.

"I said to him 'I'm sorry but we would have to have the rifle in the office," he said.

He started to fill out an admission form. The man gave his name, produced a British passport which showed he had been born in London, England, on April 19, 1952. He told Barnett he had been in Canada since 1953, had lived previously in Clinton and arrived in Victoria 25 days ago.

"He seemed very agitated," Barnett said. "When I started to ask him if he was receiving welfare he suddenly said "Okay play it cool, man', and left."

Barnett said he sat back, lit a cigarette and "got to thinking."

"It occurred to me here was an agitated man walking on the streets with a gun in his hand, and perhaps police should know about it," Barnett said.

He phoned Victoria police and was just giving a description of the man when the man walked back into the hostel, approached the counter and passed the rifle barrel-first to Barnett.

"I engaged in conversation with him trying to stall him and rather hoping the police would arrive very soon," he said.

Within a minute a burly sergeant walked in. Barnett said the officer discreetly removed his glasses, put them in his pocket and went up to the man and tapped him on the shoulder.

A struggle ensued and the suspect and officer tumbled out on to the street where four or five other officers were waiting. The man submitted and was taken away in the police wagon.

Barnett said he was not scared at any time.

"We get all kinds coming in here," he said.

He confessed, however, if he had known the man was a suspect in a shooting "I probably wouldn't have been so brave."

"an evil personality." They had to keep him away from knives and a patio door because they feared he would try to harm himself.

Father Joncas said he repeated a private exorcism prayer three or four times, but this only upset McMurray, who snatched the prayer book out of his hands and destroyed it.

The priest said he told McMurray to stay away from rock music because he believes it is trance-inducing, and also liquor, which he feels has the same effect.

"I considered him to have been under demonic possession over the weekend, especially because he had felt strong burning feelings when holy objects touched him," said Father Joncas.

"He boasted he would have sex with men and girls as he pleased. He said he did not believe in God or anything else to do with religion."

The affidavit said that McMurray was possessed again in mid-1976. At the time, his cousin found him crying and covering his face.

"All she could see was a red streak down the side of his face . . . she sprinkled holy water on him and he began to choke and gasp and could not get his breath."

Your hair problems —are they inherited?

If you have any of the symptoms listed below, chances are that you're a victim of seborrheic dermatitis. And you should know that this condition may now be prevented in the home.
Research from England showed that over 80% of patients suffering from excessive hair loss could have prevented this with the proper attention to hair and scalp care. And following on from twenty years of research into skin and hair problems, Finnish scientists have synthesized a product designed to arrest hair loss due to seborrheic dermatitis, and even stimulate dormant follicles into producing new hair.

The product is called BIOSCAL.

Symptoms you should be aware of

Flaky dandruff . . . excessively dry or oily hair . . . itchiness or tenderness of the scalp . . . hair that is brittle, lifeless or weak textured . . . excessive thinning and hair loss.

More Marine Parks Planned

The provincial government plans to expand the system of marine parks in the Georgia Straits, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Friday.

Wolfe said a number of marine parks are in the planning and development stages in various locations around Georgia Strait.

He welcomed the support of the Marine Trades Association of B.C. and the Canadian National Sportsmen's Shows which earlier informed the government they would support a joint project with the province to acquire and develop marine parks in the Vancouver-Howe Sound area.

Marine parks are "destination areas" which boaters can visit during day-long or overnight excursions.

the weather

Snow fell at many points in the interior overnight and showers occurred along the coast. Strong gusty winds were reported from exposed areas. Clear periods and patchy fog rounded out the picture over British Columbia. This variable and unsettled weather will continue today and tomorrow as a series of weather disturbances caught up in the strong westerly flow reach the province from the Pacific then move rapidly eastward to Alberta.

PUBLIC LECTURE SERIES

MAO TSE-TUNG AND THE NEW CHINA

It is impossible to understand the Chinese Revolution or the significance of the Chinese People's Republic without examining the enormous influence Mao Tse-tung exerted during his four decades of leadership of the world's largest and most radical revolutionary movement. This "mini lecture series" will examine three facets of Mao's influence on the new China, namely, his overall historical significance, the public image presented in art and the mass media, and the areas where he is likely to have a lasting influence on China and the world.

Lecture Topics:
Perspectives —Mao in Chinese History, Mao as Marxist Theorist, and Mao in the Modern World Revolution.
Images —The Leader and his Followers.
Legacies —Struggle, Equality, Self-Reliance.

March 2, 9, 16, Elliot 167, University of Victoria; 8-10 p.m. No admission charge.

SPEAKER: Dr. Ralph Crozier, Visiting University Professor.

CONTEMPORARY ISSUES

A selection of thoughtful reflections upon Contemporary Issues will be presented by members of the Department of Philosophy during March. The public is invited to attend and participate in general questioning and discussion following these presentations:

March 2, 1977 ABORTION Dr. C. B. Daniels
March 9, 1977 MEN AND MACHINES Dr. Charles Morgan
March 16, 1977 TERRORIST BLACKMAIL Professor H. J. N. Horsburgh
March 23, 1977 ANIMAL LIBERATION Dr. R. Beeler
March 30 1977 EUTHANASIA Dr. Eike-Henner Kluge

Clearihue 207, University of Victoria; 8:15 p.m. No admission charge.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION ON EITHER OF THESE TWO LECTURE SERIES, PLEASE CALL 477-6911, locals 4802 - 4804.

Retaliation Feared If Spy Tried

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Solicitor General Francis Fox says a Soviet scientist was expelled because Canada did not have enough evidence to prosecute him for espionage and it feared action against Canadian visitors in the Soviet Union.

Lev Grigoryevich Khvostantsevs, 39, was deported Thursday after being arrested on charges of having attempted to purchase classified information from a fellow scientist at the National Research Council.

Progressive Conservative Walter Baker charged expulsion was "lenient." He asked Fox in the House of Commons Friday "why was the man not prosecuted . . for offending the law, because surely that is what happened?"

Fox sidestepped the question but he later told reporters outside the House that "there was little likelihood of successful prosecution by the courts."

Another reason for not prosecuting, he said, was "the risk of some Canadian over there being arrested on trumped up charges.

"Everyone knows retaliation occurs in these areas. It is the whole scenario. If one country does it, you are likely to have it happen to a Canadian in the other country. I think it is better to close this thing off quickly."

The Russian was deported under Section 18 of the Immigration Act, which states, among other things, that a person may be deported without appeal if "there are reasonable grounds for believing they are likely to engage in espionage, sabotage or any other subversive activity directed against Canada or detrimental to the security of Canada."

RCMP said Khvostantsevs, who entered Canada Nov. 17 to conduct unclassified research at the NRC, approached an unidentified scientist early this month asking for secret information.

The second scientist went to the police, RCMP said, and it was arranged for him to make two sales of unclassified material to the Soviet. Khvostantsevs was arrested after making a second purchase of what he thought was classified information, police said.

Gov't Encouraging Idleness, Waterland Tells Foresters

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Provincial Forests Minister Tom Waterland told more than 200 professional foresters Friday that government is giving people too many reasons not to work for a living and not enough chances for industry to expand.

"Non-productive bureaucracies" have been developed by all levels of government and industry and they pose a "tremendous burden on the productive sector of our society," said Waterland.

"The Canadian citizen has for too long been sheltered from adversity by government welfare schemes, and as long as there is no adversity, created by individual non-production, there will be no incentive in this country to increase our per capita production," he said.

Waterland told a luncheon meeting of foresters at a two-day convention that governmens have deluded taxpayers into thinking the government knows best how taxpayers' "hard-earned wages should be spent."

"As a result, a higher and higher percentage of the wage-owner's earnings are deducted from them by the governments in order to be spent on them, so that the wage-earner will be beholden to government and thereby be inclined to re-elect that government," he said.

B.C. Probes Land Deal In Matsqui

The provincial inspector of municipalities has started a review of a land deal in Matsqui in which two municipal employees made a profit of $260,000.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said Friday that the review will be handled by deputy minister Bill Long; or one of his two inspectors — Chris Woodward or John Taylor.

Curtis said the decision to conduct the investigation was made after he received a letter from Matsqui Mayor Harry Dejong, asking for some government action.

The property involved is an 18-acre parcel which was bought in 1974 for $170,000 by a company called M.S.A. Development Ltd. The company is owned by Bruce McIntyre, Matsqui municipal treasurer, and David Laxton, public works foreman.

The property, adjacent to Matsqui Prison, was sold in May, 1976, for $430,000 to a development consortium, giving M.S.A. a profit of $260,000.

Ransom Rejected

BARI, Italy (AP) — The son of a wealthy builder whose body was stolen from the local cemetery this week said Friday that relatives will never pay the $1.1-million ransom demanded by the thieves. "For those who believe in the immortality of the soul, being left without the body of a beloved one has a relative importance," said Rev. Giuseppe Matarrese.

HE WAS SIMPLY TOO HONEST . . .

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An unidentified Flint, Mich., man was so honest on his first trip to Canada this week that he wound up in jail.

When a customs officer at the border asked if the man had anything to declare, he answered: "Yes sir, 12 ounces of grass."

The 18-year-old truck driver told Judge Saul Nosanchuk of provincial court Thursday that he and a friend had travelled to Detroit to visit friends, but decided to make a trip to Windsor so they could say they had been there.

The routine questions by the Canada Customs officer were all quite new to them, he said, after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana.

The man was granted an absolute discharge and told he could return to Canada some other time — but without marijuana.

Captain Praised In Rescue of 39

HONOLULU (UPI) — Quick action by the captain of a nearby freighter was credited Friday with the successful rescue of all but one of the 39 crewmen aboard the Liberian oil tanker Hawaiian Patriot, which exploded and sank Thursday 360 miles west of Honolulu.

All that remained Friday were two flaming oil slicks, slowly burning the 50-mile trail of more than five million gallons of crude oil which leaked from the supertanker before the explosion.

The 38 rescued crewmen, all Greeks except for three from Colombia, were aboard the merchant ship Philippine Bataan headed for Midway Island and expected to arrive Saturday. The single casualty was a Greek officer who died when he leaped into the burning oil slick. His name was withheld until his family is notified.

The crewmen leaped from the vessel when it first caught fire, and within three hours all the survivors were picked up by the Philippine Bataan, which was loaded with a flammable cargo including live ammunition. It had to move backward to pick up the survivors, keeping its bow as far from the flames as possible.

Save White Lake

A few miles south of Penticton in the hills above Skaha Lake is the Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory. Since it was built in 1960 the radio telescopes and associated equipment have been used to carry out important work in furthering man's knowledge of the farthest reaches of the universe.

DRAO picks up and analyzes the exceedingly weak radio signals—all astronomical objects emit radio frequencies—and in the words of a National Research Council official, is "one of the major centres for radio-astronomical research in the world."

But it may soon be a useless collection of expensive electronic gear and antennae, unable to operate unless a condominium development proposed for land adjacent to the observatory is stopped. Plans have been afoot since 1960 to construct 400 condominiums at St. Andrew's-by-the-Lake where previously the only structure was a resort lodge.

The electrical interference from such a massive development so close to the radio telescopes would probably force the observatory to close down.

As D. W. McKinley of the NRC in Ottawa told the observatory's backers in 1970, when the development was first mooted:

"Since the radio signals from astronomical objects are exceedingly feeble the primary requirement was freedom from man-made radio interference and in this respect the White Lake site has proved to be the best in the world. This fact has enabled researches to be carried out at the observatory which cannot be duplicated elsewhere and which . . . have brought scientific recognition to Canada and to the Okanagan region in particular."

Those opposed to the development, and who want to see such distinguished work continue at the observatory, received a telegram from the English astronomer and Nobel prize winner, Sir Martin Ryle of Cambridge.

"I am horrified to learn of proposal for large housing development near radio observatory which has pioneered vital advances in extragalactic research. This work only possible with carefully chosen site and long term protection. Local development would be disastrous for Canadian status in world astronomy."

The local residents, particularly members of the Okanagan Similkameen Parks Society, who have fought to defeat the development have gotten the brush-off everywhere in Ottawa, which is responsible for DRAO. Much of the land around the observatory is reserved, and aircraft must remain at least five miles away, but if the condominium development is allowed to proceed that protection will be ineffectual.

The regional district last week decided it could no longer protect the observatory. Its land use contract with the condominium developer says the observatory shall have the right to locate and ask for removal or suppression of electrical devices—i.e. electric razors, mixers, lawn mowers and so on—which interfere with the observatory, but there will be so many of them in a 400-unit project and substitutes which do not emit interference are often impossible to obtain that this is no safeguard at all.

It is a federal responsibility, as Premier Bill Bennett correctly noted when questioned about the problem in the legislature this week, but perhaps he could use his newfound close rapport with Ottawa and Prime Minister Trudeau to influence the feds to save White Lake.

High-level intervention between premier and prime minister can have more effect than six years of letter-writing and public hearings and jawboning. It seems inconceivable that B.C. should lose such a prestigious establishment because of greedy and short-sighted developers.

Saanich Computerized

Saanich is a municipality where raw sewage can be found in a few ditches, where garbage is picked up every two weeks, and where many areas don't even have the luxury of a sidewalk. Saanich is also a municipality that will spend $249,088 over the next three years to install a computer system for billing procedures. In the narrow parochial sense that so often clouds the thinking of this municipality it's a good expenditure because the city now pays $50000 annually for three contracts for computer time to cover payroll, property taxes and the voters' list.

But Victoria already has computer facilities that could look after the needs of every municipality on southern Vancouver Island, according to one alderman. Ian Cass earlier this month said he hoped Saanich's purchase would be the forerunner of such action by other councils in the Greater Victoria area, leading to a commonality in billing procedures. Cass has shown himself to be a hardworking alderman in his freshman year, but he misses the point here. Are all four core municipalities going to go to the expense of duplicating computer facilities when one centre could handle the whole lot?

Here is a classic symptom of the balkanized disease which affects this area. If logic ever wins out, computer facilities will be handled by the Capital Regional District for the whole area. That Saanich would even contemplate the expenditure of more than one quarter of a million dollars on such a scheme illustrates how municipal blinkers are securely in place. Perhaps the best use of a computer in these parts would be to feed it all the data relating to costs in four separate municipalities as opposed to amalgamated costs. If Saanich's computer purchase is a prime example of duplicating costs, the answers might pull at least a few aldermanic heads out of the sand and into world of analytic logic.

W. A. WILSON

Warm, Eloquent Speech

OTTAWA — At home, Pierre Trudeau is a controversial and none too popular figure, yet he has long been widely respected abroad.

As he addressed the congress of the United States Tuesday, the first Canadian leader ever to do so, he was clearly the major political figure. The speech which he delivered, it seems to me from reading it, met the exacting standards of the occasion.

Its three themes — the nature and standing of America, the Canadian relationship with the United States and the condition of Canada — were each stated with warmth and some eloquence. That is good. Even the prime minister's most determined critics would not have wished to see him fall short of the occasion.

Controversial he may be in his political activities within Canada but in general the prime minister has represented this country well when he has been abroad. He has travelled widely as Canada's leader and there have been only two or three missteps abroad. There have been many occasions when he has represented Canada with distinction.

The part of the speech closest to immediate Canadian concerns, the description of this country's condition, was temperate, an admirable account of how we have come to our present position.

Deep Bonds

To a degree that surprises one, however, the portions of the speech dealing with the United States and our relationship with that country, being warm and friendly, came as particularly welcome. The 1960s and part of this decade were very difficult times for the United States when much that happened aroused great criticism abroad. Basic American friendships were held together by the deep bonds of real interest which underlie them but the volume of popular criticism, in this country as in others, was loud and intense.

No one on our side of the world's divisions, however, can find any joy in the occasions when the American course is controversial or when the United States is in difficulties. Too much depends upon the conditions of American economic and political health.

Today, that seems greatly improved in the political sphere and fundamentally warm as well as important relationships are no longer clouded by waves of criticism or anti-American feelings among the critics. Today, it is not difficult for a Canadian leader to pledge this country's support "in the pursuit of those causes in which we both believe" nor to wish the American people godspeed in the pursuit of their ideals.

The vital part of the speech for Canadians, though, is the part that deals with this country and Trudeau's associates had let it be known in advance that the prime minister would be talking as much to Canada as to the members of congress.

Speaking of the positive side of this country's first century as a federation, Trudeau said:

"We created a society of individual liberty and of respect for human rights. We produced an economic standard of living which approaches your own."

But there was a negative side to that century of life together and, however it came about, no matter whose fault it was, the reality is with us today. Here are the prime minister's words which, unhappily, are accurate:

PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . . with Carter in Washington

"We have not, however, created the conditions in which French-speaking Canadians have felt they were fully equal or could fully develop the richness of the culture they had inherited . . . that is why a minority of the people of Quebec feel they should leave Canada and strike out in a country of their own."

That is the great Canadian problem today, the need to create a society in which French-Canadians will feel fully equal and able to develop their culture. Most English-Canadians and many French-Canadians would share the prime minister's view that the survival of the French language and culture is more probable if it is protected within a Canadian federation than if it is encompassed only within a small and rather weak country surrounded by an English-speaking North American mass.

That does not really get us very far by itself. It is not much use English-Canadians saying to their French counterparts:

"Yes but your chances of cultural survival are much better if you stick with us."

If it is survival at the price of inequality, any spirited French-Canadian today will tell you to go to the devil. It is necessary to create the conditions in which French-Canadians, inside and outside Quebec, can feel equal. That is the real Canadian problem today.

There has at least been a genuine anglo effort in that direction in the last 10 or 15 years, far more effort than went into it from our side during the previous 50. It is very difficult to judge with accuracy the extent of social change as it is happening, because attitudes as well as actions are involved.

Clearly the progress has not been enough or Rene Levesque would not have won the last Quebec election no matter how fed up with the Bourassa regime the province was.

Shock Waves

If there is one great benefit, from the federalist side, in Rene Levesque's victory it is that it gave the rest of the country a frightful shock. It seems to me that the effort to ensure the equality of French Canada is more intense today and involves people who were not very active in it only a few months ago.

Levesque's victory was a salutary one.

"I say to you with all the certainty I can command that Canada's unity will not be fractured," Trudeau told congress. "Accommodation will be made. Revisions will take place. We shall succeed."

Canadians on both sides of the language barrier should probably pay attention to the prime minister's reminder of the external reactions to Canadian disintegration, to which he referred earlier as destabilization.

"I am immodest enough to suggest that a failure of this always varied, often illustrious Canadian social experiment would create shock waves of disbelief among those all over the world who are committed to the proposition that among men's noblest endeavors are those communities in which persons of diverse origins live, love, work and find mutual benefit."

A Prayer For The Mayor As The City Buys Land

With Trudeau pleading for us from Washington, and a certain grizzly bear sinking its fangs deeper into Socred flesh, I have ignored the considerable wheeling and dealing going on under my nose.

A small squib in last Wednesday's Times, announced the city's purchase of the former steam laundry site for $550,000 at the corner of Humboldt and Douglas, adjacent to the Crystal Garden and across the street from the Empress hotel, it should be added.

Given all the secret dealings with Canadian Pacific, the owner of the Empress, over convention facilities (the words convention centre cause a hush and a slight drooling in chamber of commerce conversations) the sudden purchase of this property by the city makes a person think.

Last year I would occasionally watch realtor and wine connoisseur Eric Charman and Empress manager Ted Balderson muttering together in the hotel's Bengal room as the sun went down. Mention the words convention centre to Charman and his beard goes an even brighter red.

Then I heard that the city, or at least one of its aldermen, were going to do something nice for the Empress—like build a parkade—on adjacent land if CP would construct convention facilities on its parking lots.

Victoria Mayor Mike Young said as much in his inauguaral address Jan. 4. "By way of assistance the city could relieve the parking problem such a (convention) facility would create by developing on the land immediately to the north of the old Crystal Garden a parking facility for the use of the hotel and the public, and possibly an indoor lawn bowling facility on the roof."

With the announcement that more than half a million of taxpayer dollars were going to be paid out for the property it looked like the deal was about to go down, so I phoned the mayor.

"The likelihood of us putting a parking lot there has diminished." He added that talk (his) about building a parking facility there was "water under the bridge."

It seems the city was forced into a hasty decision because of a CP board of directors meeting, Young said. Apparently there was another bid, on the property too—before it was even listed. I wonder where the local developer got his information?

Young reiterated the city would have no direct involvement in what CP does with the Empress. So why did the city sweat so much, so fast, to acquire the property? The mayor was evasive, saying the price was right and the purchase would consolidate a block of publicly owned property.

Somewhat more galling — remember that $550,000 is your money—the mayor presented the issue at an in camera meeting and would not even tell council the reason for purchasing the property. Voters might note that only aldermen Ron McKenzie and Murray Glazier didn't vote for a blind pig. They wanted a few more details, like why is the city buying this wedge of land?

If we take the mayor at his word, his latest word that is, the city has gone into the real estate business to consolidate property. It's not much of a rationale for spending more than half a million.

Perhaps there is a new scam on the Crystal Gardens in which the acquired property will figure. Or maybe the city is safeguarding this important property from the designs of developers, although that could be done more reasonably through zoning bylaws.

The central point here is that we shouldn't have to speculate on such a matter. It is public money that is being spent and the public needs an explanation as to why it is being ladled out.

Considering the mayor's inaugural remarks the people have a right to suspect this sudden move. And it is no secret CP has more than one proposal on convention facilities in Victoria up its pin striped sleeves.

More intrigue exists in this bizarre little town than in provincial politics. Ald. Ron McKenzie conducts his own secret amalgamation study without naming his colleagues; Mayor Young asks council to rubber stamp a land purchase and most of the aldermen don't have enough curiosity to ask why. It's time our paternalistic city fathers came clean. Too much is under study or under water, just like the fish Ald. Bob Wright keeps in his whale concession.

At the inaugural meeting of Victoria city council last January the Rev. A. B. King prayed, "May we place people before property . . ." It's about time Mike Young and the boys got down on their knees again.—G.R.O.

Grudges?

Once again Ald. Ron McKenzie is just trying to show the people of Victoria his incomparable ignorance.

If developer Hans Hartwig's record does not inspire confidence, who knows what could to this vapid council? Two prominent examples of Hartwig's ability are Nootka Court on Humboldt Street which has gained national acclaim and should be enough inspiration for anyone, or the liquor store on Yates Street. Maybe Victoria's economy is so stagnant due to council's lack of inspiration.

Hartwig Court is an exquisite building and definitely a bonus point for Victoria. Maybe we should inspire Hartwig to build more.

Yet most bothersome is the fact that an alderman rejects a proposed building before the proposal has been submitted to council. Or is McKenzie wasting taxpayers' money fighting out personal grudges in council? Neither one should be tolerated. — Rob Miller, Victoria.

Hydro's Arrogance

Press reports on Feb. 18, stated that according to a government report, a dam is urgently needed on the McGregor River. This view is also taken by the top brass of B.C. Hydro.

I believe a lot of highly-informed people will agree with my view that even more urgently needed is a different point of view in the government and in B.C. Hydro policies.

The present big dam — nuclear energy psychology of B.C. Hydro is going to land us in numerous foreseen and unforeseen difficulties.

If ever used, nuclear energy should be the final recourse of absolute necessity. Such recourse is far beyond present need. Existing plants are giving increasing difficulty everywhere. Has Hydro examined the mess at the Pickering, Ont. plant, so unpublicized across Canada? Ordinary nuclear plants operate on declining productive capacities as they age, and they do no last many years. Suspension of operation for repairs make excess capacity necessary to maintain the same amounts of energy that coal-fired plants produce at much less cost, and uranium supply will not last long.

It will cost $540 million merely to dispose of a spent atomic fuel reprocessing plant in New York state, and even then the waste will have to be stored for the future, in an atomic waste cemetery.

The Revelstoke high single dam decision flies in the face of great danger from the Downie slide, a massive threat five times that of the Frank slide in the Crowsnest Pass. Anyone who has seen that will fear for the weakening of the underpinning which the water level will produce.

Why is B.C. Hydro seemingly unwilling to tackle a battery of windmills along the Vancouver Island and mainland coasts? This could add markedly to our power supply, with no cost to any other aspect of environment. Does it not have sufficient enticement as a profit-making construction interest? Or do we have to confine ourselves to enterprises more dramatic and sophisticated?

Why not a solar power program of experimentation? If Marks and Spencer can seriously enter a program for their multinational interests as a practical effort for the roofs of their stores, is there any reason why B.C. industrial and commercial roofs would be less open to solar energy?

B.C. Hydro has recently thought up another one — to ask its consumers of power to pay again for the installation of meters and the cost of meter reading. Is it possible that this cost has not entered the books of the B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro long ago?

The last indignity is to have our environmentalists browbeaten by Mr. Bonner. If the policy of B.C. Hydro is not to change, then it is time to ask why the administration should not be questioned very seriously — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

Our Responsibility

Your editorial Messy Public Involvement (Feb. 19) purports to show concern that the "public won't find out much" if the forest service staff doesn't sound off about the Pearse report. This attitude concerns me for two reasons. Firstly, I feel that reasonable conduct of business demands that "senior civil servants involved in highly sensitive talks and recommendations over future government policy should not discuss these matters in public forums."

Secondly, I had believed, naively I now fear, that the press took on the intelligence-gathering function of the lobbyist on behalf of the public so that we too could have "a very good idea of the drift of thought . . ." Is it too much to hope that the press accepts this responsibility? — E. F. V. Robinson, 5024 Wesley Road.

It's Illegal

On Feb. 12 you had an article on a handicapped Vancouver man, Bob Neumann, who received $300 from the criminal injuries compensation board and had it taken away by welfare. According to chapter 17, section II of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act it is illegal to. The said section states the following:

"Any compensation awarded or other amount paid or payable by the board under this Act is not subject to garnishment, attachment, seizure, or any other legal process and the right thereto is not assignable."

I hope this will be of some assistance to the man. I hope you further assist this letter. Thank you. Jesus forever. — Gilbert Beaudry, 502 Craigflower Road.

Dissent Honorable Russian Tradition

SAKHAROV . . . unknown at home

By HEDRICK SMITH

Andrei Sakharov, the Nobel Prize-winning Soviet dissident, may have his picture o nthe cover of Time magazine or be seen by millions of Americans in a television interview, but his own countrymen would not recognize his face.

Indeed, during the virulent press campaign against him in late 1974, when Sakharov and his wife were vacationing at a Black Sea beach, other bathers listening to transistor radios broadcasting denunciations fell to talking about him as he moved among them, totally unrecognized. He paused to argue with one group. "This Sakharov," he told them, "must be a reasonable man." But his wife dragged him quickly away for fear that the others might harm him if they discovered who he was.

The incident dramatically illustrates the gulf between the Soviet dissident activists and the great majority of their countrymen. They are a tiny band among a nation of 257 million people, with some private sympathizers among the intelligentsia but scorned by the overwhelming mass.

The hard core probably numbers no more than 1,000. People so dedicated that they dare to sign their names to protests or essays, to openly criticize the government for suppressing political liberties or violating East-West agreements on human rights, to protest against each others' arrests, to talk with Western reporters and to gather or pass on the information that is fed into the Chronicle of Human Events, the sporadic periodical that has provided a record of their actions and official reactions against them.

But beyond that core, there are others who have broken with Soviet orthodoxy. As many as 17,000 Roman Catholics in Lithuania have signed protests against restrictions on religion in their republic. Ukrainians, Estonians, Georgians, Armenians, Crimean Tatars, Volga Germans and others circulate underground protests against the hegemony of the ethnic Russians in their regions.

Add to them a dissident sect of Baptists, perhaps 15,000 strong, who defy the state by giving their children religious training and refusing to serve in the Soviet Army and another 1,000 Jews who take active part in the immigration movement, not to mention untold others who fester in varying states of dissent once their applications for exit visas are turned down.

But it is doubtful if the total numbers 50,000 people. Most of them are intellectuals, a surprising percentage of the leaders are scientists and scholars, especially physicists trained to a critical, nondoctrinaire cast of mind. Some of the younger ones have good Communist Party connections in their families and are rebelling against what they see as the opportunism of the Soviet elite. But except for the religious and ethnic minorities, dissent in the Soviet Union is something for the urban upper middle class.

Dissent in the Soviet Union, where there is not a habit of public protest, has a narrower base than in many East European countries. Unlike Poland, where recent price riots signalled a groundswell of working-class disenchantment and won oblique support from the powerful Roman Catholic Church, in the Soviet Union dissent has not spawned more general ferment, even over living conditions.

Its importance lies not in numbers but in the moral force of single voices like those of Sakharov or two of his recently arrested colleagues, Alexander Ginsburg and Yuri Orlov, or the seductive and seditious satire of a writer like Vladimir Voinovich. These men follow an honorable Russian tradition: towering figures such as Pushkin and Dostoyevsky defied the Czars and paid for it, like today's dissidents, with long terms of prison or exile.

To the Kremlin, even limited dissent causes serious concern because it infringes upon the Communist Party's ideological monopoly and political control. The few who dare to speak out must be stifled in order to squelch the hidden, passive disaffection of tens of thousands of others who chafe in private. "It is very important," Ukrainian dissenter Valentin Moroz once observed, "to silence the man who first cries out, 'The king is naked,' before others pick up the cry."

One vexing frustration in recent years for the massive Soviet security apparatus has been "the instant replay" network. Dissidents issue statements to Western reporters in Moscow who relay the news — or rather, a modest fraction of the torrent that dissidents turn out — to the West where it is picked up by radio broadcasts that are beamed back to Soviet listeners. Periodically, the Soviet political police mount campaigns to intimidate the msot active dissidents and the most venturesome reporters to try to break that first, vital link in the network.

Police harassment, the denial of travel permission or access to Soviet officials and psychological pressures from Soviet propagandists do succeed in dissuading some western correspondents from taking the risks of reporting vigorously on dissident affairs. At the other extreme, a few correspondents have developed close personal relations with some dissidents and, faced by a system that denies them the normal news access that is possible in other countries, have written heavily about dissenters.

Most Western correspondents, however, try to maintain a mix in their reporting that puts coverage of dissident affairs in some normal proportion to issues such as Soviet foreign relations, Communist Party pronouncements, cultural or economic news or East-West trade. This often causes impatience among dissidents, who feel that their protests have more news value than Western reporters give them.

Officially, the Russians blame outsiders for exacerbating the problem and exaggerating its dimensions. At such times, Western correspondents come under heavy pressure to drop the story, "the dissidents are unimportant," Soviet officials insist to reporters. "Why do you pay such attention to them?"

"If they are so unimportant," experienced reporters reply, "why do you pay such attention to them?"

The Chief Has a Word For It

By BRUCE HANDLER

The Washington Post

RIO DE JANEIRO — An unlikely folk hero has emerged here as a champion of plain speaking and an enemy of bureaucratic doubletalk. He is Mario Juruna, 39, a chief of the Xavante Indian tribe, who—unlike most people in Brazil — refuses to be beaten down by the official runaround.

The chief's words are being cited in newspapers and on television as pearls of logic and succinctness. The Xavante leader, who wears a piece of bone through his ear and who comes from the remote western state of Mato Grosso, became a media figure as a result of a recent journey he made to Brasilia, the capital, to petition the government for supplies for his tribe.

Every time a government bureaucrat went into the "we're-doing-everything-possible" and "you-must-appreciate-our-position" routines, Juruna would whip out a tape recorder, to make sure he did not miss a word of what he was being told. Then the chief would carefully reply, many times using the Brazilian Portuguese slang expression "papo furado," which means "bull ——."

An official in the Planalto Palace, Brazil's White House, branded Chief Juruna a "radical." The head of the federal Indian agency called him "tricky." But Brazilian news media see the straight-talking Indian as an illuminating example of an ordinary citizen rightfully seeking satisfaction from the government.

The Rio newspaper O Globo noted editorially that Juruna wouldn't have had to take a tape recorder to government offices were it not for the "climate of distrust" surrounding many Brazilian public officials. Jornal do Brasil, another important Rio paper, has taken to using the subheadlines "Juruna Understands" on news items dealing with official government pronouncements that make sense and those that do not.

Pasquim, satirical weekly which often criticizes the authoritarian, military-run government here, splashed the Xavante chief's picture across its front page, with the caption: "The Brazilian who is right." This media exposure, in turn, has led to an incipient groundswell urging Juruna to go into politics.

Here are some examples of Chief Juruna's native wisdom:

Federal Indian agency official: "Am I correct in inferring that you're saying that the interior minister doesn't understand anything about Indians?"

Juruna: "But he doesn't. He's ignorant. He needs to learn about Indian customs."

Official: "But the minister does understand. He's there to help you. And he's helping me so I can help you."

Juruna: "I want the government to help Indians. I want the government to build schools and hospitals for Indians. The federal Indian agency is supposed to help Indians — not civil servants."

Official (upon being requested to provide ammunition for the Xavantes' hunting rifles): "I've told you over and over. We don't have the money."

Juruna: "Why?"

Official: "Because we don't."

Juruna: "Well, then the ammunition factory better close down. If there's no money for ammunition for Indians, there can't be any money for ammunition for the army and the police."

Official: "Besides, bullets are destructive."

Juruna: "That's right. They kill. But don't you think Indians should defend themselves?"

Official: "That's what the police are for."

Juruna: "The police only arrest poor people."

Although Chief Juruna maintained his pride and self-respect during his bureaucratic travels in Brasilia, he did not get the supplies — ammunition, blankets and boots — he originally had sought for his tribe.

Nor, despite an 8½ hour wait in the Planalto Palace, did he get to talk to Brazil's President Ernesto Geisel, as he had hoped.

So Juruna set out for the long trip back to Mato Grasso. But he promised to return to Brasilia soon, to try once more to get the government to give him what he says the Xavantes need and want.

Meanwhile, Juruna's easily understood words live on in the over-bureaucratized "civilized" part of Brazil. Newspapers are still reprinting what the chief said on his departure from the capital:

"In my tribe, anybody can talk to the chief. There is no bureaucracy. A man's word is his word. Here in the city, there is no such thing as a man's word. What there is, is 'papo furado.'"

Pollution Control: Auto Firms Lag

By WILLIAM STEVENS

DETROIT — As Leonard Woodcock tells it, the question came up in a conversation between him and President Carter some time before Carter's inauguration. The president-elect and the head of the United Automobile Workers were talking about whether the American auto companies could meet tougher pollution-control standards for cars more rapidly than they have been doing.

"Leonard," Carter asked, "why can't they do it? Volvo did it."

Carter's question, with all its implications, is one of many on the subject of auto-exhaust fumes that are being asked afresh in Detroit and Washington. Among them, as Congress begins to hold hearings on the subject, are the following:

- How far has the cleanup of automobile emissions progressed since the Clean Air Act was passed in 1970?
- How much further is it necessary to go to protect the public health?
- Is the technology available to get there?
- If not, when will it be?
- What will it cost, in consumer dollars and possible sacrifice of fuel economy?

What Volvo has done provides a technological focus for the debate. The Swedish auto maker last fall began selling cars in California that are equipped with an advanced exhaust-cleansing device called a "three-way catalyst." It is enabling the cars, at least during the early miles of their lives, to fulfil the stringent federal emissions standards that must be met next fall by all cars sold in the United States.

The American auto makers are trying to develop their own versions. But although General Motors and Ford plan to install three-way catalysts on a very few cars next fall, the device is not yet proved in practice. So the Big Four all say flatly that they cannot meet next fall's standards, and are preparing to sell "illegal" cars then.

What to do about this is the most immediate issue facing Congress. It is considered virtually certain that some reprieve, perhaps a year, will be granted, although there is sentiment in Washington for imposing fines on the companies as the price of delay.

Carter's interest in this catalyst appears not to have flagged. But he does not want improved air quality at the expense of fuel economy and auto-industry jobs.

Skylarks Thriving On Airport Fields

Air travellers setting down at Victoria Airport last Saturday after a hop over from Europe might have been excused an uneasy feeling, on leaving the terminal, that they really hadn't left home.

Most of them wouldn't have been able to put a finger on just what it was that brought on this sense of familiarity and probably shrugged off the feeling as just another manifestation of jet-lag.

But some, with an eye and an ear for such things, might have caught the bubbling notes of song drifting down out of a blue February sky. They might even have been able to pick out, against the blue vault, the tiny, fluttering, black speck that was responsible for the joyful music — but this would have required something better than average sight.

Or, lacking the eye and ear for such subtleties, the less-observant traveller might have noticed the glossy black birds, gathered in noisy concert, on the green grass nearby.

Either way, the discovery of these birds — one a Skylark, the others, Starlings — should have been enough to make most European travellers feel right at home at Victoria's airport, because, despite having travelled half-way 'round the world, these first birds they had encountered in the New World were likely to have been the same species they had last seen before leaving home. Both Starlings and Skylarks are as common around European airports — or maybe more common — as they are here.

But Victoria's airport is unique in this respect. Where most international airports in North America could lay claim to a Starling or two on the premises, no other can claim both Starling and Skylark.

Just how many of the hundreds of travellers from their respective old countries will be aware of this connection with home, as they bustle through the commotion of Customs and meeting old friends and relatives, I cannot say, but the thought that it might occur to a few came to me last weekend as I stood at the end of Canora Road and watched and listened to the performances of several Skylarks.

Victoria International Airport, despite its heavy air traffic, is still the best place on the Saanich Peninsula to see and hear these renowned songsters. And while their numbers have been dwindling elsewhere on the Peninsula in the face of urban sprawl, they maintain a healthy, thriving community on the broad, open fields of the airport.

On any bright day, from now until late summer, their bright, bubbling songs will be part of the usual hubbub of engine noises of a busy airport. They can be heard from several vantage points, most of them offering temporary relief from aircraft noises, around the airport. My favorites are the aforementioned pair at the terminal and at the north end of Canora Road, but anywhere along Mills Road, on the north side of the airport, can be just as productive.

The Skylarks of Victoria's airport, like those of any European airport where they have set up housekeeping, seem to have established a detente with the aircraft that share their air space. If aware of the passing machines — and it would be difficult for them not to be — the Skylarks give no indication that they are concerned, going about their daily routines with monumental indifference.

Skylarks owe their place in the hearts of men to their song. Poets have exalted it, composers have emulated it, enthralled both by its beauty and by the mystery of its presentation — usually from on high and from some unseen throat.

But if you're a birdwatcher as well as a listener, something else about the Skylark is sure to capture your attention before long — the spectacular aerial finale to that remarkable song.

To see this requires some patience, good eyes and, most of all, a supple neck. All are needed first to find the bird, then to stay with it until the song is over; and then to follow it as — with wild and almost suicidal abandon— it plummets to the earth. This grand dive can be one clean slice through the air that ends with a sudden pull-out a few feet from the ground and a gentle landing — usually near the nest — or it can be a series of short, and less spectacular, swoops which break the dive into two or three units before the final plunge to earth.

If you have visitors from Europe this summer and if, during their stay, you notice that far-away look in their eyes — the one that usually means home is on their minds — hie them out to the airport and let the Skylarks cure their homesickness. Or maybe they'll make your visitors more homesick than ever.

An Eight-Hour Day? What's That?

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

There's no such thing as an eight-hour work day for the men of the fisheries patrol vessel Laurier.

Capt. Gordon Nelson says "it's 24 hours a day" routine until the relief crew comes aboard.

That routine will be even more demanding soon when the herring season opens. Every available government vessel will be standing by in case of disaster.

As in 1976 activities of vessels and aircraft that might be called on for search and rescue work have been correlated and listed to try and prevent a repeat of the disastrous 1975 season when 16 fishboats sank, claiming 14 lives.

Nelson hopes the precautions won't encourage fishermen to be foolhardy. He doesn't want fishermen taking unnecessary risks because they know there are rescue ships ready.

Aboard Laurier, he hauls out a picture of a herring fishboat, so laden with cargo the freeboard is almost non-existent.

"He (the fisherman) knows what he has to do but it's pretty hard to deal with greed. That's what makes the herring fishery so hazardous. Coupled with bad weather, they only have about six weeks to get their share. Last year, I believe, something in excess of $60 million was mad, roughly 85,000 tons."

CAPT. NELSON
. . . please, no greed

Tucked in at her Wharf Street berth, Laurier gives little indication of her age. Her paintwork is spic and span. Inside, every inch of wood and brass gleams.

But she is an elderly workhorse, having been built in a Quebec shipyard in 1936. Originally she was an RCMP patrol boat on the East Coast.

First officer Harry Connor reports the 14-man crew takes pride in keeping the Laurier ship-shape and in Bristol-fashion, adding, "She's just the right age."

The Laurier's crew, with some exceptions, almost rival their ship in terms of seatime know-how. Between them they have 189 years of seatime, about 12½ years per man.

Fancy uniforms are not for them. Most of the officers haven't worn their gold-braided blues for years, keeping to the khaki issue at sea and "civvies" when in port.

"When you're sitting in a cabin and everything's going sideways — including the chair — you're not interested in a fancy uniform," says second engineer John Clerke.

Nelson and Connor, like many others, started their sea career as mess boys.

They and the rest of the crew are strangers to flag-waving. There are no crowds on hand when Laurier reaches home port.

But fishermen and other boaters who have received her help recognize Laurier as an integral part of the marine scene.

Herring Fishermen Put the Squeeze On

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union says it will go on strike at the start of the herring roe season Sunday unless herring tendermen get a contract with the British Columbia Fisheries Association.

Herring season for gillnetters starts Sunday afternoon if the amount of roe in the herring is at least nine per cent. The season may be delayed in some areas if the roe is less.

Season for seiners starts Tuesday.

The UFAWU has agreed to a herring contract, but will not sign if the tendermen, who unload the herring from boats, have not settled, union president Jack Nichol said Friday.

Jerry Spitz, a spokesman for the fisheries association, said non-union fishermen would likely take most of the herring if the union goes on strike.

Tendermen want a six-percent interim increase in pay received under terms of last season's contract. They also want an additional payment of $4 a ton for each tendering crew transferring herring on boats at sea.

Nichol said the $4-a-ton provision is part of the salmon agreement and the union feels it should apply to herring.

Spitz said that transfers of herring are done by a pump and the only manual labor is putting a hose in the hold and pushing a button.

He said tendermen are paid when they fork fish to another vessel, and noted that the provincial labor relations board denied tendermen the extra payments last year for pumping herring.

3 Years for Theft

A 28-year-old Duncan man has been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for six counts of breaking, entering and theft in the Duncan area earlier this month.

Michael Lorne Gwilt received the sentence Thursday after pleading guilty to all counts before provincial court Judge Stan Wardill.

Frank Linde, 22, of Duncan, and Frank Kraft, 23, of Penticton, charged in connection with some of the break-ins will appear in court Monday.

Tire Firms Drop Hazard Warranties

TORONTO (CP) — At least three major Canadian tire manufacturers have eliminated mileage provisions and warranties on road hazards for radial and non-radial tires.

The new warrants went into effect last month for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd., Toronto; Firestone Canada Ltd., Hamilton; and Goodrich B.F. Canada Ltd., Kitchener.

Uniroyal Ltd. of Toronto is expected to issue a similar warranty change March 1.

However, Canadians Tire Corp., Ltd. which originated the road-hazard coverage, plans to retain this warranty at least to the end of this year.

Industry spokesmen said the decision to drop road hazard clauses means that drivers will have to pay the full cost of repairing or replacing tires, even for a new tire punctured by glass or other objects on the highway.

"We felt it was unfair for the company to pay for a careless driver who cut open a tire on a curb," said Bob Bandy, head of customer relations for Goodyear. "The company has dropped coverage of things over which it has no control."

He said the policy was also unfair to good drivers because the cost "had to be passed on to them too in higher prices."

Bob Sheppard, manager of Uniroyal's tire marketing, compared tires with toasters in explaining the new warranty.

"If you damage a new toaster by dropping it on the floor, you wouldn't expect the company to give you another one free," he said.

"Why should tires be any different?"

Until 1977, some manufacturers had offered 35,000-to-40,000-mile warranties on top radial tires and tread-wear provisions on non-radials.

A spokesman for Goodrich said the new warranties do not mean the tires are not good for 40,000 with proper maintenance.

"We're just using a different system of measurement."

Ed Christopher, Firestone's service manager, said the new warranty is more generous to the consumer.

"Some warranties were good for only 180 days," he said. Now consumers are covered for a full year."

Under the new warranties, radials that are faulty in workmanship or materials will be replaced free for the first 12 months or within the first 25 per cent of tire wear. After that, replacement costs will be on a pro rata basis.

Similarly, non-radials faulty in workmanship or materials will be replaced free during the first 10 per cent of tread wear.

Journalists To Police Seal Hunt?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Swiss conservationist Franz Weber Friday began recruiting journalists to police the annual sealhunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence when no one took his offer of $400,000 to finance a fake fur industry in Newfoundland.

Part of the plan calls for use of helicopters in tracking sealing operations to the floes, where the seal pups are killed for their white pelts. This year's quota, set at 170,000 pelts, is up from last year's 130,000.

The hunt is scheduled to begin in mid-March.

"I waited until 2 a.m. to see if they would take the money. No answer came so it's full steam ahead with the expedition instead," Weber said.

Youth Against Make-Work: MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Young people face a scandalous rate of unemployment and are fed up with government make-work programs, says Paul Dick, Progressive Conservativt spokesman on youth.

"They no longer want government handouts in 14-week programs," Dick Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton) told the Commons.

During debate on proposed new unemployment insurance legislation, Dick, 36, said unemployed youth in Canada "do not want these band-aid programs although they'll take advantage of them while they're still around."

He referred specifically to the government's latest make-work program, Young Canada Works, and to a recent announcement that the number of manypower offices at university camupses will be increased by 17 to a total of 87.

"What they really want is a career opportunity, full-time jobs with an opportunity for advancement . . . not necessarily a high paying job."

At last count there were about 400,000 youths between the ages of 14 and 24 in the labor force without any job. "That's absolutely ludicrous," he said.

Dick said fewer than 10 per cent of university graduates get jobs through campus manpower offices.

Putting the onus on the government to stimulate job creation through economic measures, Dick said young people regard make-work programs as "a ripoff, a waste of the taxpayer's money."

French Arm St. Pierre, Miquelon?

OTTAWA (CP) — Leonard Jones, independent MP for Moncton, says he is worried France may be building up its military power on its colonial islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Further, he said in an interview Friday, he believes France is engaging in "improper" activities in supporting French-language educational, information and consular activities in his home province of New Brunswick. About 30 per cent of the province's population of 660,000 are French-speaking.

Jones, a former Moncton mayor who was expelled from the Progressive Conservative party in 1974 for opposing official bilingualism, elaborated in a telephone interview on questions he raised in the Commons.

He posed a series of written questions about aid from France to French-language Acadian institutions in New Brunswick.

He also asked whether the Canadian Forces are conducting "investigations and surveillance . . . with respect to a possible military build-up on St. Pierre and Miquelon," two tiny islands with a population of 5,200.

The government's answer to that was a blunt "no."

Jones said later that he understands from news reports that France is extending the airport runway on St. Pierre and is "putting in a bunch of facilities." Work is also under way on St. Pierre harbor installations..

Apart from a possible military threat, Jones said he is also concerned about the implications of the buildup for "fishing problems."

Loan Sharks 'In Every Bar'

OTTAWA (CP) — The head of the Montreal police loan shark squad said Friday organized criminals have set up loan sharks in nearly every tavern in that city, ready to lend money freely and use threats of violence to collect it at interest rates running to more than 1,000 per cent.

Det.-Capt. Henri Marchessault, of the Montreal Urban Community Police, said police in other large cities are only beginning to realize the extent of the problem and have begun to fight it.

He told the Commons social affairs committee, now reviewing credit legislation to provide new mechanisms to halt loan sharks, that about 80 per cent of the borrowers are low-income people who often find they suddenly need money to take care of "accidents that occur in everyday life."

"The shylocking system draws the largest portion of its criminal profits from a section of society which lives already on the margin of poverty, if not total misery," he said in a brief to the committee.

"The main effect of this is to perpetuate this poverty, to accentuate it and, in too many cases, to contribute in a very definite way to the increase in the crime rate."

He said his 14-man squad, set up in 1973, has found that two organized groups control the loan sharks in two separate territories in Montreal. In the background are those who bankroll the operation. The lenders are often former bank robbers, counterfeiters and other petty criminals who put out the money on the street.

WHITTOME'S
The History Makers.

Meet part of the experienced professional Real Estate team at the Royal Oak office of J.H. Whittome & Co. Ltd.—where integrity, service and the human touch are a tradition.

Cathy Atkins
Originally from Glasgow, Cathy has lived in Saanich for 15 years, and is a skilled, highly trained Real Estate consultant.

"I like helping people find a house that they like and enjoy living in." A Saanich homeowner with a young family, Cathy and Brian Brown work together as a team: "We help each others' clients, and present the viewpoints of a man and a woman on a particular house or piece of property.

Brian Brown
A Victoria resident since 1937, and a veteran of 32 years in the Navy, Brian joined Whittome's in 1971. He is involved in residential and land sales throughout greater Victoria.

"I live in a condominium and customers who want to consider condominiums can deal with a man who lives in one. I like the challenge of meeting different types of people and satisfying their real estate requirements. To me, the job is not done until it is done well."

Wilf Davis F.R.I., R.I.(B.C.)
Born in Victoria "behind the tweed curtain", Wilf retired from the Airforce in 1961, and in 1964 joined Whittome's. A Fellow of the Real Estate Institute of Canada and Treasurer of the local chapter of R.E.I.C., Wilf possesses very special skills in appraisal, land development, real estate law and accounting.

"It's important to me to gain the confidence of customers and stick with them over the years. I've developed my clientele with a view to being in business a long time."

Clifford Stretch
Born in Alberta, the son of a pioneer, Cliff came to Victoria in 1954 after many years of experience in Real Estate in Edmonton and the Peace River country. A highly qualified appraiser, he has been involved in the business since 1941, and is frequently brought in as an advisor for companies, individuals and church groups. He is a past Director of the Victoria Real Estate Institute.

"I love the country. Lands are my special interest. I travel all over the Island on behalf of my clients."

Home Ownership Savings Plan—

Two ways you can save for a home or home furnishings with tax-free dollars.

1. Savings Option. Contribute as little or as much as you like, up to your maximum allowable contribution limit ($1,000 a year for individuals, $2,000 a year for husband and wife). The interest rate is set monthly and will be at least equal to the Bank's non-chequable savings rate.

2. Fixed Rate Option. This plan offers a guaranteed rate of return on money invested for fixed terms of 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 years. Minimum and subsequent deposits must be at least $500.

Tax-saving deadline:
March 1st, 1977.

Retirement Savings Plan—

Two ways to save dollars now while you save for retirement.

1. Savings Option. There is no minimum contribution limit. Deposit as little or as much as you like, up to your maximum allowable contribution limit (contribution limits available at your nearest branch of Bank of B.C.) The interest rate is set every six months. This rate will be at least equal to the Bank's Five Year Certificate of Deposit rate at time of fixing.

2. Fixed Rate Option. The Fixed Rate Option offers a guaranteed rate of return for money invested for fixed terms of 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 years. Minimum and subsequent deposits must be at least $500. The interest rate is set at the issue date and fixed to maturity. For current rates, ask at your nearest branch of Bank of B.C.

Imasco: Tobacco Still No. 1

MONTREAL (CP) — It has been about seven years since Imasco Ltd. began its diversification program and today its gross sales are split about evenly between tobacco and other products and services.

But the company, formerly Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd., still derives almost 80 per cent of its profits from tobacco. "Tobacco is a mature industry and it was throwing off a cash flow that certainly exceeded the needs for development," Imasco president Paul Pare said in a recent interview.

Pare said the company was rather cautious in its early diversification into consumer goods and services, but has lately changed this policy to allow for investments with a "higher-level risk."

The latest venture was a $15-million investment in a new preferred stock issue of Hardee's Food Systems Inc. of Rocky Mount, N.C.

"We have for a long time been impressed with the growth rate of the fast food industry in North America," Pare explained.

"When we learned that Hardee's, which we had been following, were themselves looking for the knd of finacial support we wanted to give, we had a meeting here, formed a negotiating committee, and the agreement was reached about a month ago."

Pare has been president of Imasco since 1969.

While Hardee's is not a giant on the scale of McDonald's Corp. or Burger King Corp., it is well known in the southeastern United States where it operates.

Tax Officials Look Askance At 'Free' RRSP Wrinkles

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

On the surface it looks like some kind of money machine.

It's a legal tax fiddle.

It works this way. A person takes out a $3,000 registered retirement saving plan and is entitled to a tax rebate of $1,000 cash.

But he puts $2,000 of the RRSP in his wife's name (she doesn't work) in February and she takes it out in April.

By April he has his $1,000 tax rebate, $2,000 cash from the RRSP plus $1,000 in his own RRSP.

His $3,000 in February has become $4,000 in April. And if he borrowed the $3,000 from a friend in February he can hand it back in April because he has $3,000 in cash in front of him as well as $1,000 in the bank.

While it is legal, it is not what the tax people had in mind at all.

In fact they will take a close look at some of these in-and-outers when they make their year-end audits.

Whether the tax claim will be disallowed at that time depends on a number of factors. Revenue Canada says taxpayers can legally withdraw their RRSPs at any time but if it is obviously just a tax manoeuvre then Revenue Canada has the power to disallow the rebate claim.

"Each case will be judged on its individual merits," says Betty Newton, information director for the local office of Revenue Canada.

If the tax department does question one of these manoeuvres, it will take into consideration how long the money was in the plan and what purpose the cash is being put to. If the wife can show the money was needed for some family emergency then this strengthens the claim for a tax rebate.

If, on the other hand, Vevenue Canada is convinced the money was pulled out only as a tax dodge, the government has the power to disallow the tax rebate claim, although all actions taken by the taxpayer are technically within the law.

It is all a strange situation, especially for the local tax department, which is being asked to audit a legal manoeuvre to see if Ottawa's generosity is being abused.

(Naturally the tax shuffle works the identical way for a family where the wife is working and the husband is at home. She can put an RRSP in her husbands name and he can withdraw the funds and return the money to her.)

The optimum amount for an in-and-out RRSP is $2,190 because that is the amount of income an individual can earn in one year completely tax free. This is based on the personal exemption of $2,090 plus the standard medical exemption of $100. The person taking in $2,190 pays no tax at all.

While the tax manoeuvre looks like a sure winner, Revenue Canada does extract a measure of revenge through a regulation wich removes the married exemption for a person whose spouse earns $2,190 or more (through income or an RRSP).

This cuts the profit in half, to something in the neighborhood of $500 unless the taxpayer finds a countering deduction.

Still, it beats working for a a living.

Alcan

Alcan Aluminum Ltd. has reported consolidated net income of $44,007,000 or $1.14 a share, for the year ended Dec. 31, 1976, compared with $35 million or $1.01 a share in 1975. Sales amounted to $2,585,426,000 in 1976, compared with $2,229,817,000 in 1975.

The Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd., Alcan's principal operating subsidiary, reported a final audited loss of $17.2 million, a change from the $13.9 million reported in the preliminary earnings statement.

This change does not affect the parent company's consolidated earnings, Alcan said in its annual report.

The report said a 5½-month strike at three of its Quebec smelters and a three-month strike at a fourth had a "heavy financial impact" on its 1976 results.

The company will expand and rebuild its Quebec smelter system "when conditions permit," but not until the company has discussed the plans with the Quebec government, the report added.

The company released no further details on the proposed project.

Petrofina

Petrofina Canada Ltd. reports net earnings of $22 million or $2.21 a share for the year ended Dec. 31, down from net earnings of $31.9 million or $3.20 a share for the corresponding period in 1975.

A company statement attributes lower earnings to excess capacity in eastern Canada, the small growth in Canadian demand for refined products and the federal government's "sharp curtailment" of refined products exports.

Sales were $502 million in 1976, compared with $399 million last year.

Pertrofina also reports fourth quarter net earnings of $11.1 million, up from $6.8 million for the corresponding quarter in 1975.

Gaz Metropolitain

Gaz Metropolitan Inc. has reported net income of G$11,146,000 for 1976 after payment of preferred dividends.

In 1975, the company reported net income of $8,599,000. A company statement said the increase was due to more customers, cold weather and deferment of fixed charges on gas costs in an agreement with TransCanada PipeLines Ltd.

Revenue from gas sales was $151,357,000 in 1976, up from $113,013,000 the previous year because of higher gas costs and greater demand.

Resurgent Street Gangs More Sophisticated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — They have names like Roman Kings, Brooklyn Tomahawks, Baby Macaronies, Joly Stompers, Savage Skulls, Black Assassins, Wah Ching and the Seven Immortals.

They are youth gangs, and some senators say they are bigger, better organized and better armed than ever before.

A report released Friday by the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee, headed by Sen. Birech Bath (D—Ind.) said they "signal a resurgence of a phenomenon many observers believed had passed in the 1950s.

" . . . it has become apparent that the youth gangs are back and they are bigger, better organized and far better armed than their predecessors."

A section on modern youth gangs was included, in the report which said that violence and vandalism in schools has become so serious that "for a growing number of students and teachers the primary task is no longer education but preservation."

The report said most violence and vandalism are unorganized and random on a nationwide basis but in cities and suburbs suffering a resurgence of gang violence, "the schools are also feeling the effects of the return of the armies of the streets.

"In some areas, the impact on the educational process has been devastating," the report said.

Gang activities appear centred in several large cities and certain suburban areas. Among the cities mentioned in the report are New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco where three to five major organizations are fighting for power and influence in Chinatown.

The report said several larger urban areas are entering a "new gang era, which some observers believe is more potentially dangerous than any of the past periodic episodes with street gangs."

The report said the emerging gangs of the mid-1970s do not resemble those of the 1950s which held "rumbles" at prearranged places to solve problems among themselves and claimed "turf" to keep other gangs out.

The new gangs not only keep others out but make "intensive efforts" to control many of the activities in the community.

The report said ". . . these gangs engage in a wide variety of planned criminal activities including protection rackets, robberies of business and homes, and for, at least some gangs, involvement in drug traffic.

"In this sense, therefore, the modern criminally oriented youth gang resembles more the model and aims of organized syndicates than they do the gangs of the '50s."

SECRETARY - TREASURER
SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 61 (GREATER VICTORIA)

The Position

School District No. 61 (Greater Victoria) requires a Secretary-Treasurer to fill a vacancy effective June 30, 1977. The position, which carries overall responsibility for business affairs in the district, includes such functions as administration of the budgeting process, supervision of business division personnel, and development of sound business policies, systems and practices. It involves a special advisory relationship to the Board of School Trustees.

The Business Division includes General Accounting, Data Processing, Purchasing/Supplies, and Personnel. As head of the Business Division, the Secretary-Treasurer is a member of the senior administrative team responsible to the Superintendent of Schools.

The District

The School District accommodates approximately 26,700 pupils, employs 2,050 persons and has an annual budget of $42 million.

The Candidate

Prospective candidates should have had at least 5 years successful administrative experience in education and/or business. Academic training in business administration, accounting or finance and economics is a necessary prerequisite. A breadth of perspective, effective human relation skills, and an adaptability to a team style of management are essential qualities. The position will be attractive to persons presently in the $30,000 plus salary range.

Application

Applications, including references and a comprehensive resume of qualifications and experience should be forwarded no later than April 4, 1977 to:

Carter Tried to Put a Lid On CIA Money to Hussein

WASHINGTON (AP) — Describing Jordan's King Hussein as "our most reliable source" of information in the Middle East, President Carter told U.S. congressional leaders he had sought to discourage the Washington Post from disclosing CIA payments to Hussein, congressional sources said Friday.

In his account to the congressional leaders last Tuesday, Carter confirmed the CIA payments to Hussein, something he has declined to do publicly.

At the meeting with congressional leaders of both parties, Carter was quoted as saying he had looked into the arrangement with Hussein and found "nothing whatever wrong with it."

A House of Representatives member present at the leadership meeting said Carter had reported that money covertly channelled through Hussein had gone for effective intelligence gathering work and for efforts to reduce tensions in the Middle East, but that the payments obviously could not be disclosed.

Before they were disclosed, they were stopped.

The account of Carter's effort to at least postpone disclosure, and of his defence of the payments, came from a memorandum dictated by a congressional leader for his own files after the Tuesday meeting.

It quoted Carter as saying he had asked Ben Bradle, executive editor of The Post, and reporter Bob Woodward, to come to the White House after he learned of the story.

POT CARRIER SINKS

SAN JUAN (AP) — A cargo ship carrying 50 bales of marijuana in its hold burned and sank Friday north of Puerto Rico, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

Authorities said the sinking of the 125-foot ship Calabres ended five days of following the vessel from the east coast of Florida into the Caribbean.

The ship's captain and 23 crew members, all unidentified, were being brought to Puerto Rico aboard two coast guard cutters.

"They are our prisoners," said a coast guard spokesman. He said the group will be given to U.S. customs or narcotics officials.

The fire broke out early Friday, 170 miles north of here. Three coast guard firefighting parties boarded the vessel and tried unsuccessfully to put out the blaze.

The marijuana was believed to be part of a large marijuana smuggling distribution network between the U.S. and Latin America, the coast guard said.

Ten bales of the marijuana surfaced after the Calabres sank, authorities said, and were destroyed.

Rabin Party Set To Concede Land

Tel Aviv Times News Services

TEL AVIV — The ruling Labor party, fighting to maintain its dominance in Israeli politics, has called for territorial concessions to Egypt, Syria and Jordan in return for peace.

The Labor position, representing a toned-down stand towards the question of a Middle East peace, was adopted in a series of resolutions passed at the close of a four-day convention Friday by the party of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The dvelopment could lead to a walkout by former Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, 61, who started his political career in the Labor party more than 20 years ago.

Dayan fiercely opposed any change in labor's 1973 election platform, which offered "territorial compromise" without specific mention of Jordan or the West Bank, captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

But after a stormy debate, the convention endorsed resolutions supporting "maintenance of political efforts to achieve lasting peace with Egypt, Jordan and Syria, with readiness for territorial compromise with every one of them."

The Palestine Libera tion Organization (PLO), however, said today in Cairo it will not go to the Geneva peace table as part of a Jordanian delegation and will not alter its demand for the dismantling of Israel.

Farouk Kaddoumi, head of the PLO's political department in an interview with the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram, cast doubt on the prospects for achieving two possible compromises suggested during U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance's recent peace mission in the Middle East.

Pair Survives Four Days on $6-a-Day Raft

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two men who spent nearly four days drifting in the Atlantic after their helicopter crashed credit their survival to a $6-a-day rented life raft the pilot insisted on taking along.

"I told Lee we were only going to be in the air 20 minutes, but he insisted we get the raft and made me put a life vest on," William Bozman, 35, said late Friday after he and Leland Cranmer, 30, were rescued.

They had been missing since Tuesday, when they left Fort Lauderdale on the final leg of a trip from Sparrows Point, Md., to Bimini in The Bahamas for some fishing. Cranmer rented the inflatable raft before they left.

Bozman told reporters at Cape Canaveral Hospital that the $305,000 Gazelle helicopter caught fire shortly after they left Fort Lauderdale.

He said the helicopter's blades provided lift that kept the aircraft from falling too fast. He said it was about 20 feet from the water when he jumped, taking the life raft with him.

"He (Cranmer) was right behind me," said Bozman.

Abortion Cutback

LONDON (Reuter) — After a bitter debate a bill that further restricts Britain's abortion law was approved in principle Friday by a Commons vote of 170 to 132. Sponsored by a group of backbenchers, the bill would shorten the period of pregnancy before abortion is allowed to 20 weeks from 28.

FLU KILLS FIVE

ATLANTA (AP) — A survey of state health departments has disclosed 20 cases of Reye syndrome resulting in at least five deaths, the U.S. Centre for Disease Control (CDC) said Friday. The CDC said earlier this month that it would survey state health officials because of an increase in influenza B type. Reye syndrome, which primarily effects children, is an ailment associated with flu and often is fatal.

EXPLICIT RAPE IN SCHOOL BOOK

KELOWNA (CP) — School board trustees decided Wednesday that a science-fiction book, This Perfect Day, is too mature for grade 12 students.

By a 4-to-2 vote, the Central Okanagan school board decided that the book will be taken from the grade 12 English course supplementary list after one parent complained.

Two of the six trustees read the book, and gave a formal report to the board, which voted on the basis of the report. The two who read the book split in their decision on its merit.

The book contains an explicit rape scene, sexual encounters and the liberal use of a four-letter word used to describe sexual activity.

"Although some of our high school students are mature enough to handle literature of this type, we have to acknowledge that we have sensitive, immature students to consider as well," said trustee Shirley Staley. "In the public school system, I cannot condone any action which could be considered to be undermining the morals of our youth.

"Our schools cannot and must not lead society," she added. "We are to reflect society."

Trustee George Cook, who voted for retaining the book, said that it is not the school board's responsibility to censor reading material.

Employee Fitness Programs Urged

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Federal cabinet minister Iona Campagnolo Friday urged employers to get themselves and their employees "off their collective butts" by providing employee fitness programs.

Mrs. Campagnolo, the minister of state for fitness and amateur sport, told delegates to an Industrial Relations Management Association conference that fitness programs "are good not only for the physical health of the company, but also for its economic health."

The minister, MP for Skeena, said it is estimated that more than $9 billion is lost in time and salaries each year because of ill health resulting from lack of physical fitness.

In 1973, about 745 million hours of production were lost through sickness, tardiness, fatigue and casual absenteeism, more than eight times as many days as lost through strikes, she said.

"Canadians are unfit," she told the 300 delegates.

"Our bodies are not especially active. We tend to develop our activities into a lifestyle at work which does not challenge us, does not burn up energy and consequently, all those calories we have taken in at lunch over a beer and hamburger.

"If we are to become a fit people, we must accept our lot and become more aware and re-assess our sedentary lifestyle.

Second Chemical Plant Back

SQUAMISH (CP) — FMC Chemicals Ltd. will be back in operation here today after members of Local 5 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada voted Friday to accept a settlement recommended by the union.

The company is the second of three B.C. chemical plants to settle strikes which closed the plants Jan. 31.

Union spokesman Frank Jennings said a large majority of the 100 per cent who voted approved the settlement reached with the help of a provincial mediator.

It is similar to the one that ended a strike last week at Erco industries in North Vancouver, he said.

The one-year contract at Erco provided a seven-percent wage increase — 4.3 per cent retroactive to Dec. 1, 1976, and 2.7 per cent subject to federal Anti-Inflation Board approval. Jennings said the major issue was the introduction of a dental plan.

Hooker Chemicals, also of North Vancouver, staffed by members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, Local 9-967, remains closed with no new talks scheduled.

$3,000 Back Rent Award Still Unpaid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eighteen months ago, Elizabeth Davies was awarded more than $3,000 because her landlord had overcharged her rent, but she still hasn't received a penny of that money.

Davies rented a house in the city's east end in April, 1974, for $335 a month. She was the first tenant of a new owner, Vivara Industries Ltd.

Two months later, she discovered that the previous owner had rented the house for $135 a month. Because provincial rent controls were in effect, she had the legal right to deduct the overcharge from her rent without facing eviction.

In September, 1974, she began deducting $10 a month for the next 14 months while she and Joseph Pal of Vivara began a long disagreement that led in October, 1975, to a hearing before Chris Considine, an officer of the rent review commission.

He held that Vivara had over-charged Davies and ordered Pal to pay Davies $3,035.60. Pal appealed to the commission itself which reduced the amount to $2,625.

However, the commission did not order Pal to pay Davies directly. Instead, she was to go to court to get the money. Because she had now moved out of the house, she not continue deducting from her rent.

pealed the commission's rul-

On Feb. 13, 1977, Judge Lee Skipp ruled in county court that because Pal had appealed the commission's ruling after he had also appealed the order of the hearing officer, Davies' case could not be heard since her suit violated the appeal process.

However, the judge also observed that the commission, "for reasons best known to itself," did not order Vivara to pay Davies.

James Patterson, a commissioner and manager of the rent review commission, said the commission did not order Pal to pay Davies directly because such power is not explicitly granted in the Landlord and Tenant Act.

Only the right to deduct and the right to proceed in court are specified.

Davies can't proceed in court until Pal's right of appeal is exhausted. His right of appeal has stretched into 18 months of delay following two hearings, both of which Davies won.

"I have two orders — one ordering that money be paid, and another one saying money was owed me, but no order that it be repaid," Davies said.

"I went through all the work of getting the evidence, and now I find the orders are not worth the paper they're printed on."

Kamloops CUPE on Jobs Although Strike Legal

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Civic workers, members of local 900 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, remained on the job Friday despite expiry of 72-hours trike notice served on the city Tuesday.

Union business agent Bill Ferguson would not rule out the possibility that the 350 workers might walk off the job at any time.

"Our policy will have to be that we're not going to reveal our strategy."

Ken Boothe, chairman of the city's bargaining agent, the Okanagan Mainline Municipal Labor Relations Association, said no retaliatory action will be taken until a walkout takes place.

The association says it will lock out workers in all 10 member-municipalities if workers in one municipality strike.

The union has rejected a six per cent wage offer and says the association is attempting to take away benefits negotiated in previous contracts.

BURNABY (CP) — Students at Simon Fraser University have expressed unanimous opposition to any possible tuition fee increases in September.

About 500 students approved three motions Thursday calling for over-all strategy to fight proposed fee increases.

They met at the annual general meeting of the Simon Fraser Student Society.

Students at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver also have said they would oppose increased fees.

Simon Fraser undergraduate students now pay $214 a semester.

Communication Gap

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — There is a need for better communication between professional foresters and the public, Dr. Peter Pearse said Friday.

He told 200 professional foresters here that in his own royal commission report on the British Columbia forest industry an effort was made to eliminate technical terms and abbreviations.

"I first realized how serious this problem of understanding; forester's jargon was when I found out that Richard Campbell, the commission's secretary, thought drag scarification referred to some sort of indecent act performed by a transvestite."

Although Dr. Pearse avoided directly discussing; his report he said "very substantial and beneficial changes" came after previous royal commissions on the forest industry in 1910 and 1946.

Hospital Gets Funds

VJNCOUVER (CP) — Approval to begin the first phase of a major five-year development program at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver was announced Friday by Health Minister Bob McClelland. The $21 million plan calls for renovations to existing; buildings, replacement of inadequate beds plus operating; rooms, a new radiology department and an ambulatory care area.

Fire Kills Man

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — An unidentified man was killed in a house fire here Friday. It was the first fire death in two years in this central interior city.

Awards Top $43,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty awards totalling $43,437 were given to British Columbia residents during; January under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act, the Workers' Compensation Board announced Friday. The largest award was $5,608 to a 58-year-old Vancouver man who was attacked and beaten by another man.

Gas Tax Repeal '$6M Giveaway'

The B.C. government's repeal of a tax arrangement it made with the federal government amounts to a $6 million giveaway to multi-national natural gas companies, Opposition leader Dave Barrett said Friday.

Berrett made the statement during debate in the legislature on a bill called the British Columbia Payment to Canada of Federal Income Tax on Behalf of Natural Gas Producers Repeal Act.

The legislation passed second reading Friday by a vote of 23 to 12, with Liberal leader Gordon Gibson voting with the government. Conservative leader Scott Wallace was absent.

The bill would eliminate an arrangement that has the provincial government paying income tax to the federal government on behalf of natural gas producers.

The scheme came into effect in 1974 when the federal government set a "deemed value" on the wellhead price of gas, on which they would collect tax, which was well above what producers in B.C. were actually receiving for theilr gas.

At the time, B.C. producers were receiving about 30 cents for a thousand cubic feet from ahe B.C. Petroleum Corporation, which, in turn, was selling it at prices at least double, with profits going into provincial coffers.

The federal government collected tax from both the provincial government and from the gas companies.

The legislation under debate Friday would let the gas companies pay their own taxes. A 30-cent-a-thousand-cubic-foot increase to the companies granted last year is conditional on the bill being passed.

According to Energy Minister Jack Davis, the increase is necessary to offset increased taxes to the companies. He told reporters the firms would make no more profit under the arrangement.

But Barrett and Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said that if the 30 cents, only six cents will go towards the increased taxes, the remainder will be pocketed by the companies in profits.

Barrett said this amounts to a $6-million-a-year giveaway to the companies.

George Lechner, chairman of the B.C. Petroleum Corp., said in a telephone interview from Vancouver on Friday that the companies would undoubtedly have more disposable income available through the arrangement, but he said it wasn't fair to call it profit.

He said the money would probably be reinvested by the companies in further development. Finance Minister Evan Wolfe and Davis said in the legislature that increased exploration would be a result of the bill.

Macdonald said the government is "throwing money lavishly at natural gas producers . . . in this bill we're seeing a return to the old give-away policies."

Under the new rates effective Jan. 1 1977, gas producers get 65 cents a thousand cubic feet for "old" gas and 85 cents for new gas.

The petroleum corporation buys the gas at that price, selling it to local consumers for about $1 a thousand cubic feet, and to United States customers for $1.94.

The corporation, through the government, now will pay no federal taxes.

Bob Keeps All $300 . . . Almost

VANCOUVER — Bob Neumann, a disabled construction laborer, said Friday that he will be allowed to keep all but $25 of the $300 he was paid in compensation for injuries he suffered in a mugging.

Neumann said the Vancouver Resources Board told him that his monthly handicapped allowance of $265 would be reduced by $5 for the next five months.

He was told that the $25 would be deducted because he spent that much of the $300 on car repairs.

"I can't really kick about this," said Neumann.

"It's better than having to pay back the whole $300."

Neumann's bureaucratic problem started two weeks ago when he was told he would lose at least one month's allowance to offset the $300 award for injuries suffered in a beating by two drunken youths last August.

ALLMAND
. . . bare-faced

WHITEHORSE — Indian Affairs Minister Warren Allmand was caught bare-faced Friday and it cost him $10.

He was arrested — on a charge of being beardless during Sourdough Rendezvous — shortly after he arrived by plane for a two-day visit.

Allmand paid his fine, then received a permit to remain beardless during his stay.

LOS ANGELES — Multimillionaire Robert McCulloch, who brought the chain saw to woodsmen and London Bridge to the Arizona desert, was found dead at his home Friday at age 66.

The cause of death was not given, but McCulloch had been under treatment for a heart condition for five years.

He and his wife, Barbara, had been married 42 years.

Starting with $2,500 borrowed from his father, McCulloch founded and made successes of a number of firms in engineering, oil, real estate development, aviation, publishing and other fields. He introduced the first one-man, gasoline-powered chain saw in 1948.

CAMP DAVID, Md. — The new grandfather was all smiles, holding his wife's hand and proclaiming the new baby resembled his daughter-in-law, not his son. The new grandfather was President Carter.

The newest member of the Carter family, James Earl Carter IV, was born at 8:41 p.m. EST Friday. He weighed seven pounds.

The parents are the president's son Chip and daughter-in-law Caron.

LIFETIME DRIVING BAN

POWELL RIVER (CP) — A coroner's inquest has recommended a lifetime driver's licence suspension for Neil George Butler, 21, of Powell River.

Butler was the sole survivor of a single-vehicle crash in which four young people — all residents of Powell River — were killed.

The coroner's jury ruled Thursday that the deaths were accidental but said Butler was negligent in the operation of the vehicle and had been driving with excessive speed. It then recommended the lifetime suspension.

One expert told the inquiry he estimated the car was travelling at 95 miles an hour south of here and slammed into an earthen bridge crossing a ditch. Other testimony was that the car could not safely negotiate the curve at a speed of more than 75 m.p.h.

Deaths Stayed

ATLANTA, (AP) — The executions of three Georgia prisoners have been delayed, one less than 24 hours before he was to die.

The U.S. Supreme Court told Georgia officials Friday to postpone the execution of Wilburn Dobbs, who had been scheduled to be electrocuted today. The court granted the stay pending Dobbs' formal appeal.

Bumps in the Night Stop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (Reuter) — The mysterious noises stopped Thursday night, as suddenly as they began, and the Hunsinger family, after almost a month of mental torture, finally got a night's sleep.

But Beth Hunsinger, 14, now steps lightly around her home, fearful of return of the strange banging in the walls.

"Sure, she's scared," said her father, Charles Hunsinger, "but so's everybody else around here."

The noises, like a fist beating on the walls of the modern two-storey, split-level home, started about one month ago, he told Reuters. Recently, they began to follow Beth around.

Blendon Township police have heard them and so have Franklin County sherrif's deputies but no one has an explanation.

"As far as we know, there's no human involved," said Hunsinger.

Just One More Elevator Ride, Yard Men Hope

By Mike Hughes

"You become very careful about what you buy because you can get caught pretty badly," says Ken Burgoyne who has been at Yarrows for 27 up and down years.

The veteran shipyard worker shows an empty building berth at Yarrows and his mind wanders to better times.

"We used to turn a barge out of here every 10 days," says Bert Sale, the shipyard's superintendent of steel.

"It only took eight and a half days to lay a keel.

"It was wonderful. We had lots of work and everybody enjoyed it."

But the good times are gone, and although images of past jobs, the huge log barges, ocean-going tugs and provincial ferries, float around in Sale's mind, there's no more on the horizon.

Now a combination of a world-wide shipping and shipbuilding recession and high wages has resulted in a drop in employment at the Esquimalt yard from about 900 last summer to less than 90 last week.

Those hardest hit are the workers who depend strictly on the shipyard for work, like the members of the boilermakers union, 45 per cent of whom are out of work.

Skilled workers, some of them trained at Yarrows are beginning to leave the city to take jobs in Alberta or other eastern cities.

A check of newspaper clippings reveals the elevator-like history of the yard with bursts of building activity followed by job doldrums.

This could be just another down period like others in the past but veterans at the shipyard say it is worse than other years and the difference this time is there is nothing in sight.

Yarrows general manager Don Challinor describes the situation as "a most distressing state of affairs."

He said in an interview that along with the shipyard's three building berths, the company's order books are empty "and the prospects for new shipbuilding construction are poor."

Union spokesman Jim McAvoy says the employees have seen similar dry periods in the past 10 years "but never down that low when we didn't have something coming right around the corner."

He said he has no doubt Yarrows will bounce back because there is always going to be a need for a large shipyard in Victoria but it is going to take concessions from union and management.

"In my opinion, there are some work practices at the shipyard that have been there for 40 years that are going to have to be looked at.

"But at the same time some of the company's bidding practices that haven't changed for 20 years are going to have to be changed."

He says the fact that Yarrows workers are the highest paid shipyard workers in North America and possibly the world, is not to blame for the current problems.

But Sale disagrees, saying Yarrows has priced itself out of the market.

"We've got the highest paid shipyard workers with the best conditions and no jobs," says Sale, who has been with Yarrows nearly 20 years.

But he qualifies that by saying it is wrong to blame the wages alone for what is happening, there are other worldwide factors.

Sale says one way to increase the productivity and cut down on the man-hours is to change the restrictive practices between unions and even within unions.

If the shipyard workers are going to survive they are going to have to rid themselves of the rigid, stringent rules which allow members of a union only to do certain types of work.

Ken Burgoyne, plate shop charge hand who has been with Yarrows for 27 years, agrees the high wages are a factor in Yarrows' problem but adds the workers are faced with the costs of living in Victoria.

"When you live here, you have to buy your groceries here and you have to buy a house at the going rate," he said.

Burgoyne says the present dull period is the worst it has been in the past four or five years.

He was alone with an apprentice in the plate shop on Thursday. When business is hot, there would be as many as 12 men working in the area.

"It's the kind of a job where you don't do much family planning," Burgoyne said.

"You become very careful about what you buy because you can get caught pretty badly."

Challinor says the company has been bidding against national and local competition "cutting our prices until it hurts and we are still left wanting."

He points out the hourly rate for shipyard workers in Ontario is $5.50, compared to $9.60 in Victoria. In Seattle the rate is $7.57 an hour.

Last month, Yarrows lost out on a bid for a contract on a dredge for the Cameroons. Collingwood Shipyards in Ontario won with a bid of $9.8 million, compared to Yarrows' estimate of $10.1 million.

"Imagine what we had to do to the profit and overhead to make that bid," Challinor says. "You can't accuse us of being too greedy.

"We are prepared to make sacrifices on profit and we are asking them (the employees) to show the same responsibility."

One problem, he says, is that the company is hamstrung with jurisdictional work practices "which can justify men standing around doing nothing.

"I would like to see our goal to be maximum productivity through efficient use of manpower by proper planning, communications and, above all, by elimination of wasteful work practices."

Challinor has been meeting with union representatives on the problem and further talks are scheduled.

The key to keeping the shipyard going is continuity of work, Challinor said, and this could be helped if the shipyard got more naval refit work.

On that note, Challinor confirms that the navy supply ship HMCS Provider is coming up for a major refit but that work won't be done until June and it is not certain that Yarrows will get the job.

He also points to a recommendation to the federal government last year from the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association for promotion of a deep-sea fleet of Canadian-owned and built ships.

"Such a policy would stimulate the shipbuilding industry throughout Canada, at the same time benefitting our strategic position and also our balance of trade."

He also suggested Canada embark on a policy similar to that in Brazil, whereby a certain percentage of Canadian export goods would be carried in Canadian ships.

This would provide shipyards with a long-range construction program instead of being in their present situation of living hand to mouth not knowing where the next order is coming from, he said.

Challinor says when the shipyard is going full tilt it pumps about $12 million into the local economy in wages and he can't understand why there is not more interest in what is taking place.

McAvoy, president of the Joint Shipyards Conference, which represents the 12 unions at the shipyard, says he doesn't believe the high wages are the reason for Yarrows plight.

He says the unions could go along with that if other yards in Canada and North America weren't having the same problems.

He says the dredge contract which went to Collingwood is proof that Yarrows, despite the high wages, is competitive with other companies.

McAvoy says it may be time for Yarrows to branch out more into different types of work which may not be connected with the marine end of things.

Also, he said, it may be time to take a look at breaking up the work force into specialized groups to become more competitive with the smaller shipyards in commercial work.

He said the two factors which have led the current situation are that the trade is just not there and the amount of competition has increased.

Walt Frederiksen, business manager of the boilermakers union, says the unions write letters to the federal government but nothing happens.

"We need help now," he says.

—Bill Halkett photos

An empty building berth at Yarrows attests to the shipyard's tough times. Images of past jobs are all the remaining workers have to console themselves because there isn't much on the horizon.

Ecologist Attacks Shoal Bay Group

A group of Oak Bay property owners was accused Friday night of stalling a Capital Regional District sewage disposal project "for their own convenience."

Dr. Jim Pojar, a plant ecologist, told a public meeting of environmentalists at the University of Victoria the group's actions threaten to despoil Trial Island and delaying the project, is costing taxpayers thousands of dollars.

He was referring to residents of Shoal Bay where a major pumping station is planned to push the output from the northeast trunk sewer to the Clover Point outfall.

They don't want the station at Shoal Bay and have suggested it be built on nearby Trial Island.

Pojar, who is with the provincial ecological Reserves branch, said Trial Island is a botanical gem, and a national heritage because it has rare and endangered plant species.

"Trial Island is Crown (public) property," he said. "It belongs to all the people of Greater Victoria."

"I consider it unethical for a small group of private land owners to obstruct the construction of a sewage system for their own convenience," he said.

"Are we going to sacrifice Trial Island for the convenience of a few property owners?" he asked.

Pojar also said delaying completion of the sewage disposal system is expensive for taxpayers.

"It's costing you thousands of dollars every week the project is delayed," he said.

Earlier, Adolf Ceska, a botanist at the University of Victoria, said it would be a mistake to build a pumping station on Trial Island because the island is unspoilt.

A member of the audience said the engineering firm which recomended the pumping station be installed on Trail Island conducted a "shallow" study.

"Indications are that it would be an expensive project," he said.

The meeting sponsored by the Greater Victoria Environmental centre and was attended by more than 100, including engineers and government representatives.

It was called to discuss endangered habitats, such as natural areas, farmlands and wetlands.

No Affront To Hartwig Intended

A Victoria Times' interview with city Ald. Ron McKenzie, published Feb. 22, quoted disparaging remarks by Ald. McKenzie regarding contractor and developer Hans Hartwig and the quality of his companies' workmanship and disregard of heritage values.

The Times' did not intend any disparagement of Hartwig's construction or development activities and regrets any embarrassment he may have suffered from the story.

Ask The Times

Q. I read a recent article in your paper that this is the year of the snake according to the Chinese calendar. Is it possible for you to publish a similar article (on the 12 signs of the Chinese calendar) or tell me where I can obtain such information? — V.M.

A. The Chinese calendar runs on a 60-year cycle with years grouped under an animal designation, totalling 12, with groups of years with an odd number alternating with groups having an even number so that the animal designation will be repeated every 12 years. Last year, for example, was a year of the dragon; 1975 was a year of the hare; next year will be a year of the horse, followed by a year of goat or sheep. Since 1972 the respective animal years have been rat, ox or bull, tiger, hare or rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep or goat, monkey, rooster, dog and pig.

Hospital Bids $1 Million Low

The low bid for construction of a 75-bed acute care addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital came in $1 million under the estimated cost Friday.

Hospital board chairman Jim Cumming said today he is "delighted" and expects the contractor will be on the job early in April.

The addition, first acute care beds to be built in the Capital district in 25 years, should be in operation late next year, he said.

The hospital, on Mount Newton Crossroad in Central Saanich, now has 75 beds for the long-term care of mostly elderly patients. With the opening of the new acute care wing the plan is to close the 52-bed Resthaven Hospital in Sidney or convert it to something other than acute care.

Estimated cost of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital addition was $3,617,000. Lowest of six bids opened Friday was $2,556,936, from Campbell Construction Ltd.

Other bidders: Wheaton Construction Ltd. $2,692,381; Farmer Construction Ltd. $2,745,352; H.E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. $2,752,000; Key Construction Ventures $2,795,000 and Poole Construction Ltd. $2,852,617.

Last addition of acute care or general hospital beds locally was to Royal Jubilee Hospital in 1952, Cumming said.

He said the new beds at the peninsula hospital will be able to provide some relief for Greater Victoria residents while plans for a new hospital in View Royal go ahead.

The new hospital, to have 300 beds initially and 500 eventually, will go up beside Helmcken Road and will ultimately replace Victoria General Hospital.

G.A.I.N. Protest Set Up for Monday

Groups from Victoria and Vancouver will join forces at the Legislative Buildings on Monday to protest the Socreds' Guaranteed Available Income for Need program.

Bruce Eriksen, vice-president of the Vancouver Downtown Eastside Residents Association, said today the groups will ask for an immediate increase in income allowances to all persons covered by the controversial GAIN legislation.

He said he expected anywhere from 50 to 100 persons will take part in the demonstration, which starts at 11 a.m.

He said the protesters hope to take their case directly to the cabinet but added it would not be a repeat of the incident in Jan. 15, 1976, when 75 persons stormed into a cabinet meeting demanding Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm find them jobs.

NO SATURDAY CLOSURE—P.O.

The post office is not taking a survey on Vancouver Island to determine whether offices can be closed on Saturdays, a spokesman said Friday.

Betty Amos was commenting on a statement Thursday by Frank Walden, western regional director of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

Walden also said that the survey could become an experiment for the whole country, "but the union wasn't told about it."

Mrs. Amos said the post office is going to conduct a survey "to determine the extent to which wickets are used Saturdays" on the island.

She said one meeting was held with the CUPW, but the union has declined further discussion.

Mrs. Amos said the survey is not with a view to closing post offices on Saturdays, "because that suggests no mail goes in and no mail goes out."

A Little Bit of Remorse, Please!

One month ago, pretty Joan Foster of Sooke was driving through Colwood.

A car in front stopped; so she stopped, too, and she turned to attend to her small son in the back seat.

Then wham!

Her car was hit in the rear so violently that, although luckily her child was unhurt, Joan Foster suffered severe whiplash affecting her neck and back. She hasn't been able to work regularly in her job teaching at Saseenos Elementary School for the last month and spends two and-a-half hours out of each day travelling to and from Langford for sessions with a physiotherapist.

Today, she wears a neck brace and a mask of anger.

The neck injury is clearing up, gradually. But Joan's doctor has told her it may be considerable time before she gets over the back ailment. Maybe she never will. And she is furious because it was all brought about by someone, she believes, should not have been allowed on the road, someone she should have been protected from.

For the driver who rammed into her is not yet 17. Which means that he has had his licence less than a year. And in that time he has been issued with five speeding tickets, Joan was told, and has been involved in two accidents. This latest episode, which incidentally happened on a straight road in broad daylight while the youth was apparently out for an afternoon drive with his girlfriend, earned him another six demerit points for "driving with undue care and attention" and brought his total to 21.

This time, a policeman told Joan, he will probably lose his licence.

But that isn't good enough for Joan, who's mad at the system. We need, she says, a tighter system, not one that protects the driver in the wrong but one that is fair and reasonable — and allows for cautions to drivers who make occasional mistakes, but one that forces the driver to reflect on his wrongdoing.

"I don't think a warning letter and a $25 penalty assessment after 12 points or four mistakes is enough," says Joan. "It's a farce!"

Well, I didn't think so, either, so I phoned ICBC, which I found out, doesn't have anything to do with the penalty points or with the removal of anyone's licence. ICBC merely uses the files of the provincial Motor Vehicles Branch to levy financial penalties at the rate of $25 for every 10 points.

So I called Motor Vehicles and spoke to June Byers, and she admitted that it's probably confusing to the public but the demerit points — and you can be given two, three, six or 10 depending on the violation — are not the basis for suspension of your licence.

June is administrative officer for the safety and improvement section of the branch's driving licence division. Just what we can do with: more safety and plenty of improvement. Anyway, she says:

"No, we don't suspend for points. We suspend for a person's driving record and the points are used to bring your record to our attention. We work on a three-year record, getting a list of violations every week. And suspension depends on the seriousness of the offences."

That's another government way of really not saying very much. And I know it's not going to make Joan Foster delirious. As it was, she was pretty mad to find out that the youth, who she says directed a stream of obscenities at her despite the fact her little son was sitting there, didn't even have to go into ICBC to make out the accident report. His father did it for him.

"That's right," a woman at ICBC told me. "Anybody can fill in the accident report for him as long as they bring in the insurance form for the vehicle he was driving and his driving licence number."

"He never did show any remorse," says Joan a little sadly. "I don't expect him to be publicly flogged or anything but at least he should have to go in and acknowledge that he has done something wrong."

AVERAGE PLAYERS GET BREAK AS HARMONY RETURNS TO NFL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association and team owners voted Friday to approve a five-year basic labor agreement between the athletes and the teams.

After meeting for seven hours for what was described as a review of all aspects of the contract, the board of representatives of the players union voted unanimously to recommend approval of the contract to its membership.

Representatives of 25 of the 28 teams were present.

Dick Anderson of Miami Dolphins, president of the union, and Ed Garvey, executive-director of the union, said the new agreement was aimed primarily at improving the lot of the lower-and-middle-ranking players.

"This is an innovative approach to help the 90 per cent of the players who are not superstars," said Garvey.

Anderson said "it certainly was a long time in coming," since the last agreement expired on Jan. 31, 1974. Anderson added: "The players are happy at this point. We dealt with the owners on an equal basis.

"They wanted something from us — a draft. When we gave them a draft and a system, we were able to get some things from them: a pension, union security, an agency shop, and impartial arbitration of disputes."

Garvey said the 785 members of the union would begin receiving the details of the contract March 7, and would recommend they ratify it.

He added he expected to get a response within 10 days of that date.

In New York, where club owners met, the NFL management council issued a statement. The contract becomes effective immediately, the statement said, and extends through July 15, 1982, covering five football seasons. through 1986. This year's draft will be held "on or

The contract establishes new guidelines for the draft — which will total 336 choices, or 12 rounds, the statement said.

"Drafted player must be offered a contract or series of contracts meeting minimum figures ranging from $10,000 for one year to a total of $200,000 for four years on or before June 15 in the year he is drafted," the statement said.

If the player does not sign, he can be drafted again next year. If he is drafted again and still does not sign, he becomes a free agent after another year's time and may sign with any NFL club.

Vikings Facing An Uphill Climb

EDMONTON — University of Victoria's Vikings had their chances and missed, so they're faced with the uphill climb towards the Canadian intercollegiate men's basketball tournament.

Alberta Golden Bears, getting a field goal from centre Pat Rooney with only 36 seconds remaining in regulation time, edged Victoria 61-59 Friday in the first game of the best-of-three Canada West University Athletic Association final.

Vikings must win tonight and Sunday if they hope to advance to the Canadian finals at Halifax next weekend.

Vikings, who split four games with Alberta during the regular season, had two chances to tie the game after Rooney's go-ahead basket. Guard Robbie Parris brought the ball up the floor after Rooney's basket but missed a 25-foot shot.

Rooney picked off the rebound but was charged with a foul. Vikings took possession and Parris again missed from the top of the key. Then time ran out on the Vikings.

Vikings trailed 33-31 at the half but led by eight points with about six minutes remaining. Troubled by Alberta's press throughout the game and experiencing only modest success with their shooting, the Vikings couldn't hold it.

Both teams hit on only 33 per cent of their shots from the field. Victoria dominated in rebounding, 44-34, but was guilty of committing 13 turnovers to Alberta's six.

Lee Edmondson topped Vikings in scoring with 17 points while Parris added 14. Jim Duddridge scored 12 points but was well below the form he displayed last week when he scored 45 points in the semi-finals series against UBC.

Doug Baker scored 16 points and Mike Abercrombie 12 for the Bears.

Vikings used a special defence in which they played man-to-man if they scored and a three-two zone if they didn't. Coach Ken Shields appeared to be satisfied with Vikings' defensive play but, very obviously, looked for improvement in shooting tonight.

VIKINGS (59): Grant Boland 4, Mickey Welder 8, Robbie Parris 14, Jim Duddridge 12, Chris Hebb 4, Lee Edmondson 17, Ted Anderson, Tom Watson, Ian Hyde-Lay, Dale McLaughlin, Warren Wagstaff.

ALBERTA (61): Keith Smith 10, Steve Panteluk 5, Mike Abercrombie 12, Doug Lucas 6, Pat Rooney 10, Doug Baker 16, Mark Jorgensen 2, Scott Laurie, Bob Baker, Jerry Shawkey, Jim Bonin, Brent Patterson.

Some Advice for Tom From an Ex-Olympian

One week's work, and Jimmy Ball, who ran for Canada in the 1928 Olympics and was nipped at the tape by Ray Barbouti of the United States in the men's 400-metre final, has some advice for young Tom Griffin of the Victoria Mercuries. Jim, you see, was in at the beginning of this indoor track competition way back in 1929 and he has some memories that may be of use to Griffin, whom he admires very much.

"Running indoors, as Griffin no doubt has found out, is different than outdoors and takes time to adjust to. One has to stay down next to the rail, run a little wide on the turns to keep the runner behind you behind you. Tear down the straightaway. Use your elbows if necessary and so on."

Jim found the indoor meets exciting and colorful as events don't lag and the crowd is right there with you on the track.

He tells too of phony promoters who used to withhold promised expense money. So you get it first, he cautions. And things haven't changed much in time either. For Paavo Nurmi, he reveals, used to have his way paid from Finland and return every time he ran.

To Jim, Vancouver's Percy Williams, a double winner in the 100 and 200 at Amsterdam, was one of the world's great sprinters, and beat the best in the United States time after time. Canada at that time could call on five Olympic finalists — Williams, Johnnie Fitzpatrick, Phil Edwards, Alex Wilson and Ball — for international meets. And while Williams cleaned up in the sprints, Ball himself won the 300-yard event three times. Yes, Griffin's victory in Montreal made a former Olympian happy indeed, and Jim's fondest hope is that Griffin does well and gets a big kick out of international competition as he did.

Mention the past and what's this, a tea party! But it's legal. It ties in with the 25th anniversary of the Victoria Curling Club and the afternoon group of the Victoria Ladies are going to have this tea party which includes viewing the rogues gallery, reminiscing and renewing of old friendships. And all curlers who at one time or another were a member of the club are invited. The day, Thursday, March 10, from 2 to 4 p.m. You won't miss a shot here.

So the Vancouver Canucks have Derek Sanderson under contract. And darling Derek didn't play badly in his debut last week. If he gets in shape he could help, because with what else the Canucks have, they need all the extra aid they can get. Or as manager Phil Maloney said when he signed Derek: "I made a special trip to Kansas City to watch him play. I was impressed with the way he handled himself on the ice. He's got something to prove and we're giving him that opportunity." Meanwhile, the Canucks have called up three players from Tulsa which means that some of the other hands aren't up to snuff . . . and haven't been all season.

What they are saying: Sam Lenarduzzi, who doubles as media information director of the Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League, on the signing of the two Lenarduzzis, Sam (that's him) and Bobby . . . "an emotionally charged and really neat experience, significant for the Italian community and for the Whitecaps . . ." Guess so. Still, Sam is an accomplished footballer and it is fourth year with the club. The season begins April 8.

Racing dates haven't been firmed up for Sandown yet, but then they haven't been decided on for Ex-Park either, which makes putting out a stakes schedule a difficult job. Still, the horses can't read and are out on the track getting fit for what's to come, so who cares about government? And if you had been tuned in to Sanaa Anita on Monday you might have heard the good news. Detrimental, the pride of Ex-Park, beat an allowance field of some of the better runners at the track and paid off at $70.50 for $2. And a horse to watch this summer. The four-year-old mare All Week End was claimed by trainer Bud MacDonald for $32,500, and will be shipped to Ex Park. Further, Blue Thumb's backers will be pleased to note that the seven-year old has unretired and shows no sign of the back injury that bothered him.

And ah, yes, at least the B.C. Amateur Basketball Association had the guts to reveal that it took them four whole days to find the loophole that let them off the hook in not allowing the Scorpions a legitimate protest. "Invalid", they said because captain Bob Burrows didn't sign the scoresheet he didn't know he was supposed to sign. What utter rubbish. All of which is tantamount to admitting the Scorpions were right as the scoresheet said they were. And so ends another sad week for basketball.

BOWLERS OF WEEK

Completing weekly list of winners in Bowler-of-the-Week contest are Dot Bennett and Russ Cruickshank, who collected laurels in 18th week of 14th annual competition. Dot won women's tenpin honors with 165-198-206—569 series in Ladies Classic League at Mayfair Lanes while Russ picked up men's fivepin award with 193-385-293—871 series in Sons of Norway League at Town and Country Lanes.

ALL THOSE POINTS AND DEFENCE, TOO

By The Associated Press

When a player scores 68 points in a game, who notices defence? Elgin Baylor did.

"Not only did Pete Maravich score all those points but he also did a great defensive job on Walt Frazier," said Baylor, coach of New Orleans Jazz who defeated New York Knicks 124-107 in a National Basketball Association game Friday night.

"Pete did everything possible and I'm proud as can be of him," said Baylor. "What more can I say after a performance like that?"

Maravich's total was the eighth highest in NBA history. Wilt Chamberlain, who scored 100 points in a 1962 game, scored 68 or more points on seven occasions, and Baylor himself collected 71 in a game in 1960.

Maravich's total was the highest ever for an NBA guard. The old record was 63, set by Jerry West of Los Angeles in 1962.

Other scores:

Golden State 104, Buffalo 97.
Detroit 112, NY Nets 106.
Chicago 96, Atlanta 87.
Denver 130, Kansas City 128.
Los Angeles 104, Philadelphia 102.
Houston 123, Portland 106.
Boston 102, Seattle 92.

Tigers, Reynolds In Return Match

Victoria High Tigers and Reynolds Roadrunners set up a repeat match of last year's final in the Vancouver Island high school girls' basketball tournament, while Vic High's Totems and Claremont Spartans were the notable winners in the Lower Island boys' championship

The defending champion Tigers advanced to the final by defeating Nanaimo Islanders 49-32. Roadrunners, the Lower Island champs, made it with a 47-43 victory over Courtenay Towettes.

In consolation play Friday, Mt. Douglas Ramblers downed Parkland Panthers 39-29 and Campbell River Tyees beat Esquimalt Dockers 63-39.

Sandy Lewis scored 23 points and Louise Harrison added 12 for Tigers, who defeated Reynolds 40-20 in last year's final.

Donna Rogers scored 12 for Reynolds, which had a difficult time with the stubborn Courtenay team.

Action resumed this morning at Reynolds and will wind up with the finale at 7 tonight.

The Totems, getting 23 points from Jim Wong and 16 each from Dan Lissowski and Kris Adams in a 77-64 victory over Esquimalt Dockers, and the Spartans, 87-62 victors over Mt. Douglas Rams, clinched all-important berths in the Island tournament next weekend with Friday's triumphs.

Mt. Doug and Esquimalt meet at 6 p.m. at Lansdowne to determine the fifth and final Victoria-area berth in the Island tournament. Totems tackle Claremont in a third-place playoff at 7:30 while Oak Bay and Spectrum square off in the championship game at 9 p.m.

Wheaties Aren't Winnipeg's Dish

Winnipeg Monarchs have had nothing but trouble with Brandon Wheat Kings this season and that is expected to get the Monarchs eliminated early in the Western Canada Hockey League playoffs.

Winnipeg has managed just one win and one tie in 12 games against the high-flying Wheat Kings and their latest defeat came Friday night in Winnipeg by the score of 8-2.

Brandon is the leading club in the WCHL this season and according to the unusual playoff format announced recently, the Wheat Kings will therefore choose their first-round playoff opponent.

With their incredibly succesful record against Winnipeg, Brandon is expected to select the Monarchs in the first round.

In other WCHL games Friday, New Westminster Bruins whipped Flin Flon Bombers 8-1 and Regina Pats tied Medicine Hat Tigers 4-4.

Only two games are scheduled tonight, Kamloops at Medicine Hat and Flin Flon at Victoria.

Dave Semenko, who had his first WCHL three-goal performance for Brandon Wednesday night, repeated the success Friday with one goal in the first period and two more in the third.

Bill Derlago added a pair, giving him 82 for the season, just eight short of the league record of 90 set by former Wheat King Ron Chipperfield.

In Regina, Mark Kindrachuk scored at 16:47 of the third period to give Regina its tie with Medicine Hat. Kindrachuk scored on a weak shot from outside the Medicine Hat blueline that bounced over the stick of Tigers' goalie Peter Peeters.

At New Westminster, the Bruins scored four second-period goals to overcome the Bombers.

New Westminster, which held a narrow 1-0 first-period lead, got two goals from Mark Lofthouse and singles from Doug Derkson, Dave Orleski, Randy Betty, Bruce Andres, Don Hobbins and Randy Irving.

Captain Suspended

VERNON (CP) — Gary Gassoff, captain of the Vernon Vikings of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, has been suspended to March 7 as a result of a match penalty he received during a game Feb. 13 against the Penticton Vees in Penticton.

Caps Are Carefree

While several National Hockey League clubs continue to struggle both on the ice and at the gate, Washington Capitals find themselves relatively free of such problems.

Playing before a capacity crowd of 18,130 for the second time in their last three home games, the Capitals responded Friday night with a 4-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Elsewhere in NHL, New York Islanders edged Cleveland Barons 2-1, Atlanta Flames blasted Minnesota North Stars 6-2 and Boston Bruins dumped Colorado Rockies 5-2.

The Capitals attracted more than 50,000 additional patrons to the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., during the first four months of the current season than for the same period during the 1975-76 campaign. Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens are the only other NHL clubs to show an attendance increase through the end of January.

The victory provided the Capitals with a measure of revenge after being humbled 10-0 in Toronto on Feb. 12. However, Capitals coach Tom McVie viewed the game differently.

"This was not a revenge game," McVie said. "They won 10-0 and got two points and we won 4-2 and got two points.

"Our team was hyped up. We wanted to win awfully bad. It's tough to get beaten if you are determined not to get beaten."

The Capitals now are within one win of tying the 19-victory total they accumulated during their first two years in the NHL.

Carmichael Clicks

The Victoria rink skipped by Gordie Carmichael stepped off on the right foot Friday in the opening round of the provincial mixed curling championship in North Vancouver.

Unbeaten in zone playdowns, the Vancouver Island quartet ran a victory streak to six games by downing John Lancaster of Cranbrook 10-3 and was attempting to make it seven this morning against the 1976 Canadian champion, Tony Eberts of Williams Lake, a 7-5 winner Friday over Bernie Sparkes.

Other first-round winners were John Paone of Trail and Darrell Will of Kamloops.

REYNOLDS UPSET

Gulf Islands scored the big surprise Friday in the opening round of the Vancouver Island junior high school boys' basketball tournament.

Gord Lee and Dave Woodley each hit for 18 points as the Islanders edged Reynolds Roadrunners 68-66 in overtime at Belmont.

In other first-round games Steve Salt pumped in 18 points and Vince Tuele added 15 as Belmont Sun Devils breezed past John Barsby of Nanaimo 69-44; Lansdowne Flyers tripped Woodlands of Nanaimo 62-47, and Lake Trail of Courtenay defeated Arbutus 60-53.

Don Bennett was the day's high scorer with 30 points for Lake Trail while Lansdowne's Vince Cullen counted 24.

The tournament resumed this morning and will wind up with the championship final at 7:30 tonight.

Saanich Sizzles

Saanich Braves continue to flash power in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League's final.

Winners of the opening game in the best-of-seven series by a 9-6 score Tuesday, Braves were even more impressive Friday as they buried Esquimalt Legion 11-1 at the Sports Centre.

The third game will be played Tuesday at Pearkes Arena.

Ed Beauchemin fired three goals while Brent Patterson and Dale Ewasiuk each added two before 848 fans.

Gary Bechtold ruined goalie Mike Duch's shutout bid with the only Esquimalt goal in the second period.

Meanwhile, at Lake Cowichan, Wayne Proceviat scored three goals, including the winner while his team was shorthanded, to spark Victoria's Rays to a 6-5 victory over Baird's Trucking and a berth in the league's consolation final. Ray's won the best-of-three semi-final 2-1.

Victoria now meets Oak Bay in the opening game of the consolation final at Oak Bay next Thursday.

Silverberg Packs It Up

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Dick Silverberg is stepping aside after eight years as head professional at Glen Meadows Golf and Country Club.

Former assistant Bill Penny will replace Silverberg, effective Tuesday.

The sudden decision by Silverberg, 40, caught club members by surprise.

"Bill and I got our heads together a few weeks ago," said Silverberg. "He wanted to get back into golf, and I felt I wanted a change. We talked it over with (Glen Meadows owner) Percy (Criddle) and he approved."

A pro in Calgary for seven years before coming to Victoria, Dick says he has no other employment plans but intends to remain in the district. He recently purchased a small farm in North Saanich and, for the time being, plans on being "a gentleman farmer."

And there was a different kind of news concerning another Victoria professional Friday.

The syndicate that is sponsoring Cec Ferguson on the tour curcuit announced it has reached a financial point that assures the 26-year-old of his promised, two-year fling as a tourist.

Dr. Don Carlow, heading the syndicate, said a rash of subscriptions in the past few days has reached $27,000 the amount raised. That, combined with about $14,000 already earned by Fergie in his five-month pro career, means he has $41,000 to draw upon for the next 19 months.

He was guaranteed $50,000 but Carlow said the syndicate, which now numbers about 50, agreed to contribute the balance "if needed."

As a result, added Carlow, the drive for membership in the syndicate will end Tuesday.

Ferguson started in a 54-hole American Golf Tour event at El Centre, Calif., this week but had to withdraw from Thursday's second round because of illness.

"I've advised Cec that he has no financial worries. Now he can concentrate on playing," said Carlow.

Wesmen Take Title

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Winnipeg Wesmen defeated defending champion British Columbia 15-3, 15-4, 15-9 to win the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union men's volleyball title Friday.

Earlier, Winnipeg wound up the preliminary portion of the tournament with a 5-0 record after beating B.C. 18-16, 15-5. In other final preliminary matches, St. Francis Xavier of Antigonish, N.S., beat Laurentian University of Sudbury, Ont., 15-10, 15-4, while University of Sherbrooke downed Waterloo 15-9, 13-15, 15-6.

Nicklaus at Home On Florida Course

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, who has played Inverrary Golf and Country Club as if he owns it, knocked six more strokes off par Friday to take a commanding lead halfway through the $250,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic.

Nicklaus, who has never finished worse than sixth in five previous tournaments at Inverrary and won the Tournament Players Championship here last year, had eight birdies and two bogeys in his round of 66 Friday. His 36-hole total is 136, eight under par.

At 140, four under par, were defending Masters champion Ray Floyd, who had 68; Jerry McGee, who shot a 66, and Don Pooley, who won only $2,200 in 19 tournaments last year, 69.

First-round leader Gary Player had a one-over 73 to stand at 141 along with Jim Farlow, Danny Edwards, Fuzzy Zoeller and 1974 NCAA champion Curtis Strange, who got into the tournament on a sponsor's exemption.

"I didn't expect to be four shots in the lead starting out today," said an obviously-pleased Nicklaus, who had played in only two of seven previous PGA events.

"I would not say my swing or my game is anywhere near where I want it," said Nicklaus. "It sounds funny, but it's still not. I got away with the bad shots I hit."

Nicklaus has won $126,532 in his five previous tournaments at Inverrary, averaging 69.3 in 20 rounds of golf. He never has had higher than a 74 on the 7127-yard layout.

Nicklaus had 28 putts in his round, including a six-foot eagle on 15 which lipped the cup.

The surprise of the day was Pooley, who lost his playing card last year and had to regain it last fall. He won $700 at Phoenix earlier this year but missed the cut at Tuscon, Los Angeles and in Hawaii.

Pooley, who survived Monday's qualifying round to get into the tournament, never has shot two better tour rounds than his 71-69 here.

Saskatoon Rink Wins

WINNIPEG (CP) — Morrie Thompson of Saskatoon grabbed an early lead and held on for a 7-5 victory Friday to win the Canadian senior men's curling championship in a playoff with Don Killips of Edmonton.

The 52-year-old stockbroker led 5-1 after five ends, then kept the house clean to prevent Killips from making any serious threat at a comeback.

It was the first national win by Saskatchewan since 1968 when Don Wilson, also of Saskatoon, was the titlist.

Members of this year's championship team along with Thompson are third Bert Harbottle, second Archie Bartley and lead Mac McKee.

The playoff came about when Thompson easily defeated Lawrence Carter of Amherst, N.S., 7-1 on the morning's final round of regular round-robin play while Killips got past Jake Block of Abbotsford, 9-6.

Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia were tied going into the last round.

Block finished in a third-place tie with Jack Edwards of Kingston, Ont., with won-lost records of 8-3.

Tom Hunter of Hudson, Que., and Don Brownridge of Portage la Prairie, were 6-3 and Art Ballem of Charlottetown and the Territories entry skipped by Bob Fleming of Whitehorse were 5-6.

Judy Rankin Scorches Bent Tree

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Judy Rankin shot a nine-under-par 63 Friday, one of the best rounds in women's golf history, to pull out to a commanding five-stroke lead in the first round of the $100,000 LPGA Bent Tree Classic.

Rankin had nine birdies, no bogeys and only 25 putts in blistering the 6124-yard Bent Tree course with a 32-31. It was the best round, by two strokes, of her 15-year career.

The round was only one stroke off the all-time LPGA record of 62 for 18 holes, fired in 1964 by Mickey Wright. It also cut the course record here by five shots.

Wright finished the first round in second place with a four-under-par 68. Beth Stone placed third with a 69. Penny Pulz and Sandra Post were tied in fourth position with 70s.

Bunched at one-under-par 71 were Susan Downer, Sandra Palmer and Alexandra Reinhardt.

"I'm very excited," the slender, blonde Rankin said after her hot round.

She said her experience as a pro helped her stay calm and pay attention to each shot as she maintained the torrid pace which won for her at St. Petersburgh last week and brought her in second at Miami the week before that.

"I used to get excited to the point where I couldn't play any more," said the 32-year-old shotmaker, who led the LPGA in money winnings last year with $150,734. "When you get carried away with emotion, you can't make a birdie you really want.

"I didn't take any shots for granted. I didn't have anything close to a three-putt. I didn't have any scares."

Rankin said she wasn't going to worry about today's second round of the 54-hole tourney.

Rookie pro Dale Shaw of Victoria, making only her third start on the LPGA tour, was well off the pace with 38-44—82.

Belmont Rallies To Tie Spectrum

Belmont Braves rallied in the final minute to tie Spectrum 12-12 in Greater Victorial High School Rugby League play Thursday.

In other matches, St. Michael's University School bounced host Parkland 18-6 while Victoria Titans and Claremont Spartans claimed easy points with wins by default over Oak Bay Barbarians and Reynolds, respectively.

Steve Buchanan and Dave Ryland scored the Belmont tries and Rick Percival booted both conversions. Dave Fletcher and Terry Jay scored Spectrum's tries and Joe Fletcher kicked both conversions.

Marcus Enderson and Grant Jones each scored two tries for SMU and Geoff Smith connected for one conversion. Darryl Stubbs kicked two penalty goals for Parkland.

The top five teams at the end of a round-robin schedule, which ends with the next match for each club, enter the Howard Russell Division. Teams missing the promotion will compete in the Lt. Col. Hodgins Division.

Last Faculty Recital At UVic Wednesday

A particularly attractive program marks the conclusion of the UVic Music Department's faculty recital series for this season. It will take place Wednesday at the MacLaurin auditorium at 8 p.m.

The recital will open with a performance of Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 6 in B flat Major. Gerald Stanick and Rennie Regehr will be playing solo violas and the ensemble will consist of Mary Stanick, viola, Linda Hougland-Daniels and Gary Russell, cellos, Ross Lund, bass and Erich Schwandt, harpsichord.

Prokofiev's Quintet for oboe, clarinet, violin, viola and contrabass will be played by Eileen Gibson, Timothy Paradise, Paul Kling, Gerald Stanick and Ross Lund.

Concluding item will be Brahms' String Quintet in E Major with Paul Kling, Derry Deane, Gerald Stanick, Rennie Regehr and Linda Hougland-Daniels comprising the ensemble.

Admission at the door is $2.50, students and senior citizens, $1.50.

Twin Shows Saturday At Belfry

How's this for accommodating Saturday-night-outers? The Belfry, has arranged its lilting hit show, Puttin' On the Ritz, so that this Saturday, and again on March 5, a choice can be made. Those who want to start the evening off in a buoyant, happy mood can enjoy the Irving Berlin revue-style show at 7 p.m. and go on to dinner afterward.

For the people who prefer to end the evening in a breeze after lingering over dinner there's a 10 p.m. show. Running time of the sleek, quick-paced and visually enchanting show is approximately 90 minutes, including intermission.

In initiating the Saturday double performance, directors Don Shipley and Pat Armstrong are following the night club concept used in Vancouver, Montreal and New York.

Puttin' On the Ritz will be seen at the regular time of 8 p.m. Sunday. There is no show Monday but nightly thereafter, ending March 5.

Auto Defect Fire Hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Design defects that might lead to fires have been discovered in the fuel systesm of Opel Kadetts manufactured by General Motors between 1964 and 1970, the U.S. transportation department said Friday. The defects, in 315,000 Kadetts still on the highway, involve a tail light mounting bolt that can penetrate the fuel tank in right rearend impacts at closing speeds below 10 miles an hour.

It's Costly to Be a Musician

audrey johnson

Let us say your daughter, after the normal number of years of education and a year in business school, takes a job as a secretary. If she's just reasonable efficient she'll soon be earning $600 a month or more. She'll be self-sustaining with a reasonable living standard and with no financial responsibility for the tools for her trade.

Her boss will maintain her typewriter and any other major piece of equipment and provide all her office supplies. Tnd it's much the same situation should she choose nursing, teaching, lab work or selling, except for variations in training periods.

Your son might opt out of further education at Grade 12, apprentice to a trade or enter commerce. If he has normal apptitude and applies himself can soon be earning a tidy salary with no responsibility for upkeep other than his own personal requirements.

Now, would you feel that because your child had had free choice of occupation and presumably liked what he or she was doing, that he should be content with pay at the poverty levels.

No one would deny that a symphony society's basic office staff should receive reasonable wages; yet there are still a lot of people around the Greater Victoria area who think that symphony players should be satisfied with considerably less than a living scale of pay because "playing a musical instrument can't really be considered work."

So little understanding do many of these people have -- so unable are they to accept the idea of musicians as workers – that it has even been suggested to me in certain instances that "the orchestra should be willing to help itself" (by the musicians giving their services free for annual benefit concerts).

When have workers in any other trade or profession been willing or permitted by their union to give a day's work free for any purpose?

True, at the present time the majority of players in Victoria Symphony are still non-professional. (The term "professional" is always being subjected to definition but to me, it means persons whose quality and education are of a kind that justifies them in seeking their living in the musical field.)

But we're talking about music regarded as a profession alongside other professions, so let's look at the preparation of such a person and the mental, physical and financial commitment he or she must make.

String players, who form the biggest body of the orchestra, for example: The education of a string player over and above whatever he may gain through the regular school music curriculum, starts, say, at age seven or eight with individual or private lessions and continues on that basis for at least the next 10 years.

After that come master classes in major centres, probably four years of university in pursuit of a Bachelor of Music degree (a must if the student contemplates the possibility of seeking work in the United States or is being educated in the U.S.) and the prospect of intermittent study sessions life-long to maintain performance and teaching standards and contact with the changing world of professional music or in pursuit of higher degrees.

All this specialized educaaion obviously means an investment by the student and his parents of many thousands of dollars – far more than is required for any but the most senior professions otherwise. And anyone who thinks that the budding string player does not work hard and long to a point of both physical and mental exhaustion has himself never tried to master anything more complex than a jew's harp.

Hundreds of dollars tied up in strings

Now I'm sure it would be desirable for a secretary or lab worker in training to possess his own typewriter or microscope for practice purposes; probably many do.

But it is essential for string players to possess reasonably good instruments from quite an early age and by the time they reach advanced study "reasonably" is no longer good enough. A thousand dollars today will buy you only a mediocre fiddle; a fairly good one will cost you $5,000, a really fine instrument, depending on age and maker, anything from $15,000 to $100,000.

What has been said applies to the violin and viola, the alto and soprano instruments of the string family. The circumstances are similar for the baritone cello and string bass except of course, the larger the instrument the higher the cost.

Don't imagine that a string player is being wildly extravagant when he negotiates a loan or a mortgage to purchase a $10,000 or $15,000 instrument. He is exercising the utmost practicality, for the quality of the instrument seriously affects his playing both as to sound and technical facility.

An orchestra's string section, incidentally, even supposing all its players are of high and even caliber, can only emit that desirable "silken sound", if all its instruments are good ones.

Everybody thinks of a fiddle of one kind or another when quality is discussed. But what about the bow whose resilience and balance can greatly assist or greatly mar performance? Bows start at about $1,000 and soar up to $20,000 and more, and all players have to have at least two, preferably three.

Maintenance is strictly the responsibility of the working musician. Strings that lose their equality of vibration under constant assault and tension must be changed four times a year, possibly oftener. Other than when one breaks duriing rehearsal or performance, it is unsatisfactory to change one at a time, so the change is for a complete set, which costs $100 for a bass, $75 for a cello, $30 for a violin.

Repairs often required include rehairing of bows (three of four times a year) and regluing of instrument seams which are affected by temperature changes.

When cello or double bass players have to travel to engagements by air they have up to now paid half-fare for an extra seat because these instruments cannot be entrusted to cargo. But some airlines reportedly are considering going to full fare.

You pay $5,000 to $9,000 for a harp unless you want gilt and baroque ornamentation, when they go higher. Strings last up to a year and cost $200 a set. The harpist must learn to do some minor repairs because the only places where work can be done on harps are Los Angeles and Chicago. Major surgery is seldom done, however, because of cost and the fact that the patient never fully recovers. Better a damaged harp be retired and a new one obtained.

Insurance is yet another and extremely important part of maintenance. No employer in this city pays insurance for musicians and the premiums for string players, because their instruments are fragile, can run as high as $1,000 a year.

Good instruments require constant coddling so players can hardly be blamed for fussing over extreme changes of temperature, cold winds and humidity.

So far we've only considered the string players. Next week percussion and winds will be given a close-up, as well as other matters concerning the professional musician.

WORKER INJURED

A workman was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning after a flash fire exploded in the bathroom of an apartment under construction at Cedar Hill and McKenzie.

A spokesman for Saanich fire department said the workman was grouting tiles in a bathroom at 9:21 a.m. when a light bulb broke, the spark igniting fumes from the grouting material.

The explosion singed the man's hair and blackened his face, but the burns were minor.

New Appointment

Some Films That Ought to Be Remade

FIFTEEN YEARS is a long time for a song to take to reach the Top 10 after its release — but that's what happened to country singer Freddy Fender's first single, Wasted Days and Wasted Nights. Now neither Fender's days nor nights are wasted as one of the top box office attractions in North America. He makes his first visit to Victoria next Friday, appearing at the Memorial Arena.

By ROBERT EDISON

From King Kong to A Star Is Born, the film market is being flooded with overblown remakes, most of which are about as valid and necessary as it would be for Tatum O'Neal to have a face-lift.

Why trot out new versions of movies which were, after all, perfectly realized the first time out? If remakes are to be the game, then let's tap the vast reservoir of films whose intents were scuttled, completely or in part, in the days when the censor had the last word in Hollywood.

I've got a little list:

1. When Darryl Zanuck produced Gentleman's Agreement in 1947, it was considered a daring look at a nearly taboo subject, anti-Semitism. By today's standards the movie remains as well-intentioned as ever, but its approach seems glossy and pat; it's as though everybody concerned, including director Elia Kazan, were walking on eggs.

Moss Hart's screenplay, derived from Laura Z. Hobson's bestseller, is far from credible. We are asked to believe that Gregory Peck, a worldly journalist who pretends to be Jewish while researching a story on anti-Semitism, is amazed to discover the extent of this insidious prejudice. Since one of his best friends, played by John Garfield, is a Jew who's been through the wringer of bigotry, the plot is anything but convincing.

The film doesn't even delve deeply into the problem. Its characters are straw figures symbolizing various aspects of the problem. The treatment is superficial, and limited to the middle and upper classes, leaving out the blue-collar brand of bigotry entirely. A fresh Gentleman's Agreement could explore contemporary prejudice and discrimination, taking a harder and more dramatic look at this enduring social evil.

2. Pinky was released two years after Gentleman's Agreement and was a similarly provocative, if ultimately mild, attempt to come to grips with specific areas of bigotry in American society. From today's vantage point, the film does little more than dip a toe into the pool of prejudice. Like Gdntleman's Agreement, Pinky — about a black girl trying to pass for white — seems artificial, and about as controversial as an airline ticket.

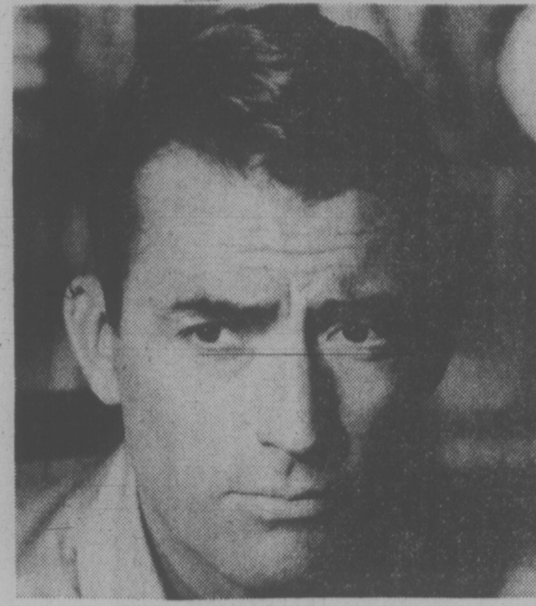
In Pinky, Jeanne Crain, who had previously been typecast as an all-American cheerleader type, was physically unconvincing in the title role. Yet, in an era when casting a black performer in the part would have been commercially unthinkable, she managed to be genuinely touching.

As in Gentleman's Agreement, however, the characters tended to emerge as viewpoints rather than real people. In Pinky, we get, on cue, the wise, warm black granny and the equally wise, warm white matriarch (played by Ethel Walters and Ethel Barrymore). Also on hand are the mean white and the black-hating black, as well as a vast assortment of worn-out stick figures.

How about another, deeper look at Pinky — a gutsier, harder-hitting view of the personal anguish caused by the cruel custom of judging people by the color of their skin.

And please, a black actress in the role.

KERR . . . 'Tea and Sympathy'



PECK . . . 'Gentleman's Agreement'

3. Tea and Sympathy, with its discreet handling of homosexuality — a then-delicate theme — impressed some as a trailblazer back in 1956. Robert Anderson adapted his own hit play dealing with a sensitive 19-year-old boy's concern about his masculinity, and his screenplay had considerable impact. However the film did not fulfil its potential, partly because a good deal of the realistic stage dialogue was off-limits for film. (Would you believe the kids in a New England prep school would call a suspected homosexual "sister boy"?) And the portrait of the super-jock headmaster was too heavily drawn as a prototype of aggressively latent homosexuality.

By far the worst cop-out of the film was the ending demanded by the censors. The headmaster's wife, who has compassionately seduced the boy with the now-famous words, "Years from now, when you talk about this, and you will, be kind," is shown in a postscript as a fallen woman doing penance for her sin. This gratuitously Victorian denouement all but destroyed the effectiveness of Vincente Minnelli's knowing direction.

Someone should develop this property and shoot it as it should have been filmed 20 years ago. And I don't mean somebody who would update it by having the boy come out of the closet. The integrity of Anderson's original work should be preserved.

4. Tobacco Road was a hard movie nut to crack, particularly in 1941, when the Hays Office was Sanforizing everything in sight. Producer Darryl Zanuck did his best to let some hint of the Southern degradation which permeated the infamous Broadway play seep through, but all that emerged on screen — even with John Ford's sure but wary direction — was a series of bucolic skits and blackouts which were more Ma and Pa Kettle than the poor-white trash written about by Erskine Caldwell in his novel, and by Jack Kirkland in his long-running play.

Not only were the language and ribald situations cleaned up for the cameras, but so were the performers. Gene Tierney as a simple-minded Ellie May, and Charley Grapewin as Jeeter Lester, her lecherous pa, appeared robust enough to qualify for Li-l Abner, and the restraints imposed upon their incestuous tendencies rendered their behavior completely baffling.

The play had offered power, insight and good writing, qualities sadly absent in the film version. Isn't it time to bring back Tobacco Road, with its vitality and earthiness intact?

5. In 1945, a picture was released which was destined to become a classic of the sort of contrived ending that was often jammed down Hollywood's throat by industry regulation. The Strange Affair of Uncle Harry told the tale of a shy bachelor, tired of sisterly interference, who turns to murder as the only way out of his suffocating life.

Through a series of startling twists, the man murders the wrong sister, and finds, to his dismay, that he has inadvertently committed a perfect crime. Even a voluntary confession to the police can't set things right; he would like to take credit for his backfired murder scheme, but — irony of ironies — the law won't believe him because hs's known as a Milquetoast.

The casting of George Sanders in the title role was the filmmaker's first mistake; he wasn't quite convincing as anybody's timid uncle. But it was the censor who supplied the crowning irony, one which far exceeded anything devised by the original author. So that the culprit not get away with murder, it was decreed that the entire movie turn out to be just a dream.

If anybody got away with murder, it was the Hays Office. How about some contemporary producer taking a whack at a murderous, wide-awake Uncle Harry?

6. Compulsion, made in 1959, was an attempt to retell, in fictionalized terms, the true story of the Leopold and Loeb murder case, in which two wealthy young men murdered a boy named Bobby Franks in 1924. The film, spawned by Meyer Levin's bestselling novel and popular play, skimmed over the plot, although Orson Welles was just right as the Darrowesque lawyer who defends the thrill killers, well played by Dean Stockwell and Bradford Dillman.

But again, censorship helped to do the movie in. The screenplay only hinted at the pairs's homosexuality, although that fact of life colored the entire case. As a result, a crucial chunk of plot motivation was obscured.

7. Sweet Bird of Youth, released in 1962, was like Tobacco Road, a portrait of degradation in the Deep South. Its Gulf Coast characters were every bit as amoral, and at least as degenerate, as those inhabiting Jeeter Lester's territory. And it, too, felt the censors' pinch. Paul Newman, Geraldine Paige, Rip Torn and Ed Begley — all retained from the New York stage production — struggled valiantly, but they had much of the original Tennessee Williams dialogue, as well as many of the play's most electrifying moments, yanked from under them.

Hungarian Gypsy Troupe

One of Hungary's most cherished and acclaimed exports is the troupe known as the Rajko Hungarian Gypsy Dancers and Orchestra, which comes to the Royal Theatre March 7 under the auspices of Allen Houghton.

The 35-member company includes true Hungarian gypsies, many sons or decendants of fabled gypsy singers, dancers and violinists. The average age is 19, hence the name Rajko, which means young gypsy boy.

A 'SLICK' DEVICE

HALIFAX (CP) — It looks like a miniature flying saucer, but it doesn't fly and it floats on the sea and its name is Pinger.

The oil-spill marker is 11 inches wide and contains electronic equipment developed in Nova Scotia to enable cleanup crews to track oil slicks in the ocean.

Dr. Colin Duerdin, director of the environmental emergency branch at the fisheries and environment service here, says the Pinger may be dropped from an aircraft without a parachute from an altitude of up to 400 feet.

Preliminary testing has been completed on the device in an attempt to determine whether its design will enable it to drift in ocean currents in the same way as an oil slick.

The device is the first of its kind in the world.

The bright orange-colored device with an aerial attached is dropped into an oil slick and allowed to drift. It sends out an electronic signal that researchers hope will allow ships and aircraft to track the movement of known oil spills.

The benefit of being able to track the movement of an oil slick is that it would give hours of advance warning to shore areas that dangerous amounts of oil were on their way. This would enable booms to be erected to protect valuable shore property.

Environmentalists have had to scramble in recent years to develop the technology to track oil spills, especially on Canada's East Coast where frequently bad weather and dense coastal fog make aeril and sea surveillance of the slicks difficult or impossible.

The urgency for developing new technology was underscored in 1976-77 by the sinking of at least one large oil carrier and serious spills from several others.

Searchers this winter lost sight of no fewer than seven oil slicks in eastern waters. The slicks were first spotted by fishermen but tides, winds and rough seas obscured them when searchers went out the following day.

Researchers hope to perfect the device and then persuade ship owners to install them on all their ships so they can be thrown overboard immediately after a spill is spotted.

The $200 device is run by batteries with a life of about five years.

CP Rail Uses Sun To Power Repeater

Times News Service

VANCOUVER — CP Rail has installed a solar powered generator in the mountains of British Columbia for use in railway communications. The generator converts the sun's radiant energy to electricity to operate an automatic radio repeater. It is the first of its type in the railway's communications system.

Located just east of Revelstoke at Silver Creek, B.C., 3,500 feet above sea level, the solar electric generator charges a battery, which in turn powers a radio repeater. The repeater re-transmits conversations of maintenance-of-way personnel working along the railway right-of-way.

"This is a test installation to find out if solar energy can be used to replace more conventional electrical generators powered by internal combustion engines. We will be keeping tabs on the solar generator to see if it can fulfill our specific communications needs," says John Targett, regional supervisor for the communications services department of CP Rail, Pacific Region.

The solar power generator consists of a two-foot-square Lexan covered panel with a number of circular silicon solar cells on its face. Working simultaneously, the cells produce energy from sunlight that is converted to electrical power. The clear synthetic panel is mounted in a fixed position facing the sun.

Some care must be taken in determining the placement position of the panel. "Generally the panel must be sloped at five degrees greater than the geographic latitude at the installation site. In this case the panel is located near 51 degrees north, so its slope is approximately 56 degrees from the horizontal. Directed S.S.W., this angle of incline should assure minimal snow build-up on the panel's surface," adds Mr. Targett.

The panel is connected to a special large capacity battery by cables. Electrical energy drawn through its cells from the sun is stored for use during periods of darkness and inclement weather.

The panel is mounted on 25-foot high poles to assure it will not be buried by heavy winter snows. The solar energy generator is positioned in a nearby building which houses the radio repeater and battery.

Range of the mobile radio units used by maintenance-of-way crews is usually very limited in rugged mountain terrain, but when signals are routed through the Silver Creek radio installation that range can be greatly expanded.

The repeater makes radio communications from Revelstoke to Glacier, B.C. — a distance of 40 miles — possible. It provides ready contact with working crews by both train dispatchers and supervisors.

Until now, the Silver Creek radio installation has been supplied electricity by two diesel-powered generators located at the base of the 3,500-foot mountain. "We hope the solar power installation will eliminate costly diesel fueling and maintenance procedures," comments Mr. Targett.

"If this solar energy power system proves successful, we hope to be able to establish radio communications in remote areas without having to run special hydro lines or establishing unwieldy generator installations.

"Although we are still in the testing stages with solar power generators, we hope to be able to harness the sun's rays as an efficient, low cost and clean way of providing power for many railway communications needs," concludes Mr. Targett.

The railway's first experiments with solar power began in late 1975, near Montreal, when the sun's rays were used to charge batteries which control highway crossing signals.

Unwanted Pets: 79,000 Killed

By JILL ST. LOUIS

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 79,000 unwanted pets are destroyed annually in the Greater Vancouver area.

A low-cost spaying clinic, the first of its kind in Canada, has operated on more than 4,000 dogs and cats since it opened in August, 1976, in an effort to curb the burgeoning problem.

Dr. C. W. Collin, one of four veterinarians at the clinic, says it is too early to tell whether the number of unwanted pets will be reduced by neutering or spaying.

The facility, operated by the Vancouver regional branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was built through capital funding from the city and surrounding municipalities, plus public donations, at a cost of $300,000.

Dr. Collin said the clinic is equipped with the most modern facilities.

There are separate wards for cats and dogs. Each is lined on one wall with antiseptically clean wire cages and has air conditioning throughout, which minimizes the danger of infection.

There is space for 130 cats and 60 dogs.

The clinic has two operating rooms, two examining rooms, an isolation ward and a kitchen where food for animals requiring a special diet can be prepared.

There also is an x-ray room and a processing laboratory.

Dr. Collin said funds still are being collected for the purchase of a $12,500 X-ray machine, necessary before veterinarians can begin diagnosing ailments. When the machine is acquired, the clinic will expand to include pet treatment.

The clinic, with four veterinarians and a support staff of 10, is self-sustaining, Dr. Collin said.

He said veterinarians were opposed to the clinic.

While veterinarians normally charge $55 to $80 for spaying a dog and $45 to $55 for a cat, the clinic charges $25 and $20, respectively. The normal neutering fee is $40 to $50 for a dog and $25 to $30 for a cat. The clinic charges $15 and $12.50, respectively.

Dr. Collin said the operation normally takes about five to 10 minutes. The fee includes preoperative and post-operative care and necessary inoculations.

Cat LGP tracks:
They'll work
where you wouldn't walk

A Caterpillar Low Ground Pressure tractor or track loader can help you work all year round despite rainy seasons, swampy ground or all kinds of muck, mire, silt and sand.
These high flotation machines have 10-15% greater track gauge, 15-30% longer track roller frames, 2-2½ times wider track shoes, extended final drive housings and drive axles, even optional self-cleaning shoes for especially sticky gumbo.
LGP tracks are available on tractors and loaders from 62 horsepower and 1½ cubic yards at Finning's Light Industrial Division (and on bigger Cat machines, too).
To keep working all year round and beat Mother Nature at her own game, give Finning a call. Cat LGP tracks work where you wouldn't walk.

The crown of Chile

Take oxygen for Andes tour

By PHILIP SOUSA

ARICA, Chile — We left this Chilean port city just after dawn and headed east toward the rugged Andes.

I knew we had climbed steadily, but didn't know how high we were until we stopped at Lake Chungara. I took a few steps looking for a good camera angle and I was almost out of breath.

My companions offered oxygen, which I turned down, and an explanation for my condition, which I accepted.

The spot where we had stopped was exactly 14,700 feet above sea level.

In front of us herds of furry llamas and vicunas, brown ducks and velvety pink flamingos were feeding on desert shrubs. The quiet inkblue waters of the lake reflected what my eyes perceived as a twin of Japan's Mount Fuji.

The massive peak capped with eternal snow, my friends told me, was 20,729-foot Parinacota, one of the many extinct Andean volcanoes along the border between Chile and Bolivia.

It was eerily quiet. And it is almost always so — even though we were on the main road from Arica to the Bolivian capital of La Paz.

Of course, "main road" needs some explanation.

The first 62 miles out of Arica are paved and well-maintained.

The next 53 miles you need to travel to reach Lake Chungara, one of the world's highest bodies of water, and the border a couple of miles to the east are, well, quite rugged. Seldom do you see a car along this stretch, only a few properly equipped campers and heavy trucks. The latter, incidentally, are landlocked Bolivia's key link for imports and exports.

Most people travelling between Arica and La Paz do so on the twice-a-week train that runs between the two cities, or by air.

The road's relative lack of traffic adds to the awesomeness of this ancient region where eagles, llamas, condors and alpacas far outnumber humans.

Side roads, even more primitive than the unpaved section of the Arica-La Paz highway, take you to tiny hamlets inhabited as a rule by a score of Indian families.

Almost without exception, each of the villages that dot the landscape of Chile's northernmost corner boasts an historic church or chapel, many of them dating back to the 17th century.

At Parinacota, within sight of the namesake mountain, we looked at the hamlet's famous church. Now a national monument, this small edifice of stone and mud was originally built about 300 years ago. Rebuilt in 1789, it houses some magnificent 17th century paintings and frescoes; its missal was printed in Paris in 1699.

The journey from Arica to Lake Chungara takes you through three distinctly different zones. Closest to the amid palm trees and countless flowers is the pampa or Pacific on which Arica sits desert: minutes from the fertile coastal valleys the road climbs to about 4,000 feet and the dry land reminds you of California's Mojave.

Next, at the 9,000- to 13,000-foot level is the cooler, wetter but just as desolate "precordillera" area. Higher still is the "altiplano" zone, which is colder, snowy and even more forbidding; here you're among the Andes.

This brings me back to Arica, a friendly town of 122,000 people which I consider both a window on Chile and a gateway to the province's fabulous interior.

The city of Arica, long a stopover on the routes to both Bolivia and Peru (whose border is about three miles north of town), has a number of good hotels and several excellent restaurants that offer both international fare and the region's famous seafood.

Though local attractions are limited, Arica even has a rather handsome casino and a couple of nightclubs.

It took only two hours and 20 minutes for the Boeing 707 of LAN-Chile to bring me here nonstop from Santiago, 1,275 miles to the south. A very short time indeed, especially if you consider that from Arica you can travel back into history several thousand years.

If you're reasonably healthy, don't worry about the altitude too much. Remember that tours to Arica's lofty backyard arranged through established travel agencies always carry oxygen!

Inflation bites

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — Pop and potato chips may replace the traditional sherry and sandwiches at civic receptions in Lancashire, for many of the county's mayors are feeling the pinch.

Mayor James Moorcroft of Chorley, near Manchester, said he may have to cancel a string of official engagements because his expense allowance of £1,250 ($2,175) has run out.

"We can no longer afford sherry and sandwiches," he said. "Pop and chips are more suited to the present economic climate."

Councils in many parts of the county have found that the cost of civic pomp and tradition is keeping pace with the rising taxes and cost of living.

Cruise the Atlantic to EUROPE via Wardair

Low cost – that's the ticket:
when you take a trip on an Advance Booking Charter flight, you're travelling on the most economical fare plan there is. And when you fly with Intervac via Wardair, Canada's Holiday Airline, you're doing even better.. and here's how

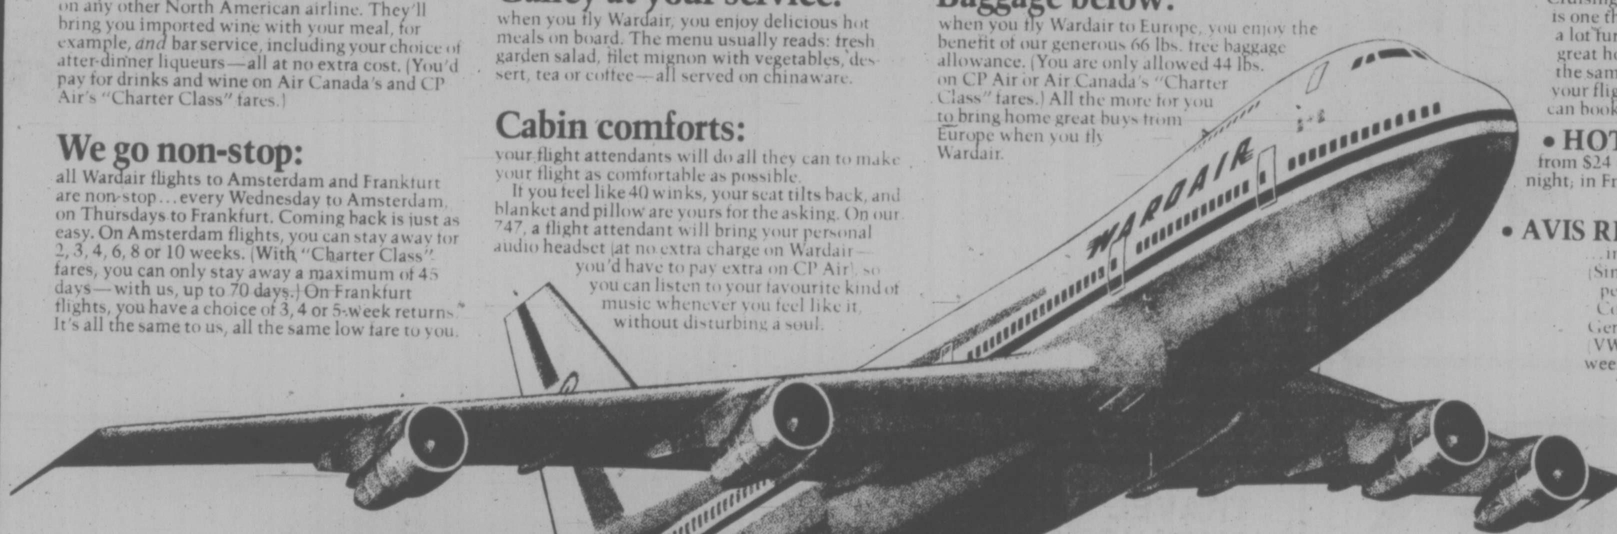
Meet the crew:
on board your Wardair aircraft, a full complement of flight attendants is at your service —more than on any other North American airline. They'll bring you imported wine with your meal, for example, and bar service, including your choice of after-dinner liqueurs—all at no extra cost. (You'd pay for drinks and wine on Air Canada's and CP Air's "Charter Class" fares.)

We go non-stop:
all Wardair flights to Amsterdam and Frankfurt are non-stop... every Wednesday to Amsterdam, on Thursdays to Frankfurt. Coming back is just as easy. On Amsterdam flights, you can stay away for 2, 3, 4, 6, 8 or 10 weeks. (With "Charter Class" fares, you can only stay away a maximum of 45 days—with us, up to 70 days.) On Frankfurt flights, you have a choice of 3, 4 or 5-week returns. It's all the same to us, all the same low fare to you.

Galley at your service:
when you fly Wardair, you enjoy delicious hot meals on board. The menu usually reads: fresh garden salad, filet mignon with vegetables, dessert, tea or coffee—all served on chinaware.

Cabin comforts:
your flight attendants will do all they can to make your flight as comfortable as possible.
If you feel like 40 winks, your seat tilts back, and blanket and pillow are yours for the asking. On our 747, a flight attendant will bring your personal audio headset (at no extra charge on Wardair—you'd have to pay extra on CP Air), so you can listen to your favourite kind of music whenever you feel like it, without disturbing a soul.

Baggage below:
when you fly Wardair to Europe, you enjoy the benefit of our generous 66 lbs. free baggage allowance. (You are only allowed 44 lbs. on CP Air or Air Canada's "Charter Class" fares.) All the more for you to bring home great buys from Europe when you fly Wardair.



Intervac makes it all so easy to see Europe once you land.

Cruising you across the Atlantic is one thing, but Intervac can go a lot further to help you enjoy a great holiday. One phone call at the same time as you arrange your flight via Wardair and you can book any of these:

- HOTELS ...in Amsterdam from $24 to $32 per person per night; in Frankfurt from $27 to $29
- AVIS RENT-A-CAR ...in Holland from $118 (Simca 1000) to $285 per week (Opel Commodore); in Germany from $121 (VW) to $239 per week (BMW or VW Bus).

- EURAIL PASS, 15 days, First Class, $170.

ON THE GO with Jerry Hulse

If inflation has you in a pinch, here's a perfect way to reduce the overhead: vacation au naturel.

No need to buy a new bikini or other swimwear. Not when you can vacation in the buff.

It is that season when the promoters of such tours are choking the mails with their propaganda.

They speak of French Polynesia, the Caribbean, Florida and various European spas.

Elysium Tours is rounding up sunbathers for raids on nudie beaches from Tahiti to Guadeloupe.

Even without the worry over swimwear, however, the package isn't exactly a giveaway. For example, a couple of weeks on the island of Moorea run to slightly over $1,000.

Nevertheless, with inflation being what it is, it's not an altogether bad deal. Not when you consider the price includes round-trip jet fare from Los Angeles, accommodations, meals and wine.

If this sounds like the Club Mediterranee ritual, it is. For in Tahiti, Elysium Tours uses Club Med's facilities but locks in on its own course of action.

Elysium's escape package is precisely like a Club Med vacation with one exception! Its flock of sun worshippers scramble daily to a small, nearby island where nude sunbathing is permitted.

The bearded, bespectacled big daddy of Elysium Tours, Michael Lienert, says frankly that he got into the travel game to go somewhere himself. By rounding up groups, he gets to tag along free.

His decision to promote the Sun Lover Tour came after the Los Angeles City council outlawed nude sunbathing in nearby Venice.

Deciding that sun freaks should get as far out of the county as possible, he chose the Pacific and the Caribbean. His first tour in 1975 to Tahiti was a smash. After that he invaded Guadeloupe. Another hit.

Encouraged, last summer Lienert began packaging rafting trips down the Colorado River. Only in this case it wasn't really a nudie tour.

After all, wasn't everyone wearing life preservers?

Rampaging down rapids au naturel costs the nature creature $170 for two days and three nights. Guests take their own sleeping bags; Lienert furnishes the life preservers.

In Los Angeles the trip begins aboard Amtrak's train to Kingman, Ariz. where, still clothed, everyone boards a bus to Diamond Creek. Besides transportation, the package includes meals, wine and beer.

Two of the biggest producers of clothesless holidays are VIB Tours and Town and Country, both of New York. VIB, which stands for Vacations in the Buff, and Town and Country, which packages its trips under the label of Skinny Dip Tours, figure vacationers frequently misunderstand what their vacations are all about.

Take VIB, for instance. Founded in 1970 by travel agent Mike Kong, VIB fashioned a series of week-long vacations to toasty destinations "where opportunities for unclad sunbathing were available."

This is where the misunderstanding came about. VIB failed to mention that these same destinations offered "clothing optional" beaches as well.

The idea isn't to arrive and disrobe immediately. Special, private breaches are set aside for such frivolous pastimes.

"People don't seem to understand," said Kong, the king of the nudies. "We provide these beaches for total sunbathing, but everywhere else our guests wear clothing."

As for the nude beaches, no one is forced to use them. Says Kong: "It's like a tennis court. It's there and you have the option to play if you wish. It's up to you."

In the words of the operator, the free-wheeling vacations are tailored for the sun worshipper who considers the wearing of a bikini a bit too dressy.

Among the accommodations used by VIB is Les Alizes Beach Hotel on the Caribbean isle of Guadeloupe. Set among a spread of tropical trees, Les Alizes reopened recently after a complete sprucing up. Besides its 120 rooms, it offers the guest a swimming pool with sunken bar, an open-air dining room, a discotheque and a boutique.

With a guest list that's divided among Americans, Canadians and Europeans, Les Alizes follows the Club Med routine by offering a free sports package consisting of sailing, snorkeling, introductory scuba lessons and fishing.

It's a Friday-to-Friday deal that includes the round-trip flight fro L.A., breakfast, three dinners with wine, a beach barbecue, an island sightseeing tour, movies twice a week and a VIB kit consisting of a T-shirt (who knows, someone might decide to dress up!), a wallet for your passport and luggage tags.

Cool is the word for VIB.

Out of St. Thomas, VIB also operates schooner cruises among the Virgin Islands for sunbathing crowds wishing to get it altogether. Sailing on Sunday and returning on Saturday, the graceful windjammer sleeps 34 passengers, who soak up rays by day and rum by night.

For the week-long cruise the passenger plunks down $319. And in return, VIB provides three meals a day, plus snacks, along with complimentary drinks.

During the outing the schooner puts in at deserted isles throughout the Virgins, where passengers cast off clothing and snuggle up next to nature.

Ah, serenity.

Other vacationers in the buff chose Hotel Bois Jolie on Ile des Saintes off Guadeloupe. A word of caution, though: Only souls with a real thirst to get away from it all should apply. Ile des Saintes is without distractions. There is no nightlife, no noisy discotheques.

As for the hotel, it contains only 20 rooms. Bois Jolie is operated as a French country inn. Quiet and romantic, it is particularlly popular with the honeymoon crowd.

After that there is Le Galion Beach Hotel on the island of St. Martin, where the chef (he hails from Paris) gets rave reviews from his recipes.

Now we come to Town and Country, with its Skinny Dip Tours. In Florida, Town and Country's skinny-dippers shed their cares in the village of Kissimee, which is close to the bosom of Disney World. At Kissimee's Cyprus Cove resort, trailer homes are available for as little as $90 a week (double occupancy), including use of a car.

Skinny Dip also provides tours to carious European spas in France, Corsica and Yugoslavia for as little as $125 a week, including all meals.

Among the cavalcade of skinny-dippers, the French Mediterranean village of Agde between Marseilles and Barcelona remains a favorite haunt. Here everyone runs about in the buff — not only vacationers but citizens.

Air travel growth forecast at 8%

MONTREAL (CP) — Commercial air travel will grow by about eight per cent each year between now and 1981, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) says in a recently-released report.

The report predicts that travel will increase by more than 10 per cent a year in three air corridors: Europe-Middle East, with 14.3 per cent, North Africa-Central America, 11.7 per cent, and Central Africa-South America, 11 per cent.

The heavily-travelled North Atlantic route between North America and Europe will grow by 7 per cent annually, and intra-Europe travel by 5.8 per cent, the report says.

The North America-Central America corridor is expected to grow by 4.4 per cent.

The North Atlantic route currently accounts for 24.5 per cent of worldwide passenger-kilometres travelled, and this is expected to drop to 24.9 per cent by 1981.

Travel between Canada and Europe currently accounts for five per cent of the market, and this will drop to 4.5 per cent by 1981, IATA says.

The organization says worldwide passenger-kilometres will reach a total of 367.8 billion by 1981.

All the forecasts are based on the assumption that airlines will take steps to modernize their fleets to adapt to demand.

Air travel has grown at a rate of approximately 8.6 per cent annually for the last two years.

Fishing zone

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union has announced that a 200-mile fishing zone along its Pacific and Arctic coastlines will go into effect March 1.

Foreign trawlermen will be barred from fishing in the zone unless their governments have an agreement with Moscow. Offenders face fines of up to $100,000 roubles $132,600.

The timing of the announcement was apparently linked with two important rounds of fisheries negotiations that the Soviet Union will hold next week with the European Common Market and Japan.

Austerity government key to future

Mexican Casals festival struggles to succeed

By THOR ECKERT

MEXICO CITY — "This could develop into the most important festival in Latin America."

So says Eugene Istomin of the new music festival in Mexico City known, for now, as the "Jornadas Internacionales Casals." Istomin and his wife Marta, widow of the late Pablo Casals, were in the city watching the results of months of organizational efforts.

When this critic caught up with the festival, held in October and November last year, Eduardo Mata was conducting a program that included Mozart's Mass in C Minor at the Palace of Fine Arts — a striking art-deco auditorium with a Tiffany glass dome and (though it was not used during the concert season) a Tiffany-glass curtain.

Istomin bore the burden of artistic organization of the festival, much as his wife has the responsibility of the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico. The Mexican government, then under Luis Echeverria, approached Istomin to start a festival in Mexico. Once the officials had been interested in the idea of honoring Casals, Istomin stepped in to help organize.

Top musicians

Top on the list of participants to invite were people who had had some contact with Casals as friends or participants in his festivals — names such as Mieczyslaw Horszowski, the pianist, and Alexander Schneider, the violinist-conductor.

Others who represented a high standard of excellence were also included to give this an international profile, in keeping with other Casals festivals. Thus, Zubin Mehta, Pinchas Zuckerman, pianist Claude Franck, the London Symphony Orchestra, the Guarneri Quartet, and — because no Mexican festival would be complete without him — the rising light of young conductors, Mexican Eduardo Mata.

But Istomin is very definite when he states: "The festival would fail in its intent if it does not continue — not as a Casals festival, but as a national festival of Mexico."

He and his wife emphasized that this in no way replaces or hampers the ongoing Casals tradition in Puerto Rico. Rather, both see the founding of a Casals Orchestra in Mexico as a steppingstone to a festival that will honor the legendary cellist-humanist in name without necessarily fitting into the particular confines of a "Casals festival."

Says Intomin: "A Casals festival necessarily has to follow the lines, the tastes, and the standards that he believed in. But that doesn't necessarily fit into every situation. I can see the effect of this one as — I hope, anyway — (having) given a kind of injection of high quality that they must continue to develop."

The orchestra — a conglomeration of the National Philharmonic, the university group, and some 22 Americans flown in especially — is more enthusiastic than polished. Maestro Mata has the uncanny ability of focusing that energy — including that of the raw but committed choir — into something quite direct and moving: The Mozart constantly thrilled for its impassioned drama. When suavity was needed, as in support of the solos rendered stunningly by Benita Valente, various solo instrumentalists proved quite capable.

Improvements

Istomin emphasizes that the players must constantly improve themselves to reach the goal of the most important music festival in Latin America. "My leaning very much is to let them swim as much as possible."

The test will be to see if the enthusiasm demonstrated on stage and in the audience is sufficient to get the orchestra players to work diligently enough to ensure, ultimately, an all-Mexican orchestra of higher standards.

Surely if Mata has anything to do with the orchestra, the results could be swift and impressive. For Mata, already a jest-set conductor, has developed the Phoenix Symphony into an orchestra well on its way to becoming fully professional. He is about to take over the Dallas Symphony.

In fact, Mata could be a very good candidate for eventual music directorship of the Mexico City festival. For the Istomins feel their contributions will be short-term — three or four years. Istomin wants to get out of the festival organizing business.

He wants to learn some new piano works, so he plans to take July, 1977, through January, 1978, off with no concerts and no activities but study. That will allow them both to devote necessary time to the Puerto Rico festival before the July "cut-off."

The question that looms high over the future of the Mexico festival concerns the new Portillo government that took over Dec. 1, after being elected on an austerity campaign.

The festival officials will now have to convince the new government not only that audiences are forthcoming, but that the cultural good for the nation justifies the government's continued underwriting of one-third of the festival costs. The other two-thirds come from the private sector and the festival box office.

That the national television network broadcast each festival concert to some three million listeners is strong argument in favor of the cultural benefits. The orchestra has also gone on a limited tour. During its performances in Mexico City, several of the high-priced concerts were repeated in a nearby movie house (with better acoustics, everyone noted) at prices around $1.

There have been some slight resentments — Istomin was attacked in the media for "showing himself off" in the festival, and for not hiring Mexican pianists.

Yet he receives no fee for his work as organizer, only for the few concerts he played — with the Istomin-Stern-Rose trio and as a soloist later on. The festival he observes is not meant to be a place of auditioning new talent or offering that hit-or-miss "break to stardom."

So, assuming the Portillo government chooses to support the festival, the Istomins will be involved for a few more years, probably. "We don't want to institutionalize our thing!" Istomin notes wryly.

The time and place seem right for something major. Apart from Buenos Aires, there are few major active festival-type musical events in Latin America. Mexico City's has all the potential of becoming a major — something people will want to travel to, like Edinburgh, Hong Kong, or any of the big summer spots in America.

This summer, discover Russia and Northern Europe. In the unmistakable style of a World Class ship.

This summer, sail off into a world of dazzling human achievement. Discover Rembrandt's Amsterdam. The Hermitage Museum in Leningrad. The medieval spires of Hamburg. Visit the glistening, cosmopolitan cities of Stockholm and Helsinki, the ancient pirate stronghold of Visby. Sail through the Kiel Canal, miles longer than the Panama Canal.

It will be a two-week adventure of splendid beauty. As well as rousing good fun. For your ship will be the Royal Viking Sea or Royal Viking Sky. World Class ships of Norwegian registry offering a level of elegance, comfort and spaciousness that's a class above First Class.

For instance, other ships their size carry 700 or more passengers. The World Class ships of Royal Viking Line carry 500, to give everyone aboard an added feeling of space and freedom. 94% of all passengers enjoy outside staterooms. The dining room, set high on an upper deck, is large enough to serve everyone at a single, relaxed seating. The menu boasts an ever-changing selection of fine cuisine. And there are three crew members for every five passengers, to see that you are cared for in the best Continental tradition.

There's more; a whole world more. Energetic deck games and secluded, restful lounges. A physical fitness program and a unique Enrichment Program. Fine evening entertainment and deserted, moonlit railings.

This is World Class cruising. Cruising as you always dreamed it should be. Enjoy it on one of our six Russia/Europe cruises this summer. Four sail round trip from the magic city of Copenhagen in June, July and August. One sails from Southampton to Copenhagen May 27. One sails from Copenhagen to Southampton and continues on to New York and Ft. Lauderdale August 26. Many can be combined with a two-week North Cape cruise to the fjords of Norway.

Travel agents report a boom

Where are all the Canadians?

By The Canadian Press

The coldest winter in recent memory has persuaded thousands of Canadians to seek warmer climates. Despite higher airline fares, reports of cold weather and labor disputes involving some resort hotels in the south, Florida, Hawaii, the Caribbean, California and Texas remained the favorite retreats of many winter travellers.

In a Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press, some areas reported travel business was up as much as 24 per cent as travellers sought to take advantage of the devalued pound sterling and peso in Britain and Mexico. Colombia was also a surprise area in the winter vacation sweepstakes.

One West Coast travel agent reported his business up 25 per cent over the previous season.

Portugal, a favorite for many Canadian tourists in recent years, suffered a drop in popularity because of political unrest there. Also, Portuguese leaving former African colonies took up much of that country's hotel space, according to Harsey's, a Newfoundland agency.

Western Canadians concentrated on Hawaii, Florida and California with many having to postpone ski holidays near Christmas because of poor snow conditions that threatened to put several resort operators out of business.

Central Canadians took advantage of package tours to the Caribbean, Acapulco and a new spot—the Canary Islands off the northwest coast of Africa.

Eastern Canadians sought refuge from winter blasts in Florida and Barbados with some interest in Cuba.

This is how travel agents in various Canadian regions reported the winter exodus:

Maritimes

People in this area went mostly to Florida because, as Robert Sime of Sun Tours Ltd. in Halifax said: "Dollar for dollar, they get more for their money there." Sun Tours has two flights a week, beginning the first week of February and continuing for 14 weeks, carrying 216 persons a trip from Halifax.

Scott Linkletter of Linkletter's Travel Agency in Charlottetown agreed with Sime's assessment of Florida vacations. He added that the travel industry has recommended that school boards in the Maritime provinces stagger the March break to allow more people to travel.

Ten years ago, he said, only a limited number went south for winter vacations. "But the price is so low now it's within reach of many people. They save for it like they would for a piece of furniture."

Several Moncton, N.B., travel agents reported bookings as far ahead as March, 1978.

"There are requests from people who want to get off the beaten track but we can't handle those at good prices," said Bruce Leach of Caramac Travel Consultants Ltd. Leach also said there is a "built-in" dissuasion from going to some parts of the Bahamas.

"When the super-rich found themselves invaded in Nassau, they moved to other islands and protected their seclusion by owning the hotels which they reserve for their own guests."

Ontario, Quebec

In Central Canada, most tourists head for Florida but there has been strong interest in the Caribbean and Mexico.

Jeanine Cannan of House of Travel in Montreal said people are buying at the last minute.

She also attributed the increased interest in Mexican sunspots to a decrease in value of the peso. Other popular spots with Montrealers are Barbados, Jamaica and the Bahamas with some interest in Cuba.

John Darby, travel branch manager for Eaton's Travel in Toronto, said Air Canada flights to the Caribbean this winter have increased 90 per cent and general-rate flights beyond March were booked before Christmas. Holiday costs were up 15 to 20 per cent, mainly through increased flight fares and hotel rates, but that didn't stop the sun seekers. He said the most popular Florida tours were those including Disney World.

Steve Kaufman of Skylark Holidays Ltd. of Toronto, a charter operation, said Canadian tourists are sticking mostly to the traditional hot spots and John Wilson of New Horizons Travel Ltd. said March is shaping up as the "same month of panic and frustration as always."

Wilson also said efforts had been made to persuade Ontario school boards to stagger holidays to avoid the Easter crush much in the same manner as is done by some Ivy League colleges in the United States.

Prairies

Hawaii has been a runaway favorite, followed by the Caribbean and Florida with some interest in U.S. ski resorts.

"It's Hawaii, Hawaii all the way," said Linda Rose of Neville World Travel Service Ltd. in Edmonton. "There's hardly any space left on our Hawaii charters."

Susan Lee of Burritt Travel in Edmonton said the agency handled one package tour to Colombia that was fully booked.

Some Saskatchewan agencies said ski packages to Canadian spots have been down considerably because of lack of snow and possibly those potential skiers have switched to warmer areas.

Chris Weigl, Manitoba district manager for Thomas Cook Travel Agencies, said just before Christmas there was space available to virtually all vacation spots. He suggested that was because profits have not been as high in Manitoba businesses as in previous years.

West Coast

The goal was definitely Hawaii, said travel agents in British Columbia. Good hotel rooms required booking 18 months in advance.

Don Renshaw, western regional manager of Eaton's Travel in Vancouver, said Christmas travel increased to more than $400,000 from $302,000 in 1975. Mexican vacations were big at Christmas but fell off in January despite devaluation of the peso. However, the biggest surprise in international bookings was the number of flights to Colombia.

"The advance reports were so favorable these flights have been sold out until April," Renshaw said before Christmas.

Nick Hughes of Hughes Travel Ltd. said Disneyland and southern California tours were still available and Jack McLaren of Skyline Travel said Cuba is becoming popular. All travel agents agreed the price of travel has not kept pace with other cost increases — package tours to Hawaii cost only 10 to 12½ per cent more than they did three years ago.

Ghost town creaks with old memories

From Virginia City, blazing with lights from the gambling houses, you can see the high Sierra, covered with snow in the frosty night.

The Territorial Enterprise, where Mark Twain wrote, is about to be revived again. "A national newspaper," say the publishers.

There was a touch of pogonip in the nippy air as I drove up the Geiger grade.

Snow has come at last to the towering Sierra across the grey-green, sagebrush flats of the Washoe Valley.

Pogonip is a kind of mountain fog. It is an Indian word — the Indians are gone except for the few Paiutes whose great-grandpas were fast at ducking.

Travel tips

It is chilly enough to make you nip into one of the player-piano saloons.

I find that Mr. Lucius Beebe, the last upholder of Comstock elegance, is sorely missed.

Mr. Beebe has packed up his type case and moved to The Great Pressroom in the Sky.

The Liveliest Ghost Town is not as lively as it was.

Some years ago, Mr. Beebe moved into Virginia City. He restored The Territorial Enterprise.

He bought up the former residence of John Piper, who ran the opera house.

(He had to remove two cowboys and their horses, who were living there in a kind of barn-like companionship.)

He put in 16 chandeliers from New Orleans.

He put in a half dozen slot machines — one in the bathroom. They were all fixed to pay off handsomely in the highest traditions of Western hospitality.

The Liveliest Ghost Town in the world is on top of sawtooth of bleak Nevada hills, a half-hour drive from Reno.

It claims a permanent population of fewer than 1,000 citizens. Soaked in whisky by 17 saloons.

It has a million memories — $750 million worth of silver memories, to be exact. For that is what the Comstock miners dug out of these tunnelled hills. While the music went round and round in the gaudy dance halls. And overnight millionaires stuffed themselves with imported tinned oysters.

Mr. Beebe walked the ghostly streets in a claw-hammer coat and a flat, black hat with a Western brim.

He imported cases of Bollinger champagne and Jack Daniel's sourmash bourbon.

His paper extolled the memory of Julia Bulette, a dance hall belle who was felled by a dastard whose name escapes me. Anyway, he was a dastard.

He cried for a return to the rugged honesty of those past days when Julie's killer was strung up. The fair Julia was buried at the wettest, weepiest funeral in Comstock memory.

Mr. Beebe covered a current execution of a Nevada criminal purely from a gourmet standpoint. He looked over the menu requested by the condemned man for his last meal. He thought it was awful.

"Enough," wrote Mr. Beebe, "to make anyone confess."

Under such lively prodding, the Liveliest Ghost Town did indeed become livelier.

More saloons opened — to take care of the passing tourist as well as the thirsty inhabitants.

Antique shops opened along the board sidewalks.

Their windows were carefully coated with dust. You could peer through and see genuine, millionaire-miner antiques. All of it sold well. The shops had to import more each week from an antique-manufacturer in Los Angeles.

Sardinia offers quiet and luxury

By LOUIS CHAPIN

CAGLIARI, Sardinia — If you are planning a holiday trip to the Mediterranean, and like to step off the beaten path, don't overlook Sardinia.

By air or by sea this mid-ocean island is easy to work into a flexible itinerary — in fact the variety of ship routes between Sardinia and the Italian mainland could offer you a low-cost, mini-Mediterranean cruise to add to an otherwise airborne trip.

Here's one way to go: From Civitavecchia (near Rome) you can cross to Olbia, then angle your way south. When you're ready to leave Sardinia from its southern capital port of Cagliari, another sizable boat might take you to Naples or Palermo or all the way up to Genoa. And the sea part, including a berth for the night, could cost as little as $30 a person from the mainland and back again.

The two main lines are the Terrenia (with an office at 5 World Trade Centre, New York) and the Canguro (write Piazza Peffenu 4, 09100 Cagliari, Sardinia, Italy).

Most North American contact with this independent-feeling province of Italy has been limited to a few hours ashore from a cruise ship. But Europeans, for some years now have been finding first in the north, and more recently along the south coast, plenty of refreshing reasons for staying longer.

The northern resort areas well deserve such gleaming names as Costa Paradiso, Costa Dorata, Costa Smeralda; and the fishing port of Alghero, a short way down the west coast, shows in the simple, consistent forms and elegant detail of its buildings that the Aragonese were very much a part of its history (13th through 18th centuries).

Natural rock forms have their own brilliance, too, here as elsewhere, jutting out of the land and the sea and uniting them underground in the spectacular Neptune Grotto.

A recent trip was my introduction to the newer recreational areas nearby the south coast capital city of Cagliari. This countryside is 100 miles or so nearer North Africa than the northern resorts, more continuously summery in its climate, and more Moorish in the architectural look of things.

The most impressive recreational development here, sloping down between rocky hills and the sea, now is drawing international attention through the 250-acre Molas Golf Club of Santa Margherita di Pula. Here is found not only a stiff championship course but facilities for many other water and land sports. Condominium houses and a golf hotel are planned for those who like to be able to tee off practically from their front door.

For nongolfers there are inviting alternatives within a few miles. You don't need to know a putt from a birdie to enjoy resorts which offer white beaches, pools, sailing, tennis, and more.

The most ambitious of these is the Hotel Castello and its adjoining Forte Village — a member of the British-based Trust Houses Forte chain. It is no standardized lodging.

Even more than other hotel and cottage facilities in the area, the Forte Village units seem to be woven lovingly in and out of their piney, eucalyptus-fragrant surroundings.

The 55 ingeniously landscaped acres take in not only the cottages but a shopping piazza, an ecumenical church, a wide range of eating places, and sports running from basketball and football by way of six tennis courts to badminton and bowling — not to mention splashing from one to another of five fresh-water pools.

This is a great place for families, outdoors and in: There's a children's park and push chairs, and the hotel lists 36 available games.

The cost? Less than you might think — especially if you avoid high season (June through mid-September). With all meals, a cottage between September and June 10 is under $18 per person, even with only one occupant; for children under 12 it's half price. Medium season — from June 11 to July 8 and again from Aug. 29 to Oct. 31 — costs about a fifth more.

Police Nip Triad Revival

By FRANCIS DANIEL

SINGAPORE (Reuter) — Police vigilance has been increased after a recent attempt by Singapore's long-dormant Triad secret criminal societies to revive their gangland activities.

The Triads, a menace during the 1950s and 1960s, had planned midnight initiation ceremonies of new members in a jungle-crad area on the outskirts of Singapore city.

But police, acting on a tip-off, raided a Chinese temple and several other hideouts, arresting two Triad leaders and five other key members.

The leaders were sin-sehs, the third-highest ranking in the Triad hierarchy. Police regard them as valuable prizes since no Triad of their rank had been captured since the societies' terror campaign was at its peak.

An assortment of regalia used in Triad ceremonies, weapons and an account book with details of donations were also seized.

A sin-seh is a teacher on Triad matters. Above him is the "grand-master," who is the main administrator of the society and second-in-command.

The supreme leader of the Triad, known as the "black rod," is reputed to hold the power of life and death over all members.

Police believe the arrests have crippled the Triad societies. "There are still a handful of them, but they are mostly inactive," one police official said.

The total strength of the societies is not known, although they have been operating in Singapore almost since British adventurer Sir Stamford Raffles stepped on the island in 1819.

The first Triad society was founded in ancient China with the aim of overthrowing the Ching dynasty.

Early Chinese settlers revived the Triads in Singapore mainly for self-protection. In later years, however, the societies expanded their role to include gambling houses, vice-dens, smuggling syndicates and other criminal activities.

What makes the Triad unique among criminal organizations is the total secrecy surrounding its functions and the absolute loyalty of its members to the leadership.

There have been cases where Triad members have gone to the gallows rather than betray their leaders. The Triad initiation ceremony prescribes death to traitors.

Punishment is known to be swift.

The ceremony is held on a moonlit night in a jungle. Elaborate paraphernalia are laid out for the highly solemn occasion.

The recruits, all naked above the waist and wearing a white band around the forehead, kneel while the sin-seh reads out 36 oaths from a yellow sheet of paper.

A cockerel is beheaded before the altar of Kwang Teh, the god of loyalty and righteousness, to warn traitors of a similar fate.

A few drops of the rooster's blood, incense paper ashes and rice wine are added in a bowl to blood squeezed out of the left middle finger of every recruit.

The sin-seh places a "magic" sword across the bowl and each new member takes a sip to signify his acceptance of the Triad brotherhood.

Each recruit is then given three cents as "capital" to start life anew.

Singapore's rapid industrialization and urbanization have deprived the secret societies of suitable places for initiation ceremonies.

They now resort to less conspicuous recruitment procedures, sometimes in apartments.

The number of gangland incidents has dropped drastically over the years, he added.

While hundreds of such incidents were reported annually in the 1950s and 1960s, there were fewer than 10 in 1976.

Child Care Still Major Issue

elizabeth forbes

The young woman who asked me recently what were major concerns of women in British Columbia, seemed surprised when I suggested that while employment ranked first among four major concerns, child care was a close seoond.

I was qutoing from a report compiled last year by Lynne Pearson on material obtained when she travelled throughout the province as head of a travelling van program sponsored by the International Women's Year Secretariat, based in the Privy Council office at Ottawa.

The van vistied large and small communities throughout British Columbia, and wherever it stopped Lynne talked to women of those communities.

Focus of the program was to develop awareness of status of women issues amongst the uninvolved in the province. Also to provide specific information on services and resources to women in isolated areas, to help women's groups link up with each other, and to function as a catalyst for action.

Wherever communications were established; whenever these woman-to-woman talks were held, the problem of child care was linked closely with the problem of employment.

In many of the smaller communities there were no child care centres and baby sitting was very much on an ad hoc basis.

Very few women were lucky enough to have — or could afford a housekeeper to look after children.

There were a limited number of day care centres in the province but they could not begin to accommodate the large number of children requiring care.

In any case, if a woman had more than one child, it was doubtful she would be able to afford the rates of a day care centre.

It was also pointed out that there was a limited amount of money available for subsidization and that it was not being increased.

The report showed that care for children under three years of age was particularly difficult to obtain throughout the province.

That it was almost impossible for women who have to work on shift to get adequate child care and that many women had to quit their jobs because of this—and often the only alternative is welfare.

These findings — and other facts in the Lynne Pearson report—immediately started a flurry of activity amongst those women's groups and organizations throughout the province, that are dedicated to bettering conditions for women and children.

When the women's Rally for Action assembled at the Legislative Buildings a year ago, many of the urgent issues of concern to women as presented in the Pearson report—were taken personally to our elected representatives.

In connection with child care the rally urged that if women were to have equal opportunity in the labor force they must be relieved of the exclusive responsibility for caring for their children.

That the number of child care services must be increased in both urban and rural areas.

That child care be made available on a 24-hour-a-day basis, at schools for after 3 p.m., for children under three years and for homemakers who are ill.

A current edition of Victoria Status of Women News, issued by our Status of Women Action Group, reminds us that it was on March 22, 1976, that women from all over the province converged on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings to present their immediate concerns to their MLAs.

Since then, it adds, women have continued to lobby individual MLAs on various women's issues in their ridings.

Now it says, "our big question is did they hear us?"

I wonder!

Last two of four major issues of concern to women in British Columbia, pinpointed in the Lynne Pearson report, are legal and matrimonial property rights and the image of women.

I'll talk about these in my next column.

Postscript — Awhile back when David Balmer, administrative assistant with Victoria Conservatory of Music, met Bill and Roz Bowie of the Emily Carr Centre on Government Street, he suggested it could be used, on occasions for intimate musicales.

Result? A Victoria Conservatory of Music senior students' concert, Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Emily Carr Centre.

Featured will be Jane Mackenzie and Gordana Lazarevich, pupils of the conservatory's Frances Adaskin. They will be accompanied by Philip Tillotson, also a conservatory student.

This is the first of what David Bulmer hopes will be a series of student concerts, from time to time, performed outside the Victoria Conservatory of Music home in Craigdarroch Castle.

SCRAPS OF OLD SHIPS KEEPS HIS HOBBY GOING

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Joseph B. Richard turns scraps of old ships into fine furniture, all because he has fallen in love with a wood called teak.

"It's really hard to say how I got started," he said. "I just got interested in it and now I can't put it down. We have friends and relatives all over watching for old teak ships to come in."

Richard has an uncanny eye for teak, able to see it where others see only ratty old boards. If he couldn't, he said, he couldn't afford his hobby. Teak costs a bundle.

The teak he has scrounged was probably cut a century back, he said, and he sometimes finds engravings from the country in which the ship was built. One such engraving, he said, turned out to be some sort of royal seal.

Three years ago, Richard began working with this oriental wood used in shipbuilding. He was looking for something different for his son's room, was offered a slab of teak and converted it into a table.

Later he got some teak off an old ship which had made its last voyage and began his most spectacular furniture project, a grandfather clock.

"Really, I had no idea I wanted a grandfather clock until I started," he said.

He and his wife Grace saw a clock they liked and got blueprints for it. "I almost wore out those blueprints studying them," Richard said.

"Some of the measurements were not exact, so I had to recheck every detail.

Six weeks of spare time produced 112 pieces of the clock, each piece hand-cut and hand-carved, sanded and rubbed and sanded again.

Then followed six weeks of putting the pieces together. Everyone in the family helped while Richard rubbed and sanded to erase seams.

"I would get criticism from every member of the family," he said. "Then I would go back and perfect what they said had flaws."

After 12 weeks, Richard began to oil-rub the piece by hand. Ten times he went over the clock to produce its present patina.

The Richard love affair with teak has produced other furniture, including a prize-winning, 150-pound hope chest for daughter Ann, smaller clocks and carved figurines.

But the grandfather clock is his favorite.

"It's really the workard. "The clock is not for stand out," said Mrs. Richmanship that makes our clock sale. It's better than any we can find."

New mothers will welcome all the advice they can get on how to handle their newborn.

The richly illustrated 12-page booklet "Baths and Babies" first explains the preparations you have to make for the baby's bath. It then shows and explains how to wash a baby's face with clear water and how to pat it dry.

The booklet also tells you how to wash a baby's scalp and how to rinse it. It explains that after a baby's navel has healed, he can be put into a tub and urges you to always keep a firm grip on your little one while he is in the water.

After the baby has been patted dry, sprinkle baby powder on your hand and apply it to the large areas of your baby. As a final touch, after you have cleansed around the genitals with soap and water, apply baby oil or lotion to prevent chafing.

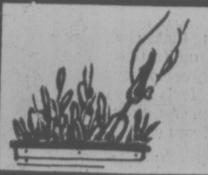
Soprano Performs

A senior student at UVic and the Conservatory of Music and tied for first place in a recent concerto competition at UVic, soprano Jane MacKenzie has a busy week ahead.

On Sunday she will be heard in a short recital at the Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government, from 3 to 4 p.m., assisted at the piano by Philip Tillotson.

Monday night the concerto program at UVic's MacLaurin auditorium will take place with James Walker conducting the University Chamber Orchestra. Jane will sing Mozart's Exultate Jubilate accompanied by the orchestra.



indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Readers: We've received so many letters requesting specific information on individual plants that we are going through the plants, one at a time, sharing all pertinent information. You will want to clip these columns as we'll be introducing you to new potential plant friends, as well as reintroducing you to some old favorites.

BROMELIAD. The bromeliad is a beautiful and exotic genus of plant. The most famous member is the pineapply bromeliad, which may be hard to pronounce (bro-meal-a-add) but it's easy to grow and such an eyeful! Not too many years ago, if you wanted a bromeliad, you would have had to locate a hobbyist and purchase one privately, since not much was known about this exciting plant and it was not grown commercially to any great extent. But now you can find bromeliads at practically every nursery and plant store.

Native to mountains and rain forests and to the rocky seasides of Central and South America, bromeliads dwell as "air plants" on trees and rocks, or as terrestrials on the forest floor. It is estimated that there are now more than 1,800 species in the bromeliad genus, which is known by the Latin name Bromeliaceae.

Their shape is usually a rosette of leathery leaves, sometimes plain, others with bizarre designs. The bright pink flowers may be hidden deep in the center and surrounded by brilliant green inner leaves, or may be found high on snowy spikes.

Besides their beautiful coloring and leaf designs, bromeliads are easy to maintain. They store an emergency supply of water in a natural cup or vaselike center, formed by their durable foligae. Their root systems serve largely as a means of attaching themselves to trees, rocks or other convenient hosts. They are ideally suited for hanging pots or for placing on plaques or driftwood. It has been found that as long as a bromeliad receives its needed moisture through the center funnel, the plant can get along quite awhile without any roots at all. The roots should be kept dryish, but water must stand in their cups. They can be foliar fed (which means to spray a weak mixture of fertilizer onto the leaves).

The bromeliad needs a bright sunny window. A piece of apple placed in its cup will encourage the plant to flower. Nobody knows why this is so, but our dear friend and foremost bromeliad expert swears by this tactic.

In the bromeliad's propagation pattern, the mother plant produces babies, which are called pups, at the soil level of the original plant. About three months after the new little plants have formed, you can take the plant out of the pot and, with a sharp knife, cut off the babies and pot them individually. The bromeliad will only flower once in its life, and sometimes, if the babies are left with the mother plant, the older plant will die then the little ones get strong enough. Then you should cut out the old plant leaving the babies by themselves to perpetuate the system.

Aechmea fasciata is the most popular variety, available in plant shops, nurseries and supermarkets.

dear abby

Shotgun Refused

DEAR ABBY: Our son is 13 years old and a freshman in high school. A 12-year-old junior high girl will have a baby next June, and our son will be that baby's father.

Thank God he had the courage to bring the little girl to us and tell us. The girl's parents both work, drink and run around while the child stays home days (and many nights) alone, with no supervision whatsoever.

We went to the girl's parents, and they told us they would have our boy jailed for statutory rape if we didn't give them $1,000 in cash. My husband said he wouldn't get involved with blackmail. Then they suggested the kids get married in a state that allows kids their age to marry with parental consent. We refused.

We think it would be better for all concerned if the girl had her baby and gave it up for adoption. Are we doing right in refusing to consent to this marriage? — PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: In my opinion, yes. The baby will be much better off in an adoptive home with parents who really want a child. You need a lawyer to acquaint you with your son's rights and obligations.

It may be a bit late to tell you that your son's education on "the birds and bees" must have been sadly neglected. But perhaps this will serve to warn other parents that this CAN and DOES occur.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 32-year-old man who is self-supporting, and although I didn't graduate from college, I did go for two years. I know that my spelling and grammar is far from perfect, but I'm not exactly illiterate.

My problem is my mother. She taught school before she was married, and now lives in a distant state. When I write to her, she returns my letters with all the errors in spelling and grammar "corrected" with a red pencil!

At first I just ignored it, but I have had enough. Should I write to her and ask her to please quit correcting my letters? Or should I just quit writing?

My wife says, "Skip it. Your mother is probably getting senile."

Senile at 58?—BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: It's doubtful. Why not look at it this way: Your mother is really doing you a favor by pointing out your mistakes. But if you're all that bugged, level with her. (Old school teachers never die, they just lose their class.)

DEAR ABBY: My grandmother is the sweetest woman who ever lived. She had a stroke a couple of years ago and is quite old now. She is always talking about dying. When I am with her she tells me to be sure that Aunt G gets this and that Uncle B doesn't get anything. And she has told me repeatedly that she wants me to have her diamond brooch, her good dishes and her silver, and she wants my husband to have Grandpa's gold watch. I know I am her favorite granddaughter, and she has told me repeatedly what she wants me to have.

Since her dying is inevitable, do I continue to tell her not to talk about it? Or should I be realistic and say, "Gram, I think you ought to write that down"? I don't want to appear grabby. — SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: There's nothing "grabby" in suggesting that she "write it down." That's the only way she can be sure that her wishes will be carried out after she is.

PARATHYROID PARANOIA

Our doctor found that my mother has trouble with her parathyroid gland and needs an operation. A famous entertainer told the story of how he lost his voice after such an operation. Do we have to look forward to such a possibility? —Mrs. J.D.

Dear Mrs. D.:

Let me immediately reassure you that paralysis of the vocal cord is a rarity following surgery for the removal of parathyroid tumors.

Many of my readers express interest in the parathyroid. This gives me a good opportunity to talk about these remarkable glands.

Four to six tiny, pea-size parathyroid glands lie deep within the throid gland in the neck. Despite their smallness these glands play a most important role in the complexity of the body's hormone (endocrine) system.

The parathyroid glands secrete a hormone which controls the level of calcium in the blood. The hormone also affects the release of calcium from the bones. The delicate balance of calcium in the blood affects the proper functioning of all the nerve and muscular tissue in the body.

A number of symptoms are associated with over-secretion or under-secretion of the parathyroid. Many of these symptoms may be vague, and may even be overlooked, until the blood study solves the riddle. A marked change in the relationship between calcium and phosporus in the blood stream suggests parathyroid disturbance.

Small tumors of the parathyroid can cause an oversecretion of the gland. When these tumors are removed by operation the nerve that moves the vocal cord may occasionally be injured. Surgeons trained in this specialty are exceedingly careful to insure that such a complication does not occur.

Is it safe to use penicillin that has been lying around for a few months? I hate to throw them out and waste the money.—Mrs. B.L., Mich.

Dear Mrs. L.:

I can hardly blame you for not wanting to waste any of the money paid for expensive drugs. Yet it is not wise to use antibiotics that have been "lying around" unless you have checked the expiration date with your pharmacist. Many odd reactions have been attributed to antibiotics whose safety period has expired.

Physicians usually prescribe just about enough of these drugs to carry one through a period of infection.

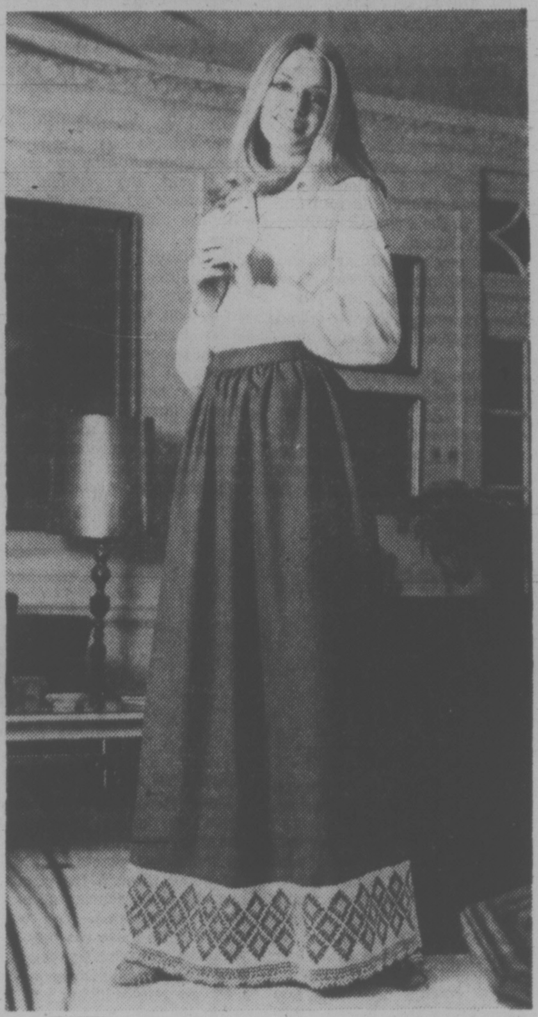
KNIT AND CHAT

Special Treatment For Knee Warmers

By MAY E. MACLEAN



One day last summer I had a telephone call from a lady who lived in Fairview, Alberta, and she was visiting her daughter in Montreal. I invited her around for a cup of tea, and we had quite a pleasant visit discussing the various crafts. I was interested to learn that quite a few people do machine knitting. It is possible to use a hand-knitting pattern, especially when it calls for stocking-stitch, but some patterns just cannot be worked on machines, so I will have to include one or two of these with my column.

I very much regret that I cannot reply to every letter personally, sometimes I just write a short note at the bottom of your letter, answering the question. Time is very precious to me, so I hope you will understand. I try and answer your questions through the column, as many of them can be grouped together.

One lady writes that she has three very old quilts that she would like to give to her grandchildren, but feels they need freshening up. As they are very old, and if you do not feel a good airing outside would do the trick, I would suggest that you consult with a very reputable dry cleaners. Explain your problem to him and have him clean just one at first. There must be one who advertises that they take extra special care. I don't think I would chance washing, especially if they are very old. Perhaps some other reader's will have ideas on this, if so Mrs. Butcher, 151 Thornton Ave., London, Ont. N5Y 2Y7 will be pleased to hear from you.

Another lady writes that she has washed the quilt that she made just last winter, using a polyester thread to quilt with. She says "all the quilting (I presume stitches) has shrunk or drawn up. It is an awful mess!"

I'm afraid I cannot suggest a solution to this problem, but I would suggest that in the future you use the proper quilting thread which is put out by J & P. coats in three hundred yard spools, and it is called "Quilting Thread". Being a very old and reputable company, I am sure they would stand by their product. This thread is made with one hundred per cent cotton, which may be the answer as to why the polyester thread shrank.

Another lady writes: You gave the directions for knitted knee warmers, and I'd like to tell you how I made a pair in a hurry. I bought a large pair of men's socks with the stretchy tops. Then I cut off the toe and stitches around so that the stitches would not unravel. Pull them on with the heel part on top, and that fits the knee! This lady was eighty years young!

This glamourous trimming for a hostess skirt has a real flair for perking up an old skirt, or adding spice to a new one! There is a quaint touch reminding one of yesteryear about this particular pattern, and as you know nostalgia is all the "in" things! The edging takes just five balls of crochet cotton, but what a price you would have to pay for it in a boutique!

To order this week's pattern No. 7703, send seventy-five cents in coin, PLUS a stamped self addressed return envelope. If you do not have an envelope or stamp, please enclose an extra quarter to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to: May E. MacLean "Knit & Chat," c-o Box B, 486 Montford Dr., Dollard des Arneaux P.Q. H9G 1M6. Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly and to enclose your stamped return envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normal delivery. Catalogues are no longer available.

Put a Wriggle in the Food

Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Fanny, my frog, has been on a hunger strike ever since I got her. No matter how many kinds of food I put in her dish, she doesn't pay any attention to them. I've even changed dishes. It doesn't do any good. Nothing does, so I'm going to turn her loose before she starves to death. Why did it work out this way? I wanted to keep her. —D.R.

DEAR D.R.: If you'd been able to watch Fanny Frog find food in a favorable environment, you'd notice she didn't eat anything to which she wasn't first attracted by movement. You could fence in Fanny with delectable offerings, but unless something in the smorgasbord was moving, she wouldn't be stimulated to try it. For future reference, then, frogs (and toads) must be fed either live food or something which can be moved in some manner to simulate live food.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've finally (dumb me) discovered why Greedy, my little parakeet boy, spends all day eating. It's because his beak is all twisted out of shape. As soon as I can I'm going to take him in to the doctor. Do you think he'll be able to cure him? How could this have happened? He must have had it when I got him recently. He's never acted anything but fine here. —J.D.

DEAR J.D.: Most malformed beaks are the result of hereditary problems or a deep mite infestation which causes permanent damage to the beak base. Accidental injury accounts for a few. Corrective trimming is usually indicated to enable the bird to cope with its food. (Even then, special diets are sometimes necessary.) Unfortunately, though, a complete cure for such beak deformities is unlikely.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm keeping some of the Eastern mosquito fish, which must have been more common once, since I understand they were the ones that ate all the mosquitoes around the Panama Canal so it could be built. I've been feeding them mosquito larvae and a whole bunch of other stuff, but they haven't bred. Is there any way to increase my chances of getting them to do it? —V.A.

DEAR V.A.: Gambusia affnis holbrooki (the Eastern mosquito fish) is much more likely to do it (breed, that is) in an outside pool. For breeding, the pond should be shallow and heavily planted, the diet should be mostly live food including the mosquito larvae; the small fish can also handle white worms, cyclops and small daphnia.

Dear Dr. Miller; Chowder has suddenly become a less-loved cat around here. It's because he's taken to using the sandbox. The children's! We put a sandbox in the basement for rainy day play for the kids. Chowder thinks it's just great. Not only will it now be off-limits to the children, but Chowder won't use anything else. If we shut the basement door, he'll mess right in front of it. He's completely given up using his box and he's holding out for the sand. Help, and quick! —H.B.

DEAR H.B.: Any QUICK column help is a contradiction in terms, unfortunately. Yours is not the only cat to decide that sand — not kitty litter, but genuine sand — is a pussycat potty paradise. Since Chowder's crazy about sand, the obvious answer is to provide it. When he has a sandbox of his own, or perhaps even two (with the second by the basement door), you may have the problem effectively boxed in. Good luck.

IN SINGAPORE

Just Too Busy To Seek Mates

SINGAPORE (AP) — Marriage bureaus say business is booming because many Singaporeans with a yen for wedded bliss are tooo busy to seek out mates.

"Women work in the day and take courses at night," said Patsy Tay of the Singapore Marriage Bureau. "It leaves them almost no time to mix socially. For men who work on shifts, making friends is also difficult."

There are more than 30 bureaus and representatives of several said business has almost tripled since 1973. Some boast an 80 per cent success rate.

Statistics indicate that for every one of the 23,408 persons married in 1975 there was at least one lonely heart registered with a marriage bureau, dating service or other introductory agency. One in every dozen marriages in 1975 was said to have originated with marriage bureau help.

Singapore's population is 2.2 million, more than 75 per cent of whom are ethnic Chinese. The marriage bureaus say their clients are predominantly Chinese. A sociologist estimates about two per cent of the women here, mostly Malays and Indians, still accept the traditional form of arranged marriages between families.

Bureau bills range from $50 (about $20 Canadian) to $300 from registration to the day the knot is tied. Traditional matchmakers charge as much as $800. Andrew Soh said his Asia Marriage Aid charges a membership fee of $30 for a woman and $50 for males because "men earn more than women."

The fee for each introduction is $5 and there is no limit to the number of introductions. When wedding bells ring, a final fee of $150 is paid.

Female clients are generally attractive girls in their late teens or early 20s. The men are often qualified professionals younger than 45.

"These people sincerely want to get married," said the manager of one bureau. "The modern way of life and pressure of work gives them no chance to meet friends. They feel alienated and come to us for help."

The first meeting usually takes place at the bureau. Subsequent dates are left to the man's initiative. However, several bureaus arrange social gatherings for groups of singles instead of one-to-one introductions.

"Some seem to fall in love with the first match, get engaged within the first month of courtship and are married by their second month of acquaintance," said the spokesman for a bureau which claims to have about 2,000 marriage seekers on its books, ranging in age from 18 to 70.

"Others are very choosy. One client had to be introduced to 30 men before she found her Mr. Right."

Prospective clients are interviewed to make sure their intentions are genuine. Most require that male applicants sign a declaration that they are single. One turns away men under 25 earning less then $300 per month.

"Our work is serious," said the supervisor of one bureau. "We give value for money. The ultimate aim is marriage.

"This is not the plae for a casual pickup. If you want just a date for a flirt, better go elsewhere. About 80 per cent of our clients get married."

Iran Now Feeling the Pinch For Driving Oil Prices Up

By IBRAHIM NOORI

TEHRAN (Reuter) — The split among oil-exporting countries is turning out to be costly for Iran, the leading advocate of higher prices.

Iran is having to revise its spending plans because of a 35-per-cent drop in oil exports since Jan. 1 which is costing more than $22 million a day.

Iranian crude oil has been losing out to cheaper Saudi Arabian oil since the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) introduced a two-tier pricing system at the beginning of 1977.

Iran and most other OPEC countries raised their prices by 10 per cent from Jan. 1, and will raise them again July 1.

But Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates settled for a single five-per-cent increase and said any price rise beyond that would damage Western economies.

The split had quick repercussions in Iran which is committed to heavy spending to finance ambitious plans for industrial expansion and military development.

Budget and Planning Organization Minister Aboul-Majid Majidi said the budget for the financial year beginning March 21 will be sent to parliament two weeks late to allow time for the expenditure review to be completed.

Lower oil income meant new development projects would be avoided in favor of completing half-finished schemes, he said.

Foreign aid is to be reduced or cancelled and preference given to barter deals under which oil would be used directly to pay for imports.

Nine days after the OPEC price increases came into force, the government announced that exports by the Oil Service Company—the former Western oil consortium—and by the stateowned National Iranian Oil Company had dropped by about two million barrels a day from the previous month to 3.55 million barrels.

The government newspaper Rastakhiz said this amounted to a loss in reveue of $200 million in the nine-day period.

Piped natural gas sales to the Soviet Union fell to 18 million cubic metres a day from 25 million because of reduced oil production. Natural gas sales in 1975 were worth about $192 million.

A National Iranian spokesman said 25 international companies had contracted to buy a total of 60 million tons of crude in 1977.

But some of these firms, when told the OPEC price increases would be applied to them from January, had protested and demanded discounts. This was rejected, causing a considerable drop in purchases.

The shah was quoted by Business Week magazine as saying any oil company that did not honor its commitment to buy Iranian oiil would be blacklisted.

Iran "will never sell them oil again," he said.

Despite the trend towards economy in Iran, observers do not expect financial pressures to slow down its growth as an industrial and military power.

No major trimming is expected of the current five-year plan ending in March next year as major projects will either have been completed by then or will be due for completion during the sixth plan, which is still under study.

Despite the present uncertainties, the explosion in oil revenue from about $4.8 billion in 1973 to an estimated $21 billion in 1976 is rapidly changing the face of Iran.

Gross national product (GNP)—output of goods and services—increased more than eight times to $51.3 billion in 1975. In the same period per-capita income rose to $1,550 from $240.

Planners expect GNP to reach $232 billion and per-capita income $5,000 by 1985.

Tree-Shaped Planned City Rising in Amazon Jungle

NOVA MARABA, Brazil (Reuter) — The first fully planned city in the Amazon, laid out in the revolutionary form of a tree, is rising on a palm-studded plateau in the middle of the jungle.

By the turn of the century it is hoped that Nova Maraba, the jungle entrance to the Trans-Amazon Highway, will house some 300,000 people.

The central trunk of the tree will form the main highway, which in most modern cities skirts the periphery branches. On either side will be streets leading to 34 leaves, forming the residential neighborhoods.

Secondary streets will be laid out in mosaics, open only to light traffic.

The civic centre, with town hall, police and fire departments and other sevrices, will be located at the top of the tree trunk.

Urban planners call the new city the Brasilia of the Amazon, after Brazil's new capital, built in the shape of an airplane on the country's central plateau 17 years ago.

One of Nova Maraba's principal aims is to safeguard the jungle environment.

Its planners say the structure of the city penetrates into the jungle, which intersects the residential leaves, keeping the inhabitants in contact with nature and demarcating a green belt to be preserved.

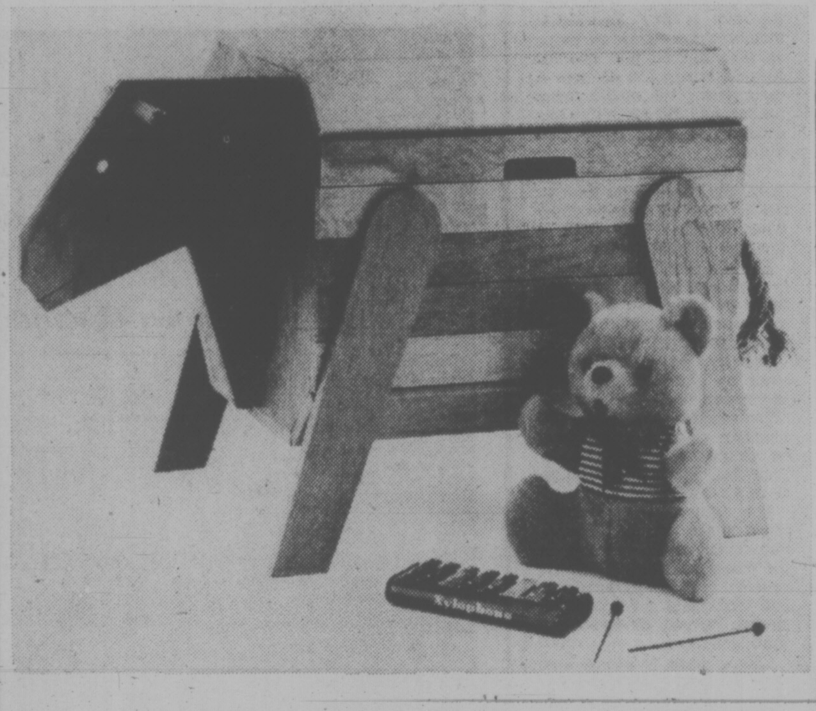
At present all that can be seen are some red mud roads and one or two leaves beginning to rise on the plateau between the Tocantins and Itacaiunas rivers.

Children, their bellies swollen from malnutrition, play outside the shacks among the trees.

One of the main reasons for building the new city is that old Maraba, a town of about 40,000 two miles from the site which has gained in importance since the construction of the Trans-Amazon Highway, is constantly subjected to flooding over much of its low-lying area.

In the new city, out of the reach of the flood waters, each leaf will have housing for up to 3,000 people in the initial stages. But there will be room for expansion. No building will be more than four storeys high. Food stores, health centres and schools will be located at the entrance to the leaves.

Some inhabitants are already expected to move in this year and four of the leaves are scheduled for completion within the next three years.



An Appealing Toy Chest

This smiling brown cow toy chest is so appealing that your youngsters are bound to be more cooperative about putting their toys away. Since you make this 18x18x24-inch-long toy chest from ¾-inch pine and plywood, it's sturdy enough to withstand climbing and sitting on. A one-inch dowel provides the horns and some frayed rope serves as the tail. The cow's back opens up and swings over via a handy cutout on the bottom of the lid.

The whole unit is covered with polyurethane varnish for protection against soil and scuffs.

To order the toy chest pattern No. 30396, send $2 cheque or money order plus 50 cents for postage and handling to: DECO-PLANS, c-o Victoria Times, P.O. Box 90, Boucherville, Quebec.

Royal Assent For Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — An income tax bill that the government had to twice use closure on to silence New Democratic Party critics was one of three bills given Royal assent Thursday.

The bill, which the NDP has said will only benefit the rich, increases deductions for registered pension and savings plans and child care. It also imposes a 10 per cent surtax on incomes over $30,000 for the 1976 taxation year only.

Brazil Curbs Immigrants

By OSCAR AZEVEDO

SANTOS, Brazil (AP) — They meet every night in the redlight district of Santos to discuss the news, what ships have arrived in port, plans to hoodwink immigration authorities or schemes to find a Brazilian woman who will help them survive in this foreign land.

They are Brazil's illegal aliens, a legion of men without a country who have slipped across a border or have been smuggled in aboard a ship.

They include Chileans, Argentines, Bolivians, Uruguaians, Chinese and Algerians, most of them trying to get Brazilian documents or find work on a ship that will hire them without papers.

Santos, a city of about 350,000, lies on the Atlantic coast in the southern Brazilian state of Sao Paulo. It is the major export point for Brazil's coffee crop and principal outlet for products of the city of Sao Paulo, Brazil's industrial heart.

Santos has a flourishing redlight district, whose bars and clubs attest to the multinational character of the port.

A typical group of illegal aliens can be found any evening in front of the Love Story Bar, waiting to meet girls.

Some may be political refugees, but politics is a forbidden subject among them.

Whatever brought these men to Santos, they share the same problem—the federal immigration law which regulates residence in Brazil. To get permission to remain permanently, they must get documents.

A major complaint is that they must pay $500 or more to get papers through despachantes—lawyer-like persons who are employed because they know the ins and outs of Brazil's massive and forbidding bureaucracy.

Aliens say the despachante's sometimes shady reputation is matched by the reputations of some of the maritime agents who hire these men to work on ships.

A source at the Santos immigration bureau said captains take on aliens with only tourist passports and pass them off as members of the crew. The men sneak off the boat at the next port.

Money problems are endemic among the aliens. It is common talk that a number of them find their solution the many women who work in one capacity or another around the Santos port.

The immigration bureau has five squads of agents working steadily to round up the illegal aliens who arrive in Santos and live within a six-mile area along the coast.

Brazil accepts immigrants with technical skills ranging from civil engineering to aeronautics, sheetmetal workers, high-seas fishermen, and winemakers. Unskilled laborers are less welcome and Fernando Paes de Barros of the immigration department said the country already had sailors in excess.

He said immigration officers, customs authorities and health officials watched boats closely but people without proper documents still get ashore.

If an alien is discovered on board, the captain of the boat is held responsible and is not allowed to let the person off. If the boat is staying a while the alien is taken to a special cell at immigration, where he stays until he can be repatriated at the expense of the maritime agent representing the boat on which he arrived.

Western Sahara Refugees Gather in Grim Camps

By PIERRE REQUETTE

TINDOUF, Algeria (Reuter) — Thousands of refugees from Western Sahara huddle among the barren rocks and sand of western Algeria.

They continue to trickle in from the former Spanish colony, where war is being waged by nationalist guerrillas against new Moroccan and Mauritanian rulers.

Spain divided the phosphate-rich desert territory between Morocco and Mauritania a year ago. But guerrillas of the Polisario Front, an Algerian-backed nationalist group which had fought the Spanish, continue the struggle for independence.

Polisario has vowed to prevent the disappearance of Western Sahara from the map in a division between Morocco, to the north, and Mauritania, to the south.

For their part, Morocco and Mauritania insist that they have only recovered territory taken from them in the colonialist era.

In less than a year, the conflict has produced thousands of refugees.

The Polisario Front says there are 105,000 refugees in Algeria and liberated zones of Western Sahara.

(The last Spanish census put the Saharan population at 73,500, but Polisario estimates it at 700,000, most of them nomads).

In the desert around this remote western Algerian town, 1,200 miles from Algiers, there are 22 camps, each with 2,000 to 4,000 people living in tents.

The refugees are known as Sahraouis.

A woman in her 40s, breastfeeding her young baby, had just settled down in one of the camps near Tindouf. Her tent was bare of even elementary equipment such as pots or a stove.

She said Moroccan troops were shooting goat and sheep herds which are the main livelihood for the Sahraoui nomads.

She said she had fled after her tribe's herds had been shot by Moroccans. During the trek through the desert, her refugee column was attacked twice by Moroccan planes. In the first attack the column was bombed, killing five people and many animals.

Another woman set out from El Aiiun, the former Western Sahara capital, with two other peoplen and found a party of Polisario guerrillas near the Bu Craa phosphate mines.

She said life had become impossible for the Sahraouis in the city, where there were more Moroccan troops than permanent residents.

The Sahraouis' problems are not over once they have reached Algerian territory.

Survival in the desert is a constant struggle and the refugees have lost their herds and pastures.

The nomads were used to high-protein meat diets which helped them withstand the drastic climate of the Sahara—a furnace by day but extremely cold at night.

Meat is a rarity in the camps. The refugees eat mainly pasta, semolina or bread with a few vegetables.

Cowichan Family Life Appointee

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley Family Life Association has appointed Norman Birch, 59, of Mill Bay as coordinator of special services.

Birch, who holds a master's degree in social work, moved to Vancouver Island a year ago. He had been in private practice in Calgary. He served as regional director for the Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission and was involved with the John Howard Society.

Before going back to school at the age of 47, he had established a successful retail business in Calgary.

During his move to Vancouver Island, one of his children was involved in an accident that left him paralyzed from the waist down. Birch came in contact with Cowichan Family Life while trying to determine services available to his son.

As co-ordinator, Birch will deal specifically with services available to children with problems usually related to home or school life.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, February 27
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish what you start — reach beyond current expectations. Wider recognition due — key is to be versatile, to write, ask, to make contacts, to express your own style. Close relative asks a favor. Do what you can without becoming inextricably involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on collecting, on bringing together persons whose views represent stimulation. Be willing to receive — don't feel less-than-worthy. Financial prospects improve. Refuse to be bogged down by indecision, doubt, Cancer, Capricorn figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Rise above those who feel defeated. Keep the faith — especially in yourself. Aquarian figures prominently. You learn by teaching — hunch pays dividends. Be aware and unafraid of the unorthodox. Timing is fine — assert yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Laughter represents healthy tonic. Be willing to express humor regarding your own foibles. You meet a delightful person. Your life could change as a result — be alert, vital. Love of life should be permitted to dominate.

LEO (July 32-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Romance, creativity, love are very much a part of your personal scenario. Strive for feeling of security — erase doubts by building on solid structure. Scorpio has a message for you — listen, evaluate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ability to communicate is enhanced; your ideas come across with force. More persons are convinced of your capabilities. Gemini is in picture. Aim high — stand tall for principles. Gain indicated, especially through written word.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Messages, contracts, long-range plans are spotlighted. Home life undergoes change — Taurus person could be in picture. Diplomatic approach is apt now to achieve most constructive results. Purchase of luxury item could become centre of family discussion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Answers are within — much that occurs is hidden, buried beneath surface indications. If you so permit, enlightenment will surface. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. You are able now to detect subtle nuances, signals. Key is to be aware of costs, taxes, obscure clauses.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on business arrangements, emotional ties, partnership, marriage. Listen, observe, be aware of responsibilities that follow actions. Cancer, Capricorn individuals figure prominently. Be aware of time, basic interests, values — refuse to be cajoled or rushed to judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You're able now to smooth over recent errors, misconceptions, misunderstandings. You can be finished with past burden — if you display courage of convictions. Aries, Libra persons figure in picture. Good news indicated in connection with employment picture, health.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Give full play to creative urge — stress originality, independence of thought, action. Significant changes occur. Relationships are intensified. Nothing is halfway — if you're playing games, cost for "amusement" can be sky-high.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You're happier based on a more solid security base, performance clause. Means efforts are amply rewarded. Your sensitivity, intuition are spotlighted. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons are part of your personal scenario.

IF FEBRUARY 27th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dramatic, sympathetic to needs of underdog, capable of graphically illustrating meanings, fascinated with law, medicine. Aries, Libra individuals play important roles in your life. September could be your most significant month of 1977, a year featuring business, intensity, the end of doldrums, security, responsibility. If single, you might marry. There could also be an addition to family.

By SIDNEY OMARR
Astrological Forecast for Monday, February 28

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on new view, fresh start, second chance, evaluation of property and other assets. Leo, another Aries and an Aquarian play important roles. Cornerstone of key, future project is made evident — you regain sense of security, direction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take ring roads: avoid direct confrontations. Examine various sides, angles — be flexible, versatile. Brothers, sisters and other relatives figure prominently. You learn lessons — key is to apply them. One who taught you is going to make reappearnace and seek your counsel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on money, income, ability to collect necessary material. Expansion is advisable — don't be afraid to express ideas, fresh concepts. A relative, usually quiet and apparently disinterested, is due to speak up in your behalf.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have more strength than might be apparent — those who under-estimate you will be in for a major surprise. Circumstances turn in your favor. Key now is to be confident, to take initiative to be a self-starter. Scorpio, Leo and Taurus figure prominently.

LEO (July 21-Aug. 22): Dialogue begins with one who has been shrouded in mystery. You will hear and see, will be temporarily stifled, but you also will find where you stand and what you can do about it. Deal with representative of hospital, institution, special organization.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on affection, gain as result of business enterprise, fulfillment of wish due to intervention of friend. Domestic change, adjustment is in picture. You receive meaningful compliment concerning your voice. Sing us a song!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on climbing to top, communicating with those in authority. You can see as is if you so desire. The alternative is wishful thinking, self-deception. You'll be asked to define terms, to trim budget, to refine techniques. Pisces, Virgo individuals figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can tie down commitments, establish a firm base, learn a language, communicate with one at a distance, propose marriage. What a day! Cancer, Capricorn figure in scenario. Travel plans command attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Conclusions are reached concerning finances as related to partner, mate. Taxes, hidden costs, obscure clauses could be in picture. Spotlight on the occult, mystery, intrigue — deep down you know who you can be happy with . . . choose security of knowing you are loved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be alert to hints, trends, signals — do more listening than asserting. Observe and learn — Leo, Aquarius individuals figure prominently. Accent on contractual obligations, marital status. Check time — get in touch with one who owes you a favour.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your natural talents, best qualities are very much in evidence. Know it and be confident. Rise above petty differences, red tape. Another Aquarian could be in picture. Accent on employment, basic issues, resurgence of vitality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You discover new outlet for artistic-creative efforts. Element of timing is on your side. You make wonderful contacts. Travel and future plans come into focus. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals play key roles.

IF FEBRUARY 28th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, progressive, a natural humanitarian — you are attractive to opposite sex, gregarious and capable of holding an audience. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You gain added recognition this year — August could be your most significant month. You will finish a major assignment and prestige will rise. You'll be happy, too!

$5.5M Set For A-Waste Clean-Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The Atomic Energy Control Board has set aside $5.5 million for spending in the next year on a clean up of radioactive contaminants in nine communities.

A board spokesman said the money will be used for removal of radioactive materials uncovered in a survey last year, They include uranium mines wastes, abandoned equipment and tailings from refining operations.

The communities involved are: Port Hope, Elliot Lake, Deloro, Brancroft, Hay and Ottawa in Ontari; East Braintree, Man.; Uranium City, Sask. and Surrey.

Last year the government spent $3.8 million on surveying and cleaning up sites contaminated by radioactive materials.

Tabernacle celebrates 40th year

Five former pastors of North Douglas Pentecostal Tabernacle will attend celebrations this weekend of the 40th anniversary and homecoming. Rev. Harold Pendray, the present pastor, announced this week.

They are Rev. L. J. Blackmore, Parksville; Rev. J. J. Beitel, Surrey; Rev. James Ruthven, Cloverdale; Rev. Dale Dunn, Nanaimo and Rev. Clifford Fawcett, Port Hardy.

Celebrations began at 7:30 p.m. Friday with a musical and social evening and continued with a family breakfast this morning at the Princess Mary restaurant.

At 10:30 a.m. today a mystery tour of the city was planned and at 6:45 p.m. today a banquet will be held in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. The visiting pastors will take part in Sunday services at 9:45 and 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m.

For 15 years North Douglas operated as a branch of Glad Tidings Pentecostal Church before it became a self-supporting, self-governing assembly.

Larry Norman

Sing Out back with guest star

Sing Out is back in Victoria. Now sponsored by Rainbow Productions, which also produces Candlelight Time at the Oak Bay Marina and the Come Together TV show, Sing Out's first concert — at 3 p.m. Sunday in Victoria high school auditorium — will feature singer-composer Larry Norman.

Norman started playing piano when he was five. He wrote his first song when he was nine. Before he was 16, he had written 500 songs.

Two well-known songs by the young man who coined the term Jesus Rock are Sweet Song of Salvation and I Wish We'd All Been Ready.

As a teenager he had a million-seller with his rock band, People, on Capitol Records. He played with Jimi Hendrix, The Who, Bob Dylan, Janis Joplin, Van Morrison and other pop stars.

Sing Out will sponsor other Sunday afternooon concerts. On April 3 the featured entertainer will be Nicky Cruz, the main character in the book and movie, The Cross and the Switchblade.

On June 26, Pat Boone will be in Victoria for a concert.

At Sunday's concert, Larry Norman will be accompanied on the program by the Victoria musical group, Rainbow.

It is 10 years since Norman's first album for Capitol was released. It was titled, We Need a Whole Lot More Jesus — And a Lot Less Rock and Roll. It was his third album, Upon This Rock, in 1969 that established him in his ministry and ushered in the era of Jesus Music.

Since that time, two of his albums have been nominated for the Grammy award and his music has been recorded in five foreign languages and used in more than a dozen films.

Other artists who have recorded his songs include Petula Clark, Jack Jones, Sammy Davis Jr. and Pat Boone.

He has been called a Christian Lenny Bruce with a strange offbeat twist of Woody Allen thrown in for ballast.

Rock cantata set March 6

The rock cantata, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat will be presented in Garden City United Church, 4054 Carey, by a youth chorus under the direction of Barabara Johnstone at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, March 6.

The cantata was composed by Webber and Rice, the team who wrote Jesus Christ, Superstar.

A group of young instrumentalists will provide accompaniment. Vocal soloists include Larno McDonald, Debbie Semple, Norman Wright and Jamie Maxwell.

The cantata will be preceded by other contemporary music by the choir.

Eck seminar features art, speakers, singers

The followers of Eckankar call it the "most ancient spiritual teaching known to man."

The present leader of the sect, Darwin Gross, calls Eckankar "the science of total awarness, the path of spiritual endeavour that leads to the state of total consciousness and total responsibility which is the natural result of total freedom from all things."

There are two Eckankar centres on Lower Vancouver Island — at 1012 Blanshard, Victoria, and 9824 Fourth, Sidney.

The Sidney centre is holding a seminar next Saturday, March 5, starting at 1 p.m. in the banquet room of the Airport Travelodge, 2280 Beacon.

The program will include a slide show, poets, speakers, singers and musicians from the Island and the Mainland.

A large collection of Eck art will be on view in the banquet room.

The first modern leader of Eckankar was Paul Twitchell, American newsman and author. Between 1965 and 1971, the year he died, he wrote manuscripts dealing with the path of total awareness. About 35 were published and are available at the local centres.

The present master, also an American, is doing supplementary writing to Twitchell's unfinished manuscripts.

"All life is light and sound, flowing out of the Godhead," Gross writes, "that secret place of the most high, somewhere within oneself."

"Eckankar is a teaching which gives knowledge of both the light and sound, providing proof of the ultimate survival of man. The emphasis in Eckankar is on the individual's own direct experience as the most important facet of his unfoldment."

There are more than three million Eckists in the world today.

God is mother as well

On the basis of evidence in the Bible, God may be called "our Mother" as well as "our Father", writer Anne Squire asserts in the current issue of The United Church Observer.

Mrs. Squire, who teaches a course on women in religious traditions at Carlton University, Ottawa, draws examples of feminine imagery for God from both the Old and New Testaments.

In the creation story, she says, both male and female were made "in the image of God". Later, in the book of Isaiah, God is compared to a woman giving birth or nursing her child or comforting a child. Jesus tells his listeners in one story that God is like a woman who seeks a lost coin.

One of the Hebrew words used for God in the original Scripture is, Elohim, which Mrs. Squire says, combines both masculine and feminine grammatical forms.

Emphasizing only the masculine qualities of God, Mrs. Squire says, has not only excluded women from the ministry, but has been damaging to men, too.

"Men who have been forced into the masculine stereotypes of aggressiveness and authority need the liberating power of a God who can be loving, nurturing, responsive and feminine."

Conductor Edgar Samuel rehearses choir at Pearson College

College blends 19 countries in song

Students from 19 countries will sing in the Pearson College choir Sunday morning at Anglican and United churches at Tyndall and San Juan.

The college choir will sing at the 10 a.m. service of St. Dunstan's and at the 11:10 a.m. service of Gordon Head United.

Other members of the student body of the college will give readings between choir selections.

Church families will take individual students home after services to provide an opportunity for them to meet with young people of the community.

In addition to North American students, choir members come from the British Isles, Eire, Japan, Kenya, Bahamas, Malaysia, Hong Kong, Finland, Brazil, Venezuela, Spain, West Germany, Australia and the Philippines.

'Put aside hate and envy' Sadat message to Moslems

TORONTO (CP) — Moslems from Canada and the United States have been told by a spokesman for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat that they must "deter people from resorting to arms and violence and guide them to put aside differences, hatred and envy."

Mohamed Towfik Owieda, Egyptian secretary-general of the supreme council for Islamic affairs, recently addressed the first annual seminar of the Federation of Islamic Associations at the University of Toronto.

Owieda, who delivered a speech by the Egyptian president through a translator, said he expected the seminar to draw the attention "of those who call for right, goodness and peace, regardless of their affiliations."

Prayer Day links women of world

Christian women throughout the world will celebrate the World Day of Prayer next Friday with thousands of church services.

In Greater Victoria the Ecumenical Women's Outreach has organized a series of services.

As a forerunner to the day of prayer a brief service will be held at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the rotunda of the Legislative Buildings. The Newcombe Singers will provide the music and the speaker will be Miss Wilma Thomas of Camosun College.

The main downtown service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Douglas at Courtney. Rev. Robert Vaughan of the Island Pastoral Counselling Services will speak.

A special service for young families will take place at 10 a.m. Friday in Lutheran Church of the Cross, Cedar Hill Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road.

A special service for young people will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in Grace Lutheran Church, 1243 Fort. Vocal and instrumental groups from several churches will be featured.

Services will be held in most senior citizens' residences and nursing homes.

Other Friday services: 1:30 p.m., Cordova Bay United, 5168 Cordova Bay Road; All Saints Anglican Church, View Royal and Knox Presbyterian, Sooke. 2 p.m., St. Philip's Anglican, 2928 Eastdowne; Esquimalt United, 500 Admirals. 8 p.m., St. John's Anglican, Sooke Road, Colwood.

The order of service for the annual event has been prepared this year by Christian women of the German Democratic Republic, according to Miss M. E. Thompson, chairman of the local committee in charge of arrangements.

Three main themes are Love Gives Hope, Love Risks

Service Friday

Life and Love Becomes Action.

"The emphasis is very much upon action — individuals ministering to individuals in need," Miss Thompson said, "especially the lonely, the aged, the mentally or physically handicapped."

The German Democratic Republic's constitution provides the same rights and obligations to all citizens regardless of nationality, race, religious faith or position in society, she said.

"Freedom of conscience and faith is guaranteed. Churches and other religious fellowships conduct their own affairs in accord with the constitution and the legal regulations of the republic.

"Approximately 60 per cent of the population belongs to Christian churches or groups; about eight million are members of a Protestant regional church, 1.333 million are Roman Catholic and about 150,000 belong to free churches or other religious fellowships."

Half-Million Left to Son Believed Killed in 1943

LANGTHORPE, England (CP) — A wealthy Yorkshire widow refused to believe that her only son had been shot down and killed over Germany in 1943.

His bedroom was kept undisturbed for 33 years. Until she died a year ago at the age of 90, Evelyn Green was convinced that her son Peter would return to her and in her will, just probated, she left him more than £300,000 ($525,000).

Now her lawyers have the formidable task of trying to trace a man who was officially reported dead after he took part in a Royal Air Force raid on Hamburg in the Second World War.

The lawyers have 43 years in which to find him, for the will stipulates that if he is not traced by Jan. 1, 2020, the estate will be used to set up an animal charity.

Mrs. Green also willed that the income from a further £15,000 should be used to look after her dogs.

She spent hundreds of pounds trying to trace her son after his death was reported.

"She had an inner conviction he was still alive and possibly suffering from loss of memory," a friend said, "and it is true that his body has never been found."

More than 25 years ago, Mrs. Green received a clipping from a German newspaper in which a young RAF sergeant was seen being interrogated by Nazi officers. He bore some resemblance to her 20-year-old son, but his identity was never traced.

"Mrs. Green was in touch with many British airmen who served with her son in the RAF," her friend said. "One of them talked with him just before he took off on the raid over Hamburg. But no one ever saw Peter again. "It seems very doubtful that he is still alive."

Mrs. Green's family owned several cotton mills in Lancashire and Yorkshire.

POP IN A PINCH?

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — Pop and potato crisps may replace the traditional sherry and sandwiches at civic receptions in Lancashire, for many of the county's mayors are feeling the pinch.

Mayor James Moorcroft of Chorley, near Manchester, said he may have to cancel a string of official engagements because his expense allowance of £1,250 ($2,175) has run out.

"We can no longer afford sherry and sandwiches," he said. "Pop and crisps are more suited to the present economic climate."

Councils in many parts of the county have found that the cost of civic pomp and tradition is keeping pace with the rising taxes and cost of living.

Mayor Harry Cartmel of Fylde, who receives £2,200 a year in spending money, has called for an annual revision of mayoral expenses.

"My allowance is adequate but I know that others are having a difficult time," he said.

The council of the old Roman town of Kendal, which set aside £630 for the current fiscal year to meet the expenses of Mayor Edna Hall, has boosted the figure to £725.

Tiny Radio Calls for Help

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man has invented a device which can call for help when someone in need can't.

The device is a small radio transmitter, called Help Alert, which can send recorded messages asking for help.

Inventor Nathan Ross says the device, which can be worn around the neck as a pendant or on the wrist like a watch, is activated by pressing a transmitter dial. Help Alert then sends out a silent radio signal which has a range of 1,000 feet.

The signal activates an automatic dialer connected to the wearer's telephone which begins to dial numbers.

"It dials off preprogrammed numbers," said Mr. Ross. "At each number, the dialer will give a recorded message saying who the person is, where they live and that they need help.

"Then it dials the next number. And it's also programmed to dial the next number if the line is busy, or if the phone isn't answered. It's programmed to let the phone ring 10 times."

Mr. Ross said he designed the device primarily for elderly people who live alone and for people with medical problems such as heart disease.

"There is a need for protection for older people who live alone."

It is important for the device to be programmed to handle several phone numbers, Mr. Ross said.

"Then you can be sure of getting help from somewhere. Say, for example, my mother lived alone. Then I'd program the device to call my brother and sister, a neighbor, maybe a doctor and the hospital, just to make sure the message was received."

Mr. Ross said Help Alert was developed more than a year ago, but he has not yet been able to market the device in B.C.

However, the inventor said he sold 50 of the devices to a Toronto company specializing in wheelchairs and beds for paraplegics.

Mr. Ross is president of Services Ltd. He said he and the company's manager, Hans Latendorf, invented Help Alert.

VIOLINS MADE OF PIANO WOOD

TEULON, Man. (CP) — An old broken-down piano wouldn't draw a second glance from most people, but such a sight would bring 80-year-old David Laskey running.

To Mr. Laskey it's a valuable source of material for his hobby—making violins.

Although most close-grained wood is suitable, piano wood—spruce, maple or birch—is ideal, the retired machinist explained.

Wood from an old organ is even better.

"I've got some really good stuff out in my shop right now and I'm just itching to get at it," he said.

Mr. Laskey said he never took a woodworking course but learned the craft from a book.

By 1929 he had made about 10 of the instruments. But then the Depression set in and, with a fast-growing family, he no longer had time for his hobby.

"So I took a 40-year rest," Mr. Laskey said.

But his interest in the instruments never dimmed. In 1969, five years after he retired, Mr. Laskey resumed his avocation.

Since then he has made 10 violins and a viola and, he said, "I'm going to make a whole bunch more!"

Of the 20 violins he has made so far, Mr. Laskey has sold only one—for $300. The rest he has given to friends and relatives or kept.

But with the cost of materials rising, he said he will likely sell some of his next batch.

The wood, strings, pegs and other parts cost almost $100—apart from nearly two weeks of time and labor. "But if I break even I'm happy," he said. "I really do it just to see how good a job I can do."

Farm Pollution

OTTAWA (CP) — Although they are not exposed to city pollution, farmers suffer from lung diseases unique to their work, says Dr. C. P. Warren of the clinical investigation unit of St. Boniface General Hospital in Winnipeg.

Dr. Warren says more study needs to be done into the prevalence of three such lung diseases: Farmer's lung, caused by inhaling mould spores in hay or grain; grain dust asthma caused by exposure to grain dust, and silo-filler's disease caused by inhaling nitrogen dioxide.

Brewer—Pearce

Fairfield United Church was the scene of a lovely candlelight double-ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, December 29, 1976, when Lynne Louise, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Pearce, Victoria, became the bride of Dale Fredrick Brewer, youngest son of Mrs. Frasetta Brewer, Rossland, B.C., and the late Mr. Clarence Brewer. The saying of the marriage vows was solemnized by Rev. H. W. Kerley.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother and father, was radiant in her gown of matte jersey with full chapel train. Venice lace and seed pearls graced the sculptured neckline and empire waist. A two-tier fingertip veil misted down from her Juliet cap of matching Venice lace and pearls. She wore a diamond pendant, gift of the groom, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with an orchid and stephanotis. Matron of honor Mrs. Lynda Murphy and bridesmaid Miss Laura Watson, cousin of the bride, were lovely in identical empire-styled gowns of lipstick red polyester knit, accented by dark red velvet cape-style jackets. They carried bouquets of white carnations with holly and fern. Flower girl Tracey King was captivating in a full-length gown of matching dark red velvet, and carried a basket of white carnations, holly and fern. The groom chose a chocolate brown tuxedo with tails. Duane La Fond was best man and Fraser Brewer, brother of the groom, and Bob Watson, cousin of the bride, were ushers. They wore matching tuxedos. Mother of the bride wore an attractive full-length dress-coat ensemble of cream colored nylon jersey, and a peach orchid corsage. The groom's mother, attending from Rossland, chose a full-length floral jersey gown with grey background and mauve orchid corsage.

The reception was held in the Georgian Lounge of the Empress Hotel. The three-tiered wedding cake was beautifully decorated with Christmas bells and holly. Mr. Tom Ferris proposed the toast to the bride and Mr. Gordon Ferris was master of ceremonies. Dancing followed with music by the Davis Combo. The bride chose a forest green velvet blazer, full-length plaid skirt entone and a yellow orchid corsage for her going-way outfit. Following their honeymoon in Southern California, Mr. and Mrs. Brewer are now residing in Burnaby, B.C.

Out-of-town guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Brewer, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brownlie, Trail; Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Brewer, Tracey and Jamie, Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brownlie, Castlegar; Mr. Mike Pichichero, Prince Rupert; Mr. and Mrs. Brian Murphy, Mackenzie; Mr. and Mrs. John Stubbings, Merrit; Mrs. Howard Everden, Nanaimo; Mr. Fred Wastell, Telegraph Cove; Miss Patty Knight, Summerland; Mr. and Mrs. C. Shaw—Wilson

St. Michael and All Angels Church, W. Saanich Rd., was the scene of a very pretty wedding, Saturday, December 18, 1976, at 7 p.m. when Rev. W. J. Hill blessed a double-ring ceremony when Debbie Lynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R Wilson, Northridge Crescent, became the bride of Mr. James Richard Shaw, Port Alberni, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Shaw, Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, England.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in a floor-length powder blue gown with shoulder-length veil held with pearl and rhinestone tiara. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations with baby's breath. Mrs. Suzie Daniels was matron of honor in a floor-length green dress, carrying a bouquet of white mums and baby's breath. Mr. Howard Brown attended the groom as best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a toast was proposed to the bride and groom by the bride's uncle, Mr. Larry Orchin. Out-of-town guests were from Port Alberni, Cowichan Bay, Mill Bay and Shawnigan Lake. After a weekend honeymoon, the couple motored to Port Alberni, where they will be residing.

Howard—Chappell

Susan Irene Chappell, daughter of Mr. C. Chappell and the late Mrs. Chappell, and Douglas Westley Howard, son of Mrs. J. Howard and the late Mr. N. Howard, would like to announce their marriage, which took place February 11th, 1977, at 3 p.m.

The bride wore a pink and white floor-length dress. Her bouquet was of white carnations, white daisies with baby's breath. Maid of honor Rose Shaw wore a mint green floor-length dress. She carried pink carnations with baby's breath. The groom wore a burgundy suit with a white boutonniere. Best man Grey Evans wore a burgundy suit with a pink boutonniere.

A dinner was held at the groom's home. Out-of-town guests came from Forest Grove, Vancouver, Burnaby.

Bonner—Paone

Rev. Ivan Futter assisted by Rev. Guy Merville officiated at the double-ring ceremony in St. Stephen's Church on Saturday, February 5, 1977, at 12 noon, uniting in marriage Monica Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Paone, Victoria, and Paul Harold Bonner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bonner, White Rock. Miss Jeri Grant was maid of honor and Mr. Mike Hawthorne attended the groom.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents at which Mr. John Magee, godfather of the bride, proposed the toast.

The young couple left for a honeymoon to San Francisco and will make their home in Victoria.

CITY'S WATCHDOG
Laurel Point land use contract modification by-law 1977 public hearing, it appears to have been held without proper notification according to the Municipal Act, Section 703 (3) on Feb. 15, 1977. Also Alderman Wright assured your city's watchdog C. Joe Richards that there would be 172 parking spaces included in the land use contract site bounded by Hillside Ave. and Blanshard Street By-Law No. 7132. Why does it appear now that City Council is going to let the developers only supply 159 spaces. Again I ask what is happening in City Hall. — C. Joe Richards 383-6259.

An Englishman's Home . . .

. . . IS HIS CASTLE, and this one is no exception! Right through this modern, no step, immaculate, 1,200 sq. ft. home that cosy, "lived-in" feeling is retained. The detached garage is big and solid. Even the fully fenced garden with the primed roses, rich black soil and mature fruit trees add to the atmosphere. There is even a Grand English Oak tree dominating the front garden. All this and more, located on a good Residential Street with paved sidewalks. Bus and shopping very close by. Offered today at the modest price of only $57,500.

CHILTERN PLACE UPLANDS

This absolutely magnificent executive rancher of approximately 3000 square feet on one floor, complete with beautifully landscaped swimming pool and private grounds is now for sale by the original owners.

Custom built 12 years ago by a well-known architect without regard to cost, this home will appeal to the family who will appreciate these and other fine features: large entertainment rooms, three bedrooms and a den, huge kitchen and an exquisite arboretum. The house is situated for privacy, all living and sleeping areas surround the pool and are accessible by sliding glass doors.

The cul-de-sac location is handy to the clubhouse and of course, only minutes from downtown.

Unquestionably, one of Victoria's finest homes and irreplaceable at $210,000. An exclusive with

308-A CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation for the many acts of kindness shown to our Mother and Grandmother, the late Mrs. Theresa Smith. Special thanks go to the nursing staff of Gorge Road Hospital, Tillicum Lodge and the Royal Jubilee Hospital. We also thank the staff and members of Saanich Branch Silver Threads for the many happy hours she spent there. The flowers and messages of sympathy we have received have been a source of comfort. She will be sadly missed by her many friends and fondly remembered by her loving family.—Terry and Frank York and family.

We wish to express our thanks and appreciation to all our relatives and friends for their expressions of sympathy with cards, flowers and personal calls during the recent loss of our beloved hsuband and father and grandfather, Walter J. Simpson. Special thanks to Rev. G. Smith and the doctors and staff of Memorial Pavilion, Watson 2. Many thanks to the pallbearers and to the members of A.N.A.F. Veterans for the Poppy Service. Earlie Simpson and family.

308-A CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks and appreciation to the many friends for their expressions of sympathy cards and flowers and personal calls during the recent loss of our beloved husband, father and grandfather. Special thanks to Rev. Struthers and Rev. Hunter of First United Church, the kind prayers and memorial service will long be remembered. A special thanks to the Doctors and nurses who cared for him. Many thanks for the generous donations to the Cancer Fund.
—Kay Prince and family.

We, the sons and daughters of Percy Leon Claydon, wish to thank Dr. Robert Young and the personnel of Memorial Hospital for their care and attention to our father during his last months. We also express appreciaton to his many friends who visited him during this time. — Thomas Claydon, Constance Wilks, Dorothy Scharer, Allan Claydon.

Mrs. Lavinia Jewitt and family wish to thank Dr. Mathews, John Vickers, Sam, Joyce, Abe, Edith, George, and all friends and neighbours for their kindness in our recent loss of husband, father and grandfather, Donald.

309 IN MEMORIAM

ALLEN—Gladys Norah, who passed away Feb. 26th, 1976.
Nothing but memories as I journey on,
Thinking of the past and my loved one gone.
None knows the depth of my deep regret,
But I remember when others forget.
—Her loving husband Tom.

ARTHURS — In loving memory of Norma Evelyn Arthurs, who passed away this day, 1976.
She still is fondly remembered
Sweet memories cling to her name
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.
—Sadly missed by her husband, family and friends.

BLAKEY — In memory of Nan, called O Lord to Thine Eternal peace on 29th February, 1976. Sadly missed by her son Sandy, and sister Madge.

MANHAS — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Balet Manhas who passed away Feb. 26, 1969.
Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling 'round your name;
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection,
Always will love you in death just the same.
Always remembered by his wife Banti, sons and daughters and grandchildren.

REYNOLDS — In loving memory of our father and grandfather Ed, who passed away Feb. 25, 1976.
Without farewell he fell asleep,
But in our hearts he'll always stay.
—Loved and remembered and sadly missed by daughter Daphne, son-in-law Tom, grandson Tim.

NATIVE POPULATION 'STUDIED TO DEATH'

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer who works with the National Indian Brotherhood says Canada's native people have been studied to death.

Roberta Jamieson, a native-born Indian lawyer, told a meeting of psychiatrists and lawyers Friday that Indians do not need help from professionals "in safari jackets armed with keen interest and small-L liberalism."

But there is no reason for professionals and Indians not to work together on native problems if the native people have a voice in their own affairs, she told a symposium on law and psychiatry.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT

NOTICE TO RESIDENTS OF SOOKE ELECTORAL AREA

The attention of the voters of the Sooke Electoral Area is drawn to a proposal of the Capital Regional District to amend By-law No. 152, providing for a 1.75 mill levy toward the cost of maintaining and operating the Sooke Arena, by increasing the levy by one-mill to 2.75 mills. This action has been deemed necessary by the Sooke Arena Commission due to the rapid inflation experienced in the last few years and its effect on operating costs. This situation is further aggravated by the current fixed assessments.

This amending by-law was given third reading by the Capital Regional District Board on 23rd February 1977 and will be submitted for the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on 10th March. If the necessary Lieutenant-Governor in Council approval is given it will be on the understanding that a continuation of this increased mill levy in future years will be subject to a referendum vote in November of this year.

Any Sooke Electoral Area voter wishing to register an opinion on this proposal is asked to do so no later than 9th March and to forward such opinion to the Executive Director, Capital Regional District, P.O. Drawer 1000, Victoria B.C., V8W 2S6.

Violence: Most of It Is in the Home

DENVER (UPI) — A just-completed U.S. national survey indicats the American home is the most violent place in the country, three sociologists reported Friday.

The pioneering study led researchers to conclude that physical violence occurs between family members more often than it occurs between any other individuals or in any other settings except for riot and war.

Dr. Richard Gelles of the University of Rhode Island said one of the most shocking findings suggest that a million kids are growing up facing parents who are using guns and knifes on them — not just threatening but they have actually used a gun or knife on them."

"I think this is an astoundingly high level of violence used on kids and I'm not sure society is capable of dealing with it," he said in an interview.

The survey, based on interviews in 1976 with a nationally representative sample of 3,143 families, was directed by Gelles, Dr. Murray Straus of the University of New Hampshire and Dr. Suzanne Steinmetz of the University of Deleware. The first results were reported at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Straus reported that extrapolation of the interview results to the whole population shows that one of every six American couples had a violent episode during the survey year.

"About one out of every 100 husbands and wives had gone beyond slapping, kicking or throwing things at a spouse and said that they had been beaten up or had beat up their spouse in the previous year," Straus said in a summary he and Gelles prepared.

"Even more startling is the fact that almost four per cent had gone so far as to have actually used a knife or gun in attacking their husband and wife."

The researchers said this means that of the 47 million couples living together in the United States, an estimated 1.7 million had at some time faced a spouse wielding a weapon. Well over 2 million had been beaten up by their spouse.

Dr. Steinmetz, who analyzed violence between brothers and sisters in 1,224 families, found that three of four youngsters between ages of 3 and 17 had engaged in some kind of physical violence against each other during the past year. By violence, she included everything from pushing to actually using a knife or gun.

The interviews, financed by the government's National Institute of Mental Health, were conducted by the Response Analysis Corp., of Princeton, N.J. If anything, Straus said the study probably underestimates the amount of violence in American families.

Gelles said the study of violence against children indicates over 80 per cent of parents of children aged 3 to 9 used physical punishment including spankings during the past year.

Among his findings:

— 20 per cent of the parents interviewed said they had at some time hit a child with some object;

— 4.2 per cent said they had "beaten up" the child;

— 2.8 per cent of the parents said they had threatened a child with a knife or gun and 2.9 per cent said they had actually used a gun or knife on a child.

And he said the fact parents admitted using weapons on children "means they think it's reasonably acceptable."

SHY embarrassment is mimed by actor Paul Liittich while rapt attention is expressed by his young audience at Blanshard School this week. It's a moment in the Kaleidoscope Theatre-Victoria Symphony collaboration using Prokofiev's suite, A Summer's Day to bring music, movement, mime and comedy to the children. Maestro Laszlo Gati is poised like a magician in the background with timpani behind him. Rest of orchestra is in separate groups around gym. Performances are also scheduled at Sir James Douglas and Willows Schools.

UVIC FEES STILL RISE

An 11.1 per cent increase in operating grants from the Universities Council of B.C. won't head off a 25 per cent increase in tuition fees in September at the University of Victoria, president Dr. Howard Petch said Friday.

The university will receive almost $32 million for the 1977-78 year, a larger slice of the university budget pie than in previous years.

The universities council indicated the extra money is to be spent on UVic's new programs — law, social work and nursing.

University of B.C.'s grant was increased about 8½ per cent to $111,345,322 and Simon Fraser also received an 8½ per cent increase bringing its grant to $41,234,407.

The 11.7 per cent increase for UVic brings its operating grant to $31,950,270.

But because about three per cent is for the new programs, and a further three per cent committed in other areas, the real percentage increase that can be used for expenditures is only about five per cent, Petch said.

A 25 per cent tuition fee increase would bring the total to about seven per cent.

But the university has to contend with inflation on all its supplies and materials, and salary increase demands. Salaries constitute about 80 per cent of the university's budget.

And the faculty association has indicated in wants a 12 per cent wage increase plus other improvements when negotiations begin in the next few weeks, Petch said.

"You can see we've still got some problems," he added.

But Petch is pleased the universities' council finally recognized developing programs cost more to fund than established ones.

Mercury Poison in Muskokas

TORONTO (UPI) — The Muskoka Lakes, traditional playground for thousands of Ontario vacationers and home for some 20,000 summer cottagers, are polluted with mercury, the provincial Ministry of Environment said Friday.

Ministry officials said tests of fish caught in Muskoka's 200 lakes last summer showed mercury levels as high as six times the maximum consumption level. Mercury poisoning can cause nervous disorders, paralysis and deformities in infants.

The ministry coupled its announcement with warnings that fish from the lakes should be eaten only occasionally — and never by children or women of child-bearing age. It said the findings posed no danger for swimmers.

Ministry officials said they were baffled by the "environmental mystery," because there are no nearby industrial sources of mercury pollution. The Muskoka Lake region is 100 miles north of Toronto.

Northwestern Ontario has been plagued by mercury contamination of rivers and streams caused by polluted outflow from paper mills in the area.

Tests of 24 trout in the Muskoka Lakes showed average readings of 2.96 parts mercury per million of water. Readings of no more than .5 parts per million are considered "tafe" by the ministry. Ministry spokesman Robert Frewin said "an extensive survey in Lake Simcoe will now be extended to the Muskoka Lakes" He said government scientists would also monitor possible airborne sources of mercury and outflow from water treatment plants in the affected areas.

The announcement was the second discloture of mercury contamination of a popular vacation area in Ontario. Government investigators said last September that unacceptably high mercury readings had been obtained from fish in Lake Simcoe, about 60 miles north of Toronto.

The Coming
WORLD GOVERNMENT

Every thinking person today recognizes that we in the West are living in a transition period between one order of society and another that will replace it. We cannot turn back the clock and return to the days when there were recognized guide lines concerning justice and morality and sound administration, and those guide lines were the Scriptures. Today the Scriptures are no longer accepted by Christendom (so-called) as God's revelation of Himself and of His laws for man, but "every man does that which is right in his own eyes" (Deut. 12:8; Judges 21:25). Hence lawlessness, injustice, immorality, and all their consequences, are everywhere manifest.

Daniel was given a vision from God of the Gentile world powers that would rule from his day on — Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Europe (Rome), in succession (Daniel 2:31-45). They subjugated all nations and controlled them by force of arms. The book of Revelation shows that at the time of the end of the tenure of these Gentile world powers antitypical Babylon would arise and by subtlety conquer all nations of the earth, not by force of arms but by control of their very means of livelihood — money. It is pictured as a woman who reigns over the kings of the earth. "I will show unto thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters: with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication (worship of money and of man and rejection of the only true God) and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication . . . And upon her forehead was a name written, Mystery, Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the Earth . . . And the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies" (Rev. 17:1, 2, 5; 18:3). That control is now well established but not yet complete nor openly recognized. Its aim, just as Babylon of old, is world power, world government, with all nations being reduced to one common denominator, one huge conglomerate of people — enforcing upon all one false religion, one political system, one system of finance.

In God's purpose, as revealed in the Scriptures, a time for change has come; Gentile power has run its course and will be replaced. By what?

At present Babylon is riding high, fully confident that the prize is within her grasp. "For she saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow" (Rev. 18:7). But God, Who "ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will" (Dan. 4:17) says of her; "Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord who judgeth her . . . And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more" (Rev. 18:8, 11).

Daniel was told further: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever" (Dan. 2:44). Just as the Gentle powers were literal kingdoms on a literal earth so the kingdom to be set up by the God of heaven is a literal kingdom upon this literal earth.

Who will be the King of this Kingdom? "Yet have I set my king (Christ) upon my holy hill of Zion. I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my son; this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession" (Psa. 2:6-8). "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder . . . Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end . . . The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this" (Isa.9:6, 7). Following His resurrection Christ taught His disciples: "And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures (the Old Testament) the things concerning himself" (Luke 24:27).

Does Christendom look for the return of Christ? Does it look for the fulfillment of the very Scriptures it nominally professes to believe? Not at all, and the Apostle Peter describes the attitude of the people thus: "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation . . . but the day of the Lord (at the termination of this present age) will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens (the ruling element) shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth (the ruled) also and the works that are therin shall be burned up" (2nd Peter 3:3, 4, 10). "Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven . . . that those things which cannot be shaken (truth and righteousness) may remain (Heb. 12:26, 27). "Then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve him with one consent" (Zeph. 3:9).

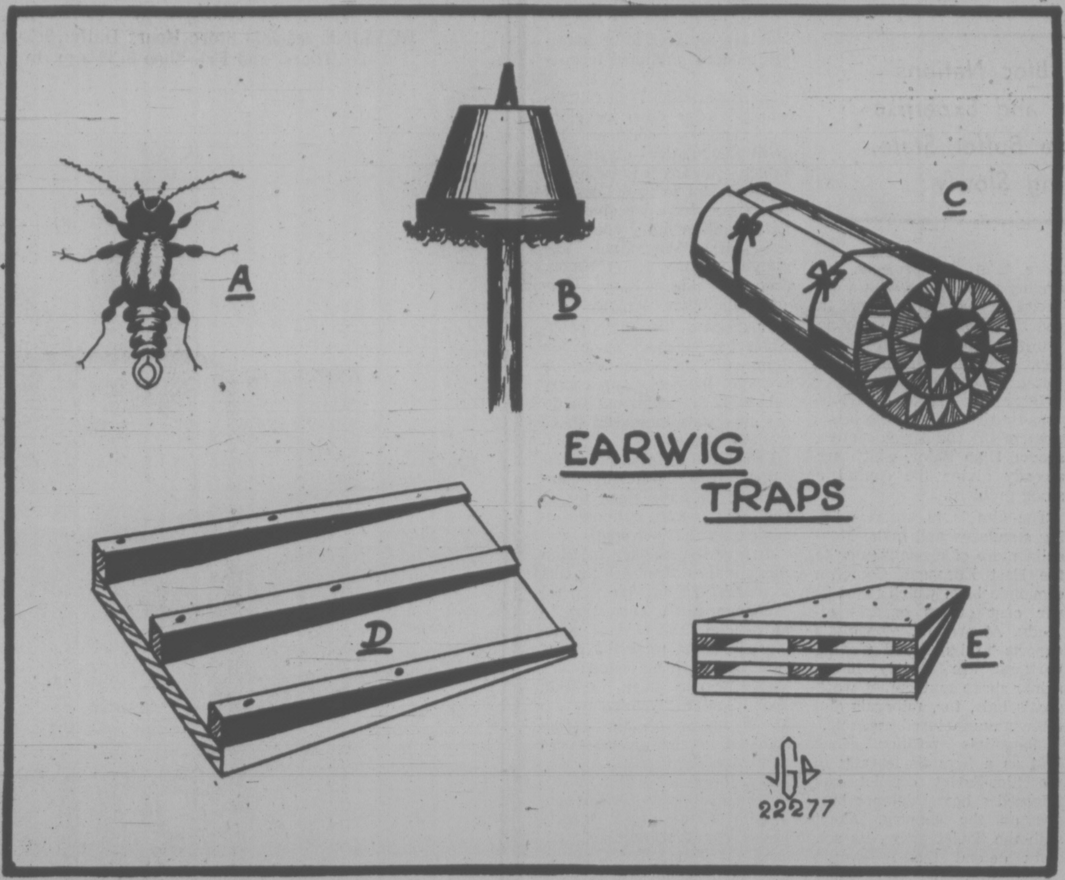
Earwig Traps Worth the Effort



GARDENING
jack beastall

The Earwig, shown at (A) in the illustration, is a permanent resident in local gardens although it is not common to all of Canada or the United States.

It was discovered at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1911, having been imported from Europe on shipments of plants, and in 1915 a colony was found in Seattle, Wash.

Since then it has become well established along the west coast from California north, and is considered a major garden pest in southwest British Columbia.

Victoria gardeners were very concerned when earwigs were reported to be spreading southwards from the Saanich Peninsula. In the mid-30s the city fathers ordered a baiting program for all gardens in the Fairfield area.

Unfortunately, the work was done during a rainy period which washed the poison from the bait leaving bran saturated with molasses. As a result the area was host to hordes of earwigs in the months that followed, all of them grateful for the sumptuous reception banquet the city fathers had prepared.

My six reference books containing articles on earwigs disagree on many points. No two illustrations of the insects are alike, nor do they agree on size or shape.

One book says the female lays a batch of eggs, broods over them until they hatch, watches the young until the first moult, then leaves them and lays another batch of eggs. Another states the female dies as the first eggs hatch and provides the first food for the nymphs.

There is also disagreement regarding the use of wings. An encyclopedia states earwigs are common in most countries, brilliantly colored in the tropics, and very few of the 500 known species are capable of using their wings.

While I have never noticed the local species attempting to fly, an English author complains that "one cannot take a late evening walk" down a country lane without becoming smothered with these flying pests."

Some authorities state the earwig does little harm to garden plants with the exception of chrysanthemums and dahlias, while others contend the young are voracious consumers of any tender green plants and cause havoc to most plants and flowers. Local gardeners will agree with the latter.

Poisoned baits are the approved control, usually made from bran saturated wih molasses or fish oil, with sodium fluosilicate added as the poison.

Two things are important when using these baits; (1) the bait should be distributed immediately after mixing; (2) it must be renewed after rain, dew, or garden sprinkling, because water saturation renders it harmless and the bait then provides a source of food on which earwigs thrive.

Local gardeners have found that packaged baits, often more than a year old when purchased, are quite expensive to use in a wet spring, and rarely effective due to age. It has also been noted that some species of birds are attracted to the bran with fatal results, while household pets, small children, and garden snakes have suffered adverse effects.

The earwig is a nocturnal insect, spending the daylight hours under stones, pieces of wood, lumps of soil, in crevices, and beneath dry plant debris. The long known and most effective control is to provide disposable sleeping quarters where the insects can find comfort and protection at sunrise.

These portable dormitories are called traps, well worth the gardener's time to construct during the winter evenings.

The oldest type is a clay flower pot filled with straw, dried grass, loosely crumpled paper, wood shavings, or shredded paper as used for packing.

While plants are small, the pots are placed upside-down on the soil with one side raised on a piece of wood. As the plants grow the pots are inverted on pointed stakes (see B) of a length to hold the pot among the top foliage of the plants.

When corrugated cardboard came into general use for packaging we discovered an excellent inexpensive earwig trap.

A strip from a corrugated carton about 6 inches wide and 12 inches long is loosely rolled and tied with a string. Children enjoy making these rolls. The rolls are placed on the soil between young plants or hung on sticks.

The straw filled pots are emptied into a hot incinerator fire each morning, and the rolls are burned; or both are immersed in a pail of boiling water.

This cleaning or destroying of the traps must be done every morning otherwise the sleeping earwigs will leave their comfortable quarters around midnight and continue their nocturnal feeding.

A more permanent trap is shown at (D) made of any convenient size from old cedar singles. Strips of shingle are used as spacers and the trap may have one, two, or three layers of openings. A two-layer trap is indicated at (E). These traps are emptied by tapping sharply on the edge of the incinerator or water pail.

They may be stood upright on bricks, leaned against plant stems or trees, or laid flat on the ground. A hole drilled through the thin end allows hanging on walls, fences, or on plant stakes.

In spite of our feelings and our desire to destroy, earwigs have some good points. They are delicious tid-bits on the menu of garden snakes, which in turn are a natural pest control.

In areas where elimination has been successful, several other garden pests have been found to increase in numbers, and recent research has shown that earwigs devour a quantity of other insects in addition to their diet of foliage and flowers.

WORK FOR WEEK

Prune Clematis jackmanii and its varieties by cutting last year's growth back to within two growth buds which can be seen low on the branch. These clematis flower on the new branches grown during spring and summer. C. rehderiana, a small yellow flowered species flowering in fall, can be cut back to where a few bud growths can be seen at bottom of the canes.

Yellow Jasminum nudiflorum is pruned now by shortening the strong growths which bloomed this year; cut back to an inch the weaker shoots: this is best way to get new small plants to fill out for prolific flowering.

If begonia tubers have growth buds visible, bed them into shallow box of moist fibre. Keep in warmth and good light.

Take short cuttings of garden chrysanthemums; root in sandy peat in warm porch or cool window.

In prepared soil, well drained, sow few early peas, broad beans, parsnips, spinach, early lettuce, half dozen potatoes.

In coldframe, sow a few stumpy carrots with radish seed between. In covered frame, sow 24 seeds of early cabbage.

Arts Head Resigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Scottish-born Jean Roberts, director of theatre at the National Arts Centre, has announced her resignation effective June 18, the NAC announced Friday. Miss Roberts, a consultant with the NAC since it began in 1966 and theatre director since 1971, says she is resigning in order to have more time to herself.

Ethiopian Gunned Down

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) — Gunmen burst into the offices of Ethiopia's trade union federation Friday and shot to death the organiztion's chief officer, a union statement said. It was one of the most daring attacks by government opponents, who have selected as targets officials working with Ethiopian's military rulers.

The pro-government All-Ethiopian Trade Union (AETU) blamed the killing of its chairman, Ato Tewodros Bekele, on "paid reactionary agents." He became chairman of the organization last month.

Buzzard Just One Hazard In 'Crazy' Survey Game

OTTAWA (CP) — Some of Art Rattew's employees have been forced down by the Yemeni air force, others were jailed and charged with being mercenaries or spies and one pilot was knocked out by a buzzard.

But Mr. Rattew and his airborne survey firm have learned to take these incidents in stride. They have worked in 35 countries on five continents since starting 10 years ago.

"It's a crazy business," said the president of Geoterrex Ltd. and one of the founding partners of the Terra Services Ltd. group.

"We have a very technical organization with geophysicists, electronic technicians, a lot of specific, sophisticated skills. And yet it all begins with a guy out flying some hot dusty planes."

Aerial photography is used to gather ground information such as soil types, crop diseases and forest inventories. In Guyana, Terra calculated the amount of material in open-surface bauxite mines and takes inventory by "flying the stockpiles."

Terra currently is conducting airborne surveys in the James Bay area to help telecommunications firms find the best sites for their towers.

Mr. Rattew and Roy Depper, president of Terra Services, were among a group of young Canadians who left an American-owned survey business in 1966 to invest everything they had in establishing the Terra group.

"We had to work our heads off or sink," says Mr. Depper, and the lesson wasn't forgotten. Terra has a profit-sharing program for its 185-member staff.

Through 1976, Terra's volume of business has been about $58 million, $41 million of it outside Canada. Annual sales run between $8 million and $9 million.

"It's a high-risk game," said Mr. Rattew. "People who get into it tend to be gamblers. Most of our work is done on a turnkey basis where we quote a flat price. You can do well or lose your shirt."

"In the field of photogrammetrics, we have severe Canadian winters to contend with," Mr. Depper said. "Our customers aren't interested in pictures of thousands of square miles of snow."

But because of Canada's vast geography, collecting data from air surveys has become a Canadian specialty.

Dealing with the Yemeni air force is not, however. Two years ago, Terra's chief pilot was flying from South Africa to Oman when his Second World War-vintage aircraft was forced down at Aden. It took four days to get the plane and the people released, Mr. Rattew said.

"We weren't violating Yemeni air space but it was a funny-looking aircraft. We run into a lot of problems moving our aircraft around."

Then there was that collision between the buzzard and the plane at Nairobi, Kenya. The pilot who was knocked out recovered in time to keep the plane flying.

Push Is On to Update Mongolia

Russia and Eastern Bloc Nations Are Pouring Capital and Expertise Into the Soviet-China Buffer State, But the Job Is Going Slowly

By THOMAS KENT

ULAN BATOR, Mongolia (AP) — The Soviet Union and the East European Communist countries are pouring money, equipment and technicians into the ancient land of Mongolia in an effort to turn it into a modern state. The job is going slowly.

It was from here that the Golden Hordes of Genghis Khan swept into Russia, China and East Europe in the Middle Ages and left a lasting mark on history.

Now the country of mountains, steppes and desert serves as a pro-Moscow buffer state between the feuding Soviet Union and China.

Mongolia's own Communist party, firmly under Moscow's control, is committed to building a modern industrial-agricultural state, but Mongolia is only gradually moving out of the past.

Fifty-two years after Mongolia was declared a Communist state, half the 317,000 residents of the windswept capital city of Ulan Bator still live in small, round yurts made of sticks and felt coverings. The government says it hopes to have everyone in apartments by 1985 but some older citizens are reluctant to move.

The economy still is mostly agricultural, with some mining as well. To help inusty ing as well. To help industry grow, the Soviet bloc has provided special financial terms and outright gifts.

Its contributions are apparent everywhere in the country, officially known as the People's Republic of Mongolia.

In Ulan Bator, where many citizens still wear dels, the quilted national costume lined with sheep fur and tied with bright sashes, Soviet and Hungarian vehicles speed down nearly empty streets. The main buildings are mass-produced apartment and office structures in the Soviet style.

Shops display Soviet jackets, East German shirts and Bulgarian canned goods. The best hotel, started by the Chinese in times of better Chinese-Mongolian relations, was completed and furnished by Russians and Czechs.

The greatest sign of East Bloc influence is in the country's political life.

Mongolian government announcements read like Soviet government announcements. Soviet-style banners are all over Ulan Bator. While Soviet leaders review May Day demonstrations from atop Lenin's mausoleum in Moscow, Mongolian leaders are perched on a similar mausoleum for revolutionary hero Sukhe Bator in Ulan Bator.

The Russian language is compulsory from age 13 in Mongolian schools and there is a special Russian channel on Mongolian television.

Mongolian Communist Party leader Yumjaagyan Tsedenbal, who is married to a Russian, sums up the relationship: "In combat, we are in the same ranks with the Soviets; at work, we are on the same team."

The mixture of Russian ways with traditional Mongolian culture has led to no visible problems. Mongolian national dress, the traditional sports of archery, wrestling and horse racing and Mongolian theatre and dance all continue.

Nomadic herdsmen, who still account for much of Mongolia's agriculture, are technically organized in Soviet-style co-operatives but still have much independence.

The Soviet Union keeps the Russian population of Ulan Bator to the minimum needed for diplomatic, military and economic commitments to the country. The Russians live in separate apartment blocks with their own stores, schools and hospital and seem to intrude little into Mongolian life.

Russians often do not look forward to service in Mongolia. It has occasionally been used as a place of political exile, as in the case of former Soviet foreign minister Vyacheslav Molotov.

Molotov was a powerful figure in Stalinist Russia and the Soviet Communist party until 1957, when Nikita Khrushchev packed him off to Mongolia as an ambassador.

Molotov left for a diplomatic assignment in Vienna in 1960 and retired on a pension in 1961 in Moscow.

The People's Republic, frequently called Outer Mongolia, borders on Inner Mongolia, a more populous region also inhabited by Mongols and controlled by the Chinese for several centuries.

Industrial enterprises are expected to account for 46 per cent of Outer Mongolia's economic output by 1980.

In the next five years, the Soviets expect to help build more than 240 projects, including a coal mine with a capacity of two million tons a year, a 220,000-volt electric transmission line and a cement factory with an annual output of 600,000 tons.

There are major contributions by all the East Bloc countires in the industrial centres around Ulan Bator, which are already giving the capital a smog problem.

The aim is to improve living standards and make Mongolia more of a contributor to the East European Comecon economic bloc, which takes 90 per cent of its exports already. At present, Mongolia's exports to its 30-odd trading partners are mainly hides, skins, sheep and camel wool, goat's hair, fur, minerals and a few manufactured products.

Mongolia's position since 1964 as a firm Soviet ally in the Sino-Soviet conflict has imposed a heavy defence burden on the country. Along with the Soviet army, its soldiers defend the 2,-700-mile Mongolian border with China and large numbers of Mongolians are reported to be learning modern military technology.

Mongolia enjoys some advantages over other developing countries, however. Its small population—about 1.5 million— means it is basically self-sufficient in food. Most of its people have received at least a rudimentary education and 3,000 Mongolians are studying in the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and other countries.

Mongolians say their population has doubled since the Communist takeover and the average lifespan, apparently due to better food and medical care, has increased to 65 from 32 years.

From 1970 to 1975, industrial output was officially announced to have risen by 45 per cent while national income grew 30.3 per cent.

An average worker in Ulan Bator makes about 160 tugriks a month ($50 at the official exchange rate), according to an official. The cost of housing and some imported items can make living expensive: East German shirts in Ulan Bator sold this winter for up to 46 tugriks, while stylish Russian winter jackets were as high as 350 tugriks.

But there is no sign of active opposition to Tsendenbal despite Chinese propaganda broadcasts that regularly accuse the Mongolian Communists of being lackeys of Moscow.

Quasar Eclipse Observed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet astronomers at the Crimean astrophysical observatory has reported discovery of what they describe as an unusual phenomenon, the eclipse of a quasar.

The official Tass news agency said the observatory at Simferopol noted the change in Quasar 39273, a popular one among astronomers which lies closest to earth.

The eclipse of the quasar was discovered when the observatory noticed that over the course of four hours the intensity of the quasar's radio emissions dropped by 20 per cent.

Tass said that the loss of so much energy by a quasi-stellar source could be explained either by "the presence of some unknown energy carrier which is capable of travelling faster than light, contrary to the theory of relativity, or by the super-compression of matter which has the effect of creating so-called black holes."

ABOVE BOARD

Toward the end of last year, I received an invitation from the Morro Bay, California, Chamber of Commerce to give two simultaneous exhibitions plus an "open-air" blindfold show at the Morro Bay 17th Annual Rock-o-Rama.

Chess and Rock didn't seem to fit too well together — nor did other elements of the celebration seem to make good catalysts. They included: The World Championship Oyster Shucking and Eating Contest, Hot Air Balloon Launch, Drill Team Exhibit, Parade, Beef Barbeque, and a Dance contest. But anything for chess, so off I went — and had a grand time.

On Friday evening, I played 20 boards simultaneously and won 20. Here's a real short-short from this show:

WHITE: G. Koltanowski
BLACK: Alex De Jong

1.	P-K4	P-K3
2.	P-Q4	P-KB4
3.	N-QB3	PxP
4.	NxP	P-Q4?

7.	N-B7	KxN
8.	N-K5ch	K-K1
9.	Q-R5ch	K-B1
10.	Q-B7 mate.

On Saturday morning, I lectured on chess to school boards and teachers, this to promote chess for children in the schools. Later I gave the blindfold show and then, to finish off the proceedings, I played 15 boards against players from all over that area, winning 13 drawing 2.

OUTFALL BIDS BELOW ESTIMATE

Low bids for construction of a 6,900-foot sewage outfall at Clover Point came in below estimated costs Thursday.

Cost of the project was estimated at $3,019,000 last month and Thursday's bids ranged from $2.48 million to just under $3 million.

Bids were: Dillingham Corp. of Canada Ltd., Vancouver $2,826,733; H. B. Contracting Ltd. of Surrey, $2,547,500; Coyne Construction Co. of Port Moody, $2,480,000 and Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, $2,996,880.

Bids will be reviewed by the public works committee of the Capital Region Board before a recommendation is made.

Crown Ends Gypsy Trial Arguments

The Crown concluded its case Friday against John Edward Aitken, a 30-year-old beer parlor waiter accused of first-degree murder in the death of Monique (Gypsy) Dhillon last September.

Final witnesses were two pathologists, rounding out two days of expert witness testimony in the week-long trial, which will continue Monday before a B.C. Supreme Court jury and Mr. Justice Harry McKay.

Aitken is accused of first-degree murder by causing the death of Marie Alice Monique Nordelli (Gypsy) Dhillon while committing rape. Mrs. Dhillon, a 30-year-old mother of three, was found dead Sept. 9 in a grassy area at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt.

Nancy Ziegler, a serology expert from the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver, testified earlier that a piece of carpet she removed from Aitken's motorhome Sept. 10 contained a bloodstain which matched Mrs. Dhillon's blood and blood found on her dress.

It was also different from a sample said by an earlier witness to have been taken from Aitken.

Friday, Crown counsel J. W. Anderson asked her in what general portion of the population Mrs. Dhillon's blood combination was found. Mrs. Ziegler replied that from certain studies, the combination appears in about nine in 1,000 persons.

She also said a sample of vaginal washings from Mrs. Dhillon showed sperm present in a large number.

Cross-examined by defence counsel Gordon MacDonald, she agreed she was relying on certain statistical studies in England on the occurrence of blood types and a random sample in which she was involved in Vancouver.

MacDonald said the second of a three-part test involving Mrs. Dhillon's blood occurred in more than 45 per cent of a survey involving a number of countries, including 62 per cent in Japan.

But Mrs. Ziegler said Canadian figures should be based on Canada and repeatedly referred to the Vancouver study to support her opinion on the general occurrence.

She agreed that, assuming nine of every 1,000 to be correct, this would mean more than 2,000 people in Greater Victoria have the same combination of blood groups as Mrs. Dhillon.

MacDonald questioned whether the eight or nine per 1,000 would be evenly distributed and said there might be 50,000 people with that type of blood combination.

"I couldn't say that, I don't know," she replied.

Pathologist Dr. John Marsden said he performed an autopsy Sept. 10 and believed the death was due to asphyxiation caused by strangulation.

External injuries "looked to me as if they were caused by the body being beaten up, fairly shortly before death."

He said there was bruising in the forehead, eyelids, cheeks, both upper arms, back of the hands, hemorrhages of the roof of the nose and across the bridge, corner of the mouth and an extensive hemorrhage in front of the neck.

There were abrasions and scratch marks on the front of the neck, three scratches on one breast and a bruise on the other, a small laceration on the external genitalia and some abrasions around the knees and one ankle.

Internal injuries included an extensive hemorrhage in the front of the neck from the jaw to the upper chest and hemorrhages had "almost completely closed off" the airway between the vocal chords.

There were also hemorrhages near the stomach and below the spleen, and some bleeding in the face of the skull and on the surface of the brain which could be attributed to violence to the head.

He concluded that an egg-cup-full of blood from the vaginal area came from a vaginal laceration but he had no opinion as to how that laceration occurred.

Asked if a plaster half-cast Aitken wore on his right forearm could be an implement to cause the neck injuries, he replied "yes, it could have caused some of the injuries."

He said there was no indication the body was dragged through the area where it was found.

He said there were signs of "an extensive struggle" and the marks on the arms and hands could have been caused by her.

Marsden said he didn't find any particles of plaster of Paris at the autopsy.

Asked what was the likely time of death, he said "I can't

Presented with testimony from Dr. Brian Carlson, who pronounced her dead at 12:25 p.m. Sept. 9 and said it was "possible" she had been dead only four hours, Marsden said he did not have enough information to give a definite opinion.

He said four hours seemed "a rather short time" but he couldn't say how many hours could be added on.

Dr. John Sturdy, a Vancouver pathologist who read the autopsy and heard Marsden's testimony, agreed that the external injuries were a result of "physical violence in the form of a beating" and occurred "not long before death."

Without question, he said, death was due to asphyxiation caused by strangulation.

He said a laceration to the external genitalia and a laceration inside the vagina were "a very unusual finding" and he could not recall this before with consential intercourse and "not too often" in rape.

Questioned about the large number of spermatozoa in the vaginal washings, he said this is not usual in a mobile woman after 16 to 24 hours but spermatozoa can remain intact for days after death.

He was also presented with Carlson's testimony about the possible time of death and testimony from Sgt. Douglas Sproxton of Esquimalt police that rigor mortis was setting in but hadn't stiffened the limbs.

Sturdy said rigor mortis is "one of the worst ways of determining when death occurred" and he said factors such as weather have to be taken into account.

Questioned closely, he said in a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit, rigor mortis should become apparent in the face muscles in three hours, become apparent in the arms and legs in three to nine hours and fairly generally established in the body in nine to 10 hours.

MacDonald asked him if he was not inclined to agree with four hours, would he be more agreeable to six or eight hours on the basis of all he had heard in court.

Sturdy replied that "the only thing I can base anything on is rigor mortis" and at the end of nien hours in 60-degree temperatures, rigor mortis "should be fairly solid."

Archives Articled By Mayors

Articles of incorporation for the recently-formed Greater Victoria Civic Archives Society were signed Thursday by the mayors of the four core municipalities.

The society's first annual meeting will be held at the McPherson Playhouse at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, when members will be asked to elect an executive and approve a program of activities.

There will also be discussion of the society's bylaws and constitution, and city archivist Ainslie Helmcken will present a slide show from the city's collection of old postcards.

Foster Kids Still Have Parents

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The role played by foster parents is one that everyone agrees is important — after all they care for 850 children in the Capital Region.

But who are the parents who have given up their children to the child welfare agencies — the natural parents?

Are they heartless ogres who couldn't love their children and didn't deserve to have them in the first place?

There are between 300 and 400 families here who have given up their children to the foster program for one reason or another.

"Ninety per cent of them are good, concerned parents who got bogged down with problems," one parent says.

Perhaps it was an illness in the family, mental problems, drinking problems or a family breakdown. Sometimes a child becomes unmanageable and the parent can't cope.

And when the parent goes for help, the child usually ends up in a foster home.

Sometimes it is a rotten parent. The schools and juvenile courts discover these instances and recommend the child for foster care, but this is the rarest cause.

Natural parents in this area have joined to form the Natural Parent Group — a group unique in North America, according to social worker Bernice Packford, the group's consultant.

Under the sponsorship of the parent Encouragement Program of Human Resources, the group has started a newsletter to share experiences and to help others.

In the first issue of the newsletter, one mother writes: "When my daughter went into care five years ago, no one listened to me.

"Before she went into care I asked, I pleaded, I wept, I begged for help to solve our problem — not foster care. My words seemed to fall on deaf ears.

"After she went into care, anytime I called the social worker concerned, I was brushed off. They didn't need to listen to me for they had replaced me as a parent."

Another natural parent says "one of the hardest things about being a natural parent is not the letting go — and God knows that is hard enough — but the ostracism and the isolation one has to deal with afterwards."

One of the reasons for the group and the newsletter, she says, is to have someone to share the almost unbearable feelings of "the loneliness, the isolation, the fear, the guilt, the feelings of failure and worst of all I think — the feeling of being somehow 'different' from others."

Human resources regional director J. A. Mollberg said natural parents "have been through a most difficult and trying experience. They were hurt, embarrassed and confused and they wanted and needed more help than they could get from their social worker.

"They decided they would have to help themselves and formed the Natural Parent Group.

The group and its newsletter should bring a "new era of mutual respect and understanding," he said.

Gloria Tweedhope, foster parent and editor of that group's newsletter Fosterletter, said she hopes the members of natural parents will find mutual support and understanding from foster parents.

But for some, the natural parent newsletter aggravates old wounds.

Mrs. Packford said after the first issue was mailed in January, she received a number of calls from natural parents asking to be taken off the mailing list.

"They don't want the memory of a very painful experience," she said.

Foster Parents Given Honors

Every parent knows how tough the job can sometimes be — so Dawn and Ernest Cropp earned an honor Friday night most people can appreciate.

They were named foster parents of the year in a recognition ceremony honoring veteran foster parents in the Capital region.

They have been providing children with a home, help and love for 25 years, at the same time understanding the need for those children to keep contact with their natural parents where possible.

"Your leadership is leadership in human service in the most important of all social structures — the family," said Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, representing Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

He described the Cropp's service to children and the community as "outstanding," noting they had taken their first foster child privately in 1952, before any government financial help was available, and paid high medical bills in caring for him.

With all but one of their own family grown and left home, the Cropps are caring for three teenagers.

Bawlf quoted from social worker's reports which described Dawn Cropp as a person "who accepts all people for what they are, who is calm, collected and reliable in an emergency, who looks after the sick and takes in children whose parents are in hospital. She is invariably good-tempered and seems to get a tremendous satisfaction out of giving."

Ernest Cropp was described as "an ingenious man" who has given his wife tremendous support.

Bawlf presented 25-year pins to 14 foster parents, one 20-year pin, 20 15-year pins, 72 10-year pins and 99 five-year pins.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Two men who escaped Wednesday night from Wilkinson Road jail faced four joint charges Friday in Victoria provincial court and were remanded for one week by Judge Fred Green.

George Earl Storry, 22, and Albert Norman Laberge, 19, were charged with escaping lawful custody, being unlawfully at large, theft of a set of seat covers and possession of stolen property.

Laberge, in custody awaiting trial on a drug-related charge, elected trial by judge without jury on the first two, indictable offences.

Storry, who faces six charges jointly with 22-year-old Ronald James Kellington in connection with a Jan. 29 incident in Saanich in which a Saanich woman and her two children were held captive for ransom and is facing three other charges alone for a Jan. 14 Colwood incident, elected trial by judge and jury.

However, after Crown counsel Robert Mulligan raised his concern, Green refused to accept the election because Storry made a subsequent request for legal counsel.

When Green inquired as to why the two were not brought before him Thursday, Mulligan replied that charges were not laid until the late afternoon after the morning recapture and they had to be transported back to Wilkinson Road from the Saanich police station, where they were held following recapture by two Saanich policemen.

A 17-year-old youth charged with indecent assault following an incident Thursday afternoon at Oak Bay junior high school was remanded one week for election and plea and released on $750 surety bail.

Herbert Wayne Carpenter, of 64 Hampton, appeared before Green in the morning and requested to see legal aid lawyer Jasper Bomhof.

Reappearing in the afternoon, Carpenter, through Bomhof, applied for bail and Mulligan asked for two conditions as well as surety bail.

Mulligan asked that Carpenter refrain absolutely from any contact with the 15-year-old complainant and that he not be found on any school grounds.

Green granted the bail application and added the conditions requested.

A 22-year-old man, who had a psychiatric examination performed at Riverview on the Lower Mainland, voiced his objection to having the court appoint a lawyer for him before leaving the courtroom Friday.

Paul Vincent Thompson, charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking and possession of hashish, had lawyer Paul Jarman appointed to act on his behalf.

Jarman represented Thompson on previous occasions but questioned his client's fitness to stand trial Feb. 15 and asked for the psychiatric examination.

Jarman said the court could, under the Criminal Code, appoint a lawyer for Thompson and Green, who ordered a fitness hearing, appointed Jarman.

"This is the first time in Canada I've ever seen a court appoint me a lawyer," Thompson commented before leaving court.

The case was remanded until Feb. 28 to set a date for the fitness hearing.

A 22-year-old hitchiker who was checked by Saanich police Friday morning on the Pat Bay Highway near Quadra and found with a small amount of marijuana received a four-day jail term.

Marvin McGillivray, who pleaded guilty to a charge of possession, received the prison sentence after Green noted that McGillivray seemed persistent in his intention of breaching the Narcotic Control Act.

Court was told McGillivray had a May, 1974, conviction in Matsqui and an October, 1976, conviction in Strathmore, Alta., on the same charge and was fined $209 and $100, respectively, on the charges.

An 18-year-old who failed to heed a Saanich police officer's warning not to drive Friday morning ended up with a total of eight days in jail.

Scott William Esplen, of 467 Lampson, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and driving without a valid driver's licence.

Mulligan told the court Esplen was noted at 1:30 a.m. near a car in the Red Lion Motor Inn parking lot in an intoxicated condition by Saanich police, who advised him not to drive.

He was seen about 15 minutes later driving out of the lot without headlights and was stopped less than a block later, court was told. A breath test produced a reading of .25.

Esplen, who disputed the warning, was given seven days for the impaired charge and a consecutive, one-day sentence for driving without a licence. A charge of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 was withdrawn by Mulligan.

Cuban Force In Uganda

NAIROBI (UPI) — News reports in Kenya today said up to 1,000 Cuban troops have been stationed in Uganda, where President Idi Amin has barred some 200 Americans from leaving the country until they attend a forced meeting with him next week.

Reports from the Ugandan capital, citing "reliable sources," also said a high-level Cuban military delegation had arrived in Kampala to discuss with Amin the possibility of providing more military personnel and hardware, presumably to deal with reported coup plots that have led to a recent series of bizarre events in Uganda.

The Kenyan reports said Cuba and Uganda earlier this month signed a military agreement.

The unpredictable Ugandan leader has ordered all Americans to remain in the country and to meet with him Monday. He denied today that the Americans, mostly missionaries, were being held as "hostages."

In Washington Friday night President Carter said that the situation in Uganda "looks good now" and "I think it's going to be all right." He gave no further details.

A four-ship U.S. Navy task force led by the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise cruised off East Africa today as the U.S. citizens awaited further word on why they are being detained for the meeting.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. George Brown, said in Los Angeles he believes "reason will prevail after a few hours or a few days."

U.S. officials were playing down the possibility of a military mission to rescue the Americans if they appear to be in danger. But military analysts in Washington said that military staff officers are considering possible options in case of an emergency.

PWA Profit Totals $2M For 1976

CALGARY (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines, Alberta's publicly-owned airline, reported Friday a profit of over $2 million for 1976.

R. T. Eyton, president of PWA said net earnings for 1976 were $2.3 million compared with $1.3 in 1975. The 1976 results are made up of an operating profit of $113,000 and a gain on disposal of property and equipment of $2.178 million.

Operating revenues in 1976 were $102,562,622 compared to $101,571,506 in the previous year.

Meanwhile, the B.C. government has petitioned the federal cabinet to delay the move of PWA's head office to Calgary from Vancouver pending a public inquiry.

SECRET PAPERS BARED

Feds Urging End Of Curbs Oct. 14

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage and price controls will start to be lifted Oct. 14 this year, according to the Toronto Star.

The newspaper says confidential documents, now being circulated by Ottawa to provincial finance ministers, set out a point-by-point argument for ending controls on Oct. 14, exactly two years after they were imposed.

Under current law, controls are not scheduled to come off until December, 1978.

The Star says Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the anti-inflation board, told provincial labor ministers this week that the October date is most likely.

It says the documents refer to "the equity among different groups of workers which would be obtained if the starting date (for closing out the program) were Oct. 14, 1977."

This date "implies that most workers would have been subject to control for two years," the newspaper quotes the documents as saying.

"In general, those groups which were first in would be first out," the documents continue.

The Star says under the plan outlined in the documents, wage controls would be ended in various industries as their collective agreements expire.

Any expiry date of Oct. 14 would be set for controls and any contract which runs out after that date would be free of them. For those contracts which end before, controls would continue to apply for one more year, the newspaper says.

It also says profit controls would be eliminated by a similar staggered approach, using the company's fiscal year end as the determining date.

The Star quotes the documents as saying nearly half of the four million workers now under controls will be rid of them by the end of the year, if the Oct. 14 date is selected.

A further one fifth would be free by April 1, 1978, another fifth by July 1, 1978, and the final one-tenth by Oct. 14, 1978.

The newspaper says federal officials also will discuss with provincial authorities such measures as establishing a smaller anti-inflation board which would use its current information-gathering methods to watch inflation after controls are lifted.

Another possibility is to expand the mandate of the Economic Council of Canada to keep a day-to-day watch on wage and price increases or a new 60-member council composed of representatives from government, business and labor to perform a price-monitoring function, The Star says.

ANOTHER 4c HIKE FOR GAS IN JULY

TORONTO (CP) — The price of gasoline in Canada should be raised by at least four cents a gallon by July 1 to narrow the gap between international and domestic prices, federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Friday.

The current domestic crude oil price, negotiated by the federal and provincial governments and used as a formula for setting gasoline prices, is $9.75 a barrel.

Gillespie told the Canadian Club that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has increased oil prices "by an average of better than $1" since the last Canadian increase Jan 1.

"If we are to narrow the gap between Canadian prices and the international price, then we must be prepared to contemplate a price increase come July 1 of more than $1.25 barrel — at least four cents a gallon," he said.

"Price to the consumer and return to the producer must be consistent with our conservation objectives and our objectives to substitute Canadian energy sources for foreign oil."

Gillespie said Canada must make concerted efforts to utilize its available sources of energy.

Heated Response

TASCO, Mexico (Reuter) — A street fire-eater, exasperated by three schoolboy tormentors, breathed a stream of flame over them and put them in hospital with second-degree burns, police said Friday. The boys, aged between 10 and 12, taunted the entertainer on their way home from school in this tourist resort south of Mexico City.

Shark Bait Hero

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Paul Howard, a 24-year-old surfer, suffered wounds requring 80 stitches today when he intentionally attracted a shark to himself to save a young girl, police reported.

Dissident Charged

MOSCOW (UPI) — Authorities have charged dissident poet Alexander Ginzburg with anti-Soviet activities under a law providing as much as 10 years in a labor camp.

Major Hotel Fire

MOSCOW (CP) — An army of firefighters brought under control early today a fire that ravaged a wing of the Rossiya, the world's largest hotel. At least 18 persons were believed killed and at least 12 seriously in jured. All three Canadians registered at the hotel have been accounted for.

Garage Burns

CRANBROOK (CP) — Fire Thursday night caused an estimated $750,000 damage to the garage and shops of the Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. mill near here. Two trucks and a log unloader were also lost but there was no damage to the log yard or sawmill operation.

Eaton's Sells Clients To Junk Mail Senders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eaton's is renting the names and addresses of its catalogue sales customers to the junk mail industry for $35 a thousand.

The catalogue-sales department, which went out of business last year, had names of 2.75 million Canadians which now are being rented without the knowledge of those customers.

A spokesman for Eaton's said Friday that the national department store chain didn't ask permission of its customers to rent their names because "your name and address are really public information, anyway."

"People don't legally have property rights to their names so we don't see any problem," said Vern Reynolds in a telephone interview from Toronto.

"I think it's an acceptable practice. We look at it as a business venture."

Reynolds said rental is done through a broker, Postal Promotions Ltd. of Toronto.

Only one set of labels to be glued to envelopes is sent to a customer so that names can't be use repeatedly. It is illegal for anyone to copy the list, said Reynolds.

He added that all advertisements are screened before the list is released.

So far, the list has been rented to Reader's Digest, Time-Life Books, the Canadian Bible Society and Grolier Enterprises, which sells books.

A person wishing to have his or her name removed from a junk mail list may do so by contacting the Canadian Direct Mail Association in Toronto.

Asked if some Eaton's customers might feel used by the company, Reynolds replied: "I think that would be the minority. We've only had one complaint."

CYANIDE CENTRES IN CANDY FIND

TOKYO (UPI) — Forty chocolate bars discovered in a cardboard box on a street in a Tokyo shopping centre have been found to contain fatal doses of cyanide, Tokyo police said today.

The discovery of the poisoned chocolates with a note promising "the punishment of heaven" for "the haughty Japanese people" revived a manhunt for a killer who leaves poisoned delicacies in public places.

Two persons died last month after consuming the contents of soft drink bottles left in public telephone booths in Tokyo's downtown Shinagawa District. The capped bottles were spiked with cyanide.

Police said the poisoned chocolate bars were found Feb. 14 in a pedestrian walkway in the Yaesu underground shopping centre below Tokyo Station.

A 43-year-old bank clerk who found the box turned it in to a nearby police station. When nobody claimed the box, the police turned it over Ezaki Glico Co., a well known maker of candy and dairy products.

Employees of the firm discovered that the foil wrappings on all the almond chocolate bars had been tampered with and returned them to police for examination.

WASHINGTON DIMS LIGHTS ON ROADS

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — More than 25 per cent of Washington State's highway lights will be doused in order to conserve electricity, highways director William Bulley said Friday.

He said 7,700 of the state's 28,000 highway lights will be turned off, saving 15 million kilowatts a year and trimming the state's electricity bill by $240,000. The electricity saved will equal that needed by 1,000 homes.

Bulley said his agency also will curtail some lighting in ferry terminals, highway rest areas and in departmental offices.

Most of the affected lights will be on the interstate freeways, the director said.

Wheat Cartel Plan Agreed

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canada and the United States agreed in "principle" Friday to set up a wheat cartel in an effort to break the boom-or-bust cycle of world grain prices.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, announced that "broad agreement on the principles involved" has been reached between Ottawa and Washington.

Lang, who met Friday afternoon with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland, said the two governments would seek to set a minimum wheat price in an attempt to maintain a stable world market value.

Speaking at a Canadian Embassy news conference, the minister said Canada and the U.S. would try to interest other exporting countries in such an arrangement but would be willing to proceed "by ourselves."

Lang, who is also Canada's Transport minister, said Ottawa and Washington would "like to avoid the very significant swings" in international wheat prices.

He said a price-fixing agreement would be in the "interest" of both exporting and importing nations because it would lead to steady production levels and assure grain supplies.

The minister said "cartel is a word I would not use" to describe the arrangement, although it was the term employed by Bergland at a briefing earlier in the day for American reporters.

Convicted Killer Possessed By the Devil, Says Priest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The convicted slayer of a homosexual was possessed by the devil, says a Catholic priest who tried to exorcise the man.

Patrick Jerome McMurray, 19, of Richmond, is to be sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court March 7 for the strangulation death of Donald Smith, 42, on July 7, 1976. He was earlier found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter.

Rev. Ronald Joncas said Friday in a seven-page affidavit to the supreme court that McMurray, who has a record of suicide attempts, should be declared legally insane at the time he killed.

Father Joncas said that in January, 1976, a cousin of McMurray's came to him with a story of a crucifix bursting into flames in McMurray's bedroom, and of the man receiving mysterious burns to the arms.

The priest said that the incident followed an argument with his landlady.

When McMurray attempted to go to bed after the argument, the lights were off and "as he approached his bed, something grabbed him from behind on his arms and his arms burned several times hotter than touching a stove."

"At the same time, lights went on and off in the room, the crucifix on the wal across the bed burst into flames like a blowtowrch behind it and a small statue of the Blessed Virgin on the dresser was intact one moment and the next moment the head was knocked off.

When he tried to get out of the room, the affidavit said, the door seemed locked, even though there was no lock on the door.

McMurray was taken to hospital where he was treated for second-degree burns.

The priest said that about a week later, he and several others went to see McMurray but the man was displaying

Shooting Suspect Arrested After Clerk Plays It Cool

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Kenneth Barnett, a mild-mannered desk clerk at a downtown hostel, stalled a man with a rifle Friday night while anxiously waiting for police to arrive.

At about the same time an elite police tactical squad, armed to the teeth, was bursting into a Saanich apartment looking for the same man.

They were after a suspect in the shooting of a man in a ground floor suite at the Quintro Manor, 3800 Quadra, an hour before. But it was Victoria city police who made the arrest, thanks to Barnett's tip.

Roger McDonald, 209-3800 Quadra, was charged in provincial court this morning with attempted murder.

McDonald, 24, was remanded in custody to early next week for plea.

He is charged in connection with the shooting of Al Kauknins, 33, of 103-3800 Quadra.

Kauknins is reported in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital. Police said he was shot once in the lower abdomen with a .303 rifle.

BARNETT
. . . not scared

Barnett said a man carrying a briefcase and with a rifle slung over his arm came into the Salvation Army Hostel on Johnson at 8:40 p.m. The man said he had no money, nowhere to go and wanted a bed for the night.

The man suddenly left, and Barnett called police. As he was talking to the officer the man returned. Police raced to the hostel and took the suspect into custody.

A Saanich police spokesman said the shooting occurred at about 7:24 p.m.

A tenant in the apartment block, who asked not to be identified, told the Times she was in the Kauknins' suite when there was a knock at the door.

Mrs. Kauknins, the victim's wife, answered and was greeted by a man carrying a briefcase and rifle.

The tenant said Mrs. Kauknins knew the man and said jokingly: "What are you going to do with that . . . shoot us?"

The tenant left shortly after and was walking down the corridor when she heard a loud bang. She kept on going to her suite but returned minutes later.

She said she was just approaching Kauknins' door when she heard someone inside the suite say: "Why did they do that to me?" and Kauknins replying: "I don't know."

She said she sensed something was wrong and went to the manager's apartment next door. The manager reached out and pulled her inside.

The tenant said Mrs. Kauknins and her youn gdaughter Laura were there. Mrs. Kauknins was in a state of shock.

She told the tenant she was cutting bread preparing dinner when the man fired. She said she grabbed Laura and

Bob Keeps All $300 . . . Almost

VANCOUVER — Bob Neumann, a disabled construction laborer, said Friday that he will be allowed to keep all but $25 of the $300 he was paid in compensation for injuries he suffered in a mugging.

Neumann said the Vancouver Resources Board told him that his monthly handicapped allowance of $265 would be reduced by $5 for the next five months.

He was told that the $25 would be deducted because he spent that much of the $300 on car repairs.

"I can't really kick about this," said Neumann.

"It's better than having to pay back the whole $300."

Neumann's bureaucratic problem started two weeks ago when he was told he would lose at least one month's allowance to offset the $300 award for injuries suffered in a beating by two drunken youths last August.

ALLMAND
. . . bare-faced

WHITEHORSE — Indian Affairs Minister Warren Allmand was caught bare-faced Friday and it cost him $10.

He was arrested — on a charge of being beardless during Sourdough Rendezvous — shortly after he arrived by plane for a two-day visit.

Allmand paid his fine, then received a permit to remain beardless during his stay.

LOS ANGELES — Multimillionaire Robert McCulloch, who brought the chain saw to woodsmen and London Bridge to the Arizona desert, was found dead at his home Friday at age 66.

The cause of death was not given, but McCulloch had been under treatment for a heart condition for five years.

He and his wife, Barbara, had been married 42 years.

Starting with $2,500 borrowed from his father, McCulloch founded and made successes of a number of firms in engineering, oil, real estate development, aviation, publishing and other fields. He introduced the first one-man, gasoline-powered chain saw in 1948.

RENO, Nev. — There were wedding bells in the city jail, but there was no grand exit for the honeymoon.

Joe McCollough, 21, and Linette VanRenner, 24, both from Santa Rosa, Calif., and both residents of the jail, were married Friday in a quick ceremony in the booking area.

McCollough is in custody for parole violation and for conviction on a charge of burglary. His bride is held on a drug charge filed in California.

CAMP DAVID, Md. — The new grandfather was all smiles, holding his wife's hand and proclaiming the new baby resembled his daughter-in-law, not his son. The new grandfather was President Carter.

The parents are the president's son Chip and daughter-in-law Caron.

LIFETIME DRIVING BAN

POWELL RIVER (CP) — A coroner's inquest has recommended a lifetime driver's licence suspension for Neil George Butler, 21, of Powell River.

Butler was the sole survivor of a single-vehicle crash in which four young people — all residents of Powell River — were killed.

The coroner's jury ruled Thursday that the deaths were accidental but said Butler was negligent in the operation of the vehicle and had been driving with excessive speed. It then recommended the lifetime suspension.

One expert told the inquiry he estimated the car was travelling at 95 miles an hour south of here and slammed into an earthen bridge crossing a ditch. Other testimony was that the car could not safely negotiate the curve at a speed of more than 75 m.p.h.

Deaths Stayed

ATLANTA, (AP) — The executions of three Georgia prisoners have been delayed, one less than 24 hours before he was to die.

The U.S. Supreme Court told Georgia officials Friday to postpone the execution of Wilburn Dobbs, who had been scheduled to be electrocuted today. The court granted the stay pending Dobbs' formal appeal.

Bumps in the Night Stop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (Reuter) — The mysterious noises stopped Thursday night, as suddenly as they began, and the Hunsinger family, after almost a month of mental torture, finally got a night's sleep.

But Beth Hunsinger, 14, now steps lightly around her home, fearful of return of the strange banging in the walls.

"Sure, she's scared," said her father, Charles Hunsinger, "but so's everybody else around here."

The noises, like a fist beating on the walls of the modern two-storey, split-level home, started about one month ago, he told Reuters. Recently, they began to follow Beth around.

Blendon Township police have heard them and so have Franklin County sherrif's deputies but no one has an explanation.

"As far as we know, there's no human involved," said Hunsinger.

Just One More Elevator Ride, Yard Men Hope

By Mike Hughes

"You become very careful about what you buy because you can get caught pretty badly," says Ken Burgoyne who has been at Yarrows for 27 up and down years.

The veteran shipyard worker shows an empty building berth at Yarrows and his mind wanders to better times.

"We used to turn a barge out of here every 10 days."

The veteran shipyard steel superintendent.

"It only took eight and a half days to lay a keel.

"It was wonderful. We had lots of work and everybody enjoyed it."

But the good times are gone, and although images of past jobs, the huge log barges, ocean-going tugs and provincial ferries, float around in Sale's mind, there's no more on the horizon.

Now a combination of a world-wide shipping and shipbuilding recession and high wages has resulted in a drop in employment at the Esquimalt yard from about 900 last summer to less than 90 last week.

Those hardest hit are the workers who depend strictly on the shipyard for work, like the members of hte boilermakers union, 45 per cent of whom are out of work.

Skilled workers, some of them trained at Yarows are beginning to leave the city to take jobs in Alberta or other eastern cities.

A check of newspapper clippings reveals the elevator-like history of the yard with bursts of building activity followed by job doldrums.

This could be just another down period like others in the past but veterans at the shipyard say it is worse than other years and the difference this time is there is nothing in sight.

Yarrows general manager Don Challinor describes the situation as "a most distressing state of affairs."

He said in an interview that along with the shipyard's three building berths, the company's order books are empty "and the prospects for new shipbuilding construction are poor."

Union spokesman Jim McAvoy says the employees have seen similar dry periods in the past 10 years "but never down that low when we didn't have something coming right around the corner."

He said he has no doubt Yarrows will bounce back because there is always going to be a need for a large shipyard in Victoria but it is going to take concessions from union and management.

"In my opinion, there are some work practices at the shipyard that have been there for 40 years that are going to have to be looked at.

"But at the same time some of the company's bidding practices that haven't changed for 20 years are going to have to be changed."

He says the fact that Yarrows workers are the highest paid shipyard workers in North America and possibly the world, is not to blame for the current problems.

But Sale disagrees, saying Yarrows has priced itself out of the market.

"We've got the highest paid shipyard workers with the best conditions and no jobs," says Sale, who has been with Yarrows nearly 20 years.

But he qualifies that by saying it is wrong to blame the wages alone for what is happening, there are other worldwide factors.

Sale says one way to increase the productivity and cut down on the man-hours is to change the restrictive practices between unions and even within unions.

If the shipyard workers are going to survive they are going to have to rid themselves of the rigid, stringent rules which allow members of a union only to do certain types of work.

Ken Burgoyne, plate shop charge hand who has been with Yarrows for 27 years, agrees the high wages are a factor in Yarrows' problem but adds the workers are faced with the costs of living in Victoria.

"When you live here, you have to buy your groceries here and you have to buy a house at the going rate," he said.

Burgoyne says the present dull period is the worst it has been in the past four or five years.

He was alone with an apprentice in the plate shop on Thursday. When business is hot, there would be as many as 12 men working in the area.

"It's the kind of a job where you don't do much family planning," Burgoyne said.

"You become very careful about what you buy because you can get caught pretty badly."

Challinor says the company has been bidding against national and local competition "cutting our prices until it hurts and we are still left wanting."

He points out the hourly rate for shipyard workers in Ontario is $5.50, compared to $9.60 in Victoria. In Seattle the rate is $7.57 an hour.

Last month, Yarrows lost out on a bid for a contract on a dredge for the Cameroons. Collingwood Shipyards in Ontario won with a bid of $9.8 million, compared to Yarrows' estimate of $10.1 million.

"Imagine what we had to do to the profit and overhead to make that bid," Challinor says. "You can't accuse us of being too greedy.

"We are prepared to make sacrifices on profit and we are asking them (the employees) to show the same responsibility."

One problem, he says, is that the company is hamstrung with jurisdictional work practices "which can justify men standing around doing nothing.

"I would like to see our goal to be maximum productivity through efficient use of manpower by proper planning, communications and, above all, by elimination of wasteful work practices."

Challinor has been meeting with union representatives on the problem and further talks are scheduled.

The key to keeping the shipyard going is continuity of work, Challinor said, and this could be helped if the shipyard got more naval refit work.

On that note, Challinor confirms that the navy supply ship HMCS Provider is coming up for a major refit but that work won't be done until June and it is not certain that Yarrows will get the job.

He also points to a recommendation to the federal government last year from the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association for promotion of a deep-sea fleet of Canadian-owned and built ships.

"Such a policy would stimulate the shipbuilding industry throughout Canada, at the same time benefitting our strategic position and also our balance of trade."

He also suggested Canada embark on a policy similar to that in Brazil, whereby a certain percentage of Canadian export goods would be carried in Canadian ships.

This would provide shipyards with a long-range construction program instead of being in their present situation of living hand to mouth not knowing where the next order is coming from, he said.

Challinor says when the shipyard is going full tilt it pumps about $12 million into the local economy in wages and he can't understand why there is not more interest in what is taking place.

McAvoy, president of the Joint Shipyards Conference, which represents the 12 unions at the shipyard, says he doesn't believe the high wages are the reason for Yarrows plight.

He says the unions could go along with that if other yards in Canada and North America weren't having the same problems.

He says the dredge contract which went to Collingwood is proof that Yarrows, despite the high wages, is competitive with other companies.

McAvoy says it may be time for Yarrows to branch out more into different types of work which may not be connected with the marine end of things.

Also, he said, it may be time to take a look at breaking up the work force into specialized groups to become more competitive with the smaller shipyards in commercial work.

He said the two factors which have led the current situation are that the trade is just not there and the amount of competition has increased.

Walt Frederiksen, business manager of the boilermakers union, says the unions write letters to the federal government but nothing happens.

"We need help now," he says.

An empty building berth at Yarrows attests to the shipyard's tough times. Images of past jobs are all the remaining workers have to console themselves because there isn't much on the horizon.

Ecologist Attacks Shoal Bay Group

No Affront To Hartwig Intended

A Victoria Times' interview with city Ald. Ron McKenzie, published Feb. 22, quoted disparaging remarks by Ald. McKenzie regarding contractor and developer Hans Hartwig and the quality of his companies' workmanship and disregard of heritage values.

The Times' did not intend any disparagement of Hartwig's construction or development activities and regrets any embarrassment he may have suffered from the story.

A group of Oak Bay property owners was accused Friday night of stalling a Capital Regional District sewage disposal project "for their own convenience."

Dr. Jim Pojar, a plant ecologist, told a public meeting of environmentalists at the University of Victoria the group's actions threaten to despoil Trial Island and delaying the project, is costing taxpayers thousands of dollars.

He was referring to residents of Shoal Bay where a major pumping station is planned to push the output from the northeast trunk sewer to the Clover Point outfall.

They don't want the station at Shoal Bay and have suggested it be built on nearby Trial Island.

Pojar, who is with the provincial ecological Reserves branch, said Trial Island is a botanical gem and a national heritage because it has rare and endangered plant species.

"Trial Island is Crown (public) property," he said. "It belongs to all the people of Greater Victoria."

"I consider it unethical for a small group of private land owners to obstruct the construction of a sewage system for their own convenience," he said.

"Are we going to sacrifice Trial Island for the convenience of a few property owners?" he asked.

Pojar also said delaying completion of the sewage disposal system is expensive for taxpayers.

"It's costing you thousands of dollars every week the project is delayed," he said.

Earlier, Adolf Ceska, a botanist at the University of Victoria, said it would be a mistake to build a pumping station on Trial Island because the island is unspoilt.

A member of the audience said the engineering firm which recomended the pumping station be installed on Trail Island conducted a "shallow" study.

"Indications are that it would be an expensive project," he said.

The meeting sponsored by the Greater Victoria Environmental centre and was attended by more than 100, including engineers and government representatives.

It was called to discuss endangered habitats, such as natural areas, farmlands and wetlands.

G.A.I.N. Protest Set Up for Monday

Groups from Victoria and Vancouver will join forces at the Legislative Buildings on Monday to protest the Socreds' Guaranteed Available Income for Need program.

Bruce Eriksen, vice-president of the Vancouver Downtown Eastside Residents Association, said today the groups will ask for an immediate increase in income allowances to all persons covered by the controversial GAIN legislation.

He said he expected anywhere from 50 to 100 persons will take part in the demonstration, which starts at 11 a.m.

He said the protesters hope to take their case directly to the cabinet but added it would not be a repeat of the incident in Jan. 15, 1976, when 75 persons stormed into a cabinet meeting demanding Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm find them jobs.

NO SATURDAY CLOSURE—P.O.

The post office is not taking a survey on Vancouver Island to determine whether offices can be closed on Saturdays, a spokesman said Friday.

Betty Amos was commenting on a statement Thursday by Frank Walden, western regional director of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

Walden also said that the survey could become an experiment for the whole country, "but the union wasn't told about it."

Mrs. Amos said the post office is going to conduct a survey "to determine the extent to which wickets are used Saturdays" on the island.

She said one meeting was held with the CUPW, but the union has declined further discussion.

Mrs. Amos said the survey is not with a view to closing post offices on Saturdays, "because that suggests no mail goes in and no mail goes out."

Ask The Times

Q. I read a recent article in your paper that this is the year of the snake according to the Chinese calendar. Is it possible for you to publish a similar article (on the 12 signs of the Chinese calendar) or tell me where I can obtain such information? —V.M.

A. The Chinese calendar runs on a 60-year cycle with years grouped under an animal designation, totalling 12, with groups of years with an odd number alternating with groups having an even number so that the animal designation will be repeated every 12 years. Last year, for example, was a year of the dragon; 1975 was a year of the hare; next year will be a year of the horse, followed by a year of goat or sheep. Since 1972 the respective animal years have been rat, ox or bull, tiger, hare or rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep or goat, monkey, rooster, dog and pig.

Hospital Bids $1 Million Low

The low bid for construction of a 75-bed acute care addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital came in $1 million under the estimated cost Friday.

Hospital board chairman Jim Cumming said today he is "delighted" and expects the contractor will be on the job early in April.

The addition, first acute care beds to be built in the Capital district in 25 years, should be in operation late next year, he said.

The hospital, on Mount Newton Crossroad in Central Saanich, now has 75 beds for the long-term care of mostly elderly patients. With the opening of the new acute care wing the plan is to close the 52-bed Resthaven Hospital in Sidney or convert it to something other than acute care.

Estimated cost of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital addition was $3,617,000. Lowest of six bids opened Friday was $2,556,936, from Campbell Construction Ltd.

Other bidders: Wheaton Construction Ltd. $2,692,381; Farmer Construction Ltd. $2,745,352; H.E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. $2,752,000; Key Construction Ventures $2,795,000 and Poole Construction Ltd. $2,852,617.

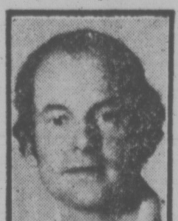
Last addition of acute care or general hospital beds locally was to Royal Jubilee Hospital in 1952, Cumming said.

He said the new beds at the peninsula hospital will be able to provide some relief for Greater Victoria residents while plans for a new hospital in View Royal go ahead.

The new hospital, to have 300 beds initially and 500 eventually, will go up beside Helmcken Road and will ultimately replace Victoria General Hospital.

Joan Foster . . . she's mad at system

A Little Bit of Remorse, Please!



max low

One month ago, pretty Joan Foster of Sooke was driving through Colwood.

A car in front stopped, so she stopped, too, and she turned to attend to her small son in the back seat.

Then wham!

Her car was hit in the rear so violently that, although luckily her child was unhurt, Joan Foster suffered severe whiplash affecting her neck and back. She hasn't been able to work regularly in her job teaching at Saseenos Elementary School for the last month and spends two and-a-half hours out of each day travelling to and from Langford for sessions with a physiotherapist.

Today, she wears a neck brace and a mask of anger.

The neck injury is clearing up, gradually. But Joan's doctor has told her it may be considerable time before she gets over the back ailment. Maybe she never will. And she is furious because it was all brought about by someone, she believes, should not have been allowed on the road, someone she should have been protected from.

For the driver who rammed into her is not yet 17. Which means that he has had his licence less than a year. And in that time he has been issued with five speeding tickets, Joan was told, and has been involved in two accidents. This latest episode, which incidentally happened on a straight road in broad daylight while the youth was apparently out for an afternoon drive with his girlfriend, earned him another six demerit points for "driving with undue care and attention" and brought his total to 21.

This time, a policeman told Joan, he will probably lose his licence.

But that isn't good enough for Joan, who's mad at the system. We need, she says, a tighter system, not one that protects the driver in the wrong but one that is fair and reasonable and allows for cautions to drivers who make occasional mistakes, but one that forces the driver to reflect on his wrongdoing.

"I don't think a warning letter and a $25 penalty assessment after 12 points or four mistakes is enough," says Joan. "It's a farce!"

Well, I didn't think so, either, so I phoned ICBC, which I found out, doesn't have anything to do with the penalty points or with the removal of anyone's licence. ICBC merely uses the files of the provincial Motor Vehicles Branch to levy financial penalties at the rate of $25 for every 10 points.

So I called Motor Vehicles and spoke to June Byers, and she admitted that it's probably confusing to the public but the demerit points — and you can be given two, three, six or 10 depending on the violation — are not the basis for suspension of your licence.

June is administrative officer for the safety and improvement section of the branch's driving licence division. Just what we can do with: more safety and plenty of improvement. Anyway, she says:

"No, we don't suspend for points. We suspend for a person's driving record and the points are used to bring your record to our attention. We work on a three-year record, getting a list of violations every week. And suspension depends on the seriousness of the offences."

That's another government way of really not saying very much. And I know it's not going to make Joan Foster delirious. As it was, she was pretty mad to find out that the youth, who she says directed a stream of obscenities at her despite the fact her little son was sitting there, didn't even have to go into ICBC to make out the accident report. His father did it for him.

"That's right," a woman at ICBC told me. "Anybody can fill in the accident report for him as long as they bring in the insurance form for the vehicle he was driving and his driving licence number."

"He never did show any remorse," says Joan a little sadly. "I don't expect him to be publicly flogged or anything but at least he should have to go in and acknowledge that he has done something wrong."
